

Future Looks Rosy for Saugerties

SAUGERTIES—Saugerties is heading into a business boom. After several dormant years, new businesses will be opening up, established ones are relocating within the village and positive steps are being taken to clean up empty stores.

Evidence of this business development is even indicated by traffic counters installed by the New York State Department of Transportation on Route 9W, at Barclay Heights, in the Village of Saugerties and outside of Veteran on Route 212.

With a "green light" indicated for the town's sewage project, according to talks with Town Supervisor Frank Greco who is expected to announce details this week, more new business opportunities will be opening up.

Cumberland Farms, a convenience store popular throughout Connecticut and New Jersey, is completing construction of its new building on Main Street next to the Post Office. The store is known to sell staples and gasoline.

On April 26 at 7 p.m. in the Village Hall, the Saugerties Ambulance Service will be seeking approval of a variance from the Zoning Board of Appeals to relocate on property recently purchased by them. The new site is the Campbell property located on West Bridge and Partition Streets.

Stewart's Ice Cream Company, which purchased the Ambulance Service property on Main and John Streets, will open a "bread and butter shop" there and may possibly be equipped with gasoline pumps similar to their other locations in the county.

It is rumored Kentucky Fried Chicken is planning to take over Stewart's current location on Main Street. According to Albert J. Cawein, public relations and industrial development director for Ulster County, officials from Kentucky Fried Chicken were inquiring about locations in Saugerties about a year ago.

Joan Feldmann, new village trustee, told the Freeman that three empty stores have been officially condemned and will remain closed until the owners repair them. "It will be up to the village board to keep on top of that problem," she said.

Mrs. Feldmann and her husband, Edward, who own Eddie's Delicatessen in Saugerties, are active leaders on the area's New Business Development and have been spearheading these new moves. On their list for the Village is another supermarket and department store.

The Freeman also learned that Kaye Sports Inc. of Kingston may open a branch store on Main Street next to the International House and pending approval from the Comptroller of the Currency in Washington, D.C., the Rondout National Bank will open a branch office on Main Street in the old Clum Building. This will be the second commercial bank for the village, the other being Chase Manhattan.

It also is rumored that the Fondi Farm on Route 9W owned by Daniel D. Cantor of Jericho, L.I., has been discussed as a possible location for a shopping mall. Two years ago the issue was raised and Alexander's Department Store was rumored to be interested. Two weeks ago, according to Cawein's office, population figures and other pertinent information were again being researched by two individuals "who were reluctant to identify themselves." They are interested in the Cantor site located near Flamingo Restaurant.

Mrs. Feldmann, however, told the Freeman this type of development would not be possible until the sewage project is completed.

"It will be necessary to use the Village's disposal plant until another plant is constructed. The entire project is expected to take about two years," she says.

'Crystal Ball' Computer Latest Electronic Coup?

KINGSTON—Inquiries to a local electronics firm regarding reports of the new 'crystal ball computer' drew denials and curt replies of "no comment." Despite the corporate giant's repeated protestations that such a computer does not exist, the rumors continue to pour in.

The first incident called to our attention took place at a local bistro. A patron, obviously in his cups, boasted that he could accurately predict the outcome of all 10 races at Monticello the following night. With odds like that his bet was quickly covered, doubled, and squared. Every one of the gentleman's selections did, indeed, come in (one only after a hotly contested disqualification), but he never returned to claim his winnings.

The next occasion we had to puzzle over this seer's uncanny clairvoyance came right before election time. A neatly typed roster of the coming election's outcome came in the mail, unsigned. The writer's prophecy was correct in every detail.

Added to these incidents are the bits and pieces of back fence gossip that sift through the community. One such account reports that the programmer involved with the crystal ball computer is impaled on the horns of a dilemma; He had now profited greatly from the computer's advice on races, football games and the stock market. He could comfortably retire on the small fortune he has amassed. But that would end his association with the research computer that lays the golden eggs. The gossip-mongers further state that the merits of the marvelous machine have not been brought to the attention of corporate headquarters. With inflation accelerating, he doesn't know how much is enough! (Why doesn't he ask the computer?) At any rate, the equipment employed is not for sale, so our hapless hero must continue to maintain low profile and sleep on a lumpy mattress.

We have polled experts in the field asking if such a thing could be possible. They shrug and mumble about the law of probability . . . the mathematics of chance . . . and finally state that such a thing as infallible prediction couldn't happen.

And yet, as the rumors persist, we find ourselves remembering that most discoveries were believed to be impossible until some creative genius brought all the components together in the proper quantities, sequence and theory. Others follow the reasoning of the originator, but only a few have the gift of invention.

Mind-boggling are the possibilities of the ability to foresee the future. In the hands of the unscrupulous, the deck would be stacked against any parlor gambler. In the hands of a wealthy few, stock market killings would be common. In wide usage, no race would be worth running . . . no lotter ticket, save one, worth buying . . . no competition worth entering . . . no war worth fighting?

As we pursue the matter further, we realize how much of the spice of life is dependent upon the laws of chance. Young maidens could know the name of their future husband . . . the sex and prospects of their unborn child. Young men would know their career prospects, or the lack, alack. We would know the moment of our deaths . . . the onset of illness.

On the other hand, the trips involving accidents would never be made. Houses would burn with no one home. The unexpected would cease to be.

If such a thing as he crystal ball computer does exist, it would certainly be kept under wraps by those who discovered the concept. It holds more possibilities than the electric light; more danger than nuclear fission.

But Will It Help Plattekill?

By Matt Spireng

PLATTEKILL—Ulster County's proposed Local Law No. 2 of 1976 regulating the importation of refuse may go far toward banning the dumping of garbage from outside the county in any landfills newly established within the county in the future. But, ironically it may have little effect on what garbage winds up in a privately-owned landfill in the Town of Plattekill which was one of the main reasons for constructing the proposed law.

(A special meeting of the Ulster County Legislature has been called by Legislature Chairman Peter J. Savago, R-Dist. 8, for Monday, April 6, to set a date for a public hearing on the proposed local law regulating the importation of refuse into Ulster County.)

Assistant County Attorney Francis T. Murray, who drew up the law, told the Freeman Wednesday that he doesn't think it will apply to the Plattekill situation.

Murray explained that any local town ordinances banning importation of refuse take precedence over the proposed county law.

The Town of Plattekill does have a local ordinance banning importation of garbage. Murray said he thinks the local ordinance applies to the landfill owned by Dutchess Sanitation Service, Inc., which is the center of the garbage controversy in Plattekill, and therefore the county law, which is expected to go into effect April 13, will not apply.

However, town officials in Plattekill say that they have been told by attorneys they have consulted that the local ordinance does not apply to the Dutchess Sanitation landfill near the hamlet of Clintondale. The town non-importation measure, which only covered the town-run landfill until it was amended in 1968 to apply to all landfills in the town, can not be used by the town to keep garbage out of the Dutchess Sanitation landfill since that site was already in existence prior to the amendment, town officials say they have been advised.

Even if the proposed county law is found to be applicable in the Plattekill situation, it will apparently be difficult, if not impossible, to enforce. The reason: while prohibiting the importation of refuse, the law makes an exception for existing approved landfill sites where imported garbage is presently being dumped. It will be legal to dump up to 60 tons of imported garbage a week in such sites.

Murray admitted the exception would make it difficult to enforce the law on a daily basis. Explaining that the importation would have to be monitored by Health Department personnel, he said, "Obviously we're not going to stand down there and trace all the trucks coming in and out of the county." He said such action would only be taken if there was reason to believe the law was being violated.

Murray said he does not think the exception makes the law ineffective and explained that at if the exception were not included the law would be more open to a Constitutional challenge.

"You have to make some provisions so you don't look completely unreasonable in shutting them down completely," he said.

He noted that there is sound legal precedent for townships shutting down landfills, whereas there is no such precedent for counties taking such action.

"The towns should all realize that this is something they should be doing for themselves," he said.

The proposed county law does provide for a fine of up to $300 and/or imprisonment of up to six months for each violation, which would be a misdemeanor.

LOOK UP IN THE SKY—It's a bird, it's a plane . . . it's Superbug! And, why not? If it gets more miles to the gallon on a straight-away, it can do the same in the stratosphere. And what better challenge than a heavenward climb up Kingston's Old Dutch Church steeple? Disbelievers are reminded that a ghostly painter once haunted this spire on stormy nights; left his hobgoblin's cap perched atop its pinnacle by the dawn's early light. But that was a horse and buggy tale. In today's wheel society, the story needs modernizing—and what better day for the birth of a new legend then April Fool's?

FIVE FEARLESS FISHERMEN . . . This bleak setting at the portal near Allaben early today reflected the mood of the opening of the 1976 trout season in New York State—swollen, roily and running streams, few catches and steady rains. Meanwhile, an upgraded flood watch brought a

A. J. Winds Up Long Rec Career

KINGSTON—Andrew J. Murphy III, closes out a 28-year career as superintendent of recreation today.

Murphy, contacted by the Freeman following his recent vacation, confirmed that he has "filed his papers" and is awaiting official word from the state retirement system. Murphy expects to vacate his $16,200 a year job today. "I'll probably work Friday just to finish out the week," he said.

Lawrence Hyatt, park foreman and Murphy's number two man for the past few years, will assume leadership of the recreation department until Civil Service examinations can be administered. An exam has been ordered.

Murphy, native of Kingstonian with a degree in physical education from Bucknell University, was recreation director at Walkkill Prison before succeeding the late Harry Edson as city superintendent of recreation on May 3, 1948.

Prior to that Murphy had an outstanding athletic career beginning at Kingston

High School where he lettered in three sports and continuing at three major colleges, Notre Dame, Manhattan and Bucknell. Murphy led the nation in yardage gained as an offensive end at Bucknell in 1943.

He was called into the Marine Corps that year, serving almost four years and rising to the rank of captain at the time of his discharge in 1946. (Murphy saw combat action in the south Pacific during World War II.)

As head of the city's recreation department he has been honored on several occasions, most recently as the Kingston Moose Club's "Citizen of the Year" in April of 1975.

He turned 55, the minimum retirement age, in October of last year and that combined with some health problems dictated his retirement.

Murphy said he doesn't have any immediate plans for his retirement other than "just to take it easy for awhile." Murphy has owned the Plaza Liquor Store in Kingston Plaza for a number of years.

He and his wife, the former June Maurer, live at 79 Lucas Avenue. They are the parents of seven children, three at home.

Carey's Edict Scored

SCHENECTADY, N.Y. — State Supreme Court Justice Guy A. Graves has assailed as "arbitrary, undemocratic governmental compulsion" Gov. Hugh L. Carey's executive order barring state employees earning $30,000 or more from holding elective governmental office.

Graves also said that conferring "absolute power of removal of duly elected officials by the governor or his appointed boards by 'fiat'" appeared inconsistent with the state constitution and Town Law elective processes.

Argentina Pruning Knife

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina — Argentina has decided to fire all nonessential government employees in its first drastic step to reduce a $2.38 billion budget deficit and put the nation back on its economic feet.

A law issued late Wednesday by the ruling three-man military junta did not specify how many employees would be involved in the payroll cuts, but they were expected to remain in effect until at least the end of the year.

New Lebanon Cease-Fire?

BEIRUT, Lebanon — The United States and Syria both opened urgent new peace efforts today to end Lebanon's 11-month civil war and there were indications a cease-fire was in the making.

Former Premier Saeb Salam, after conferring with Socialist party leader Kamal Jumblatt Wednesday, said he thought a cease-fire was imminent. But Jumblatt later said that optimism was premature, telling reporters "not to be in such a hurry," for a truce.

Heavenly Wish for Jim, 105

NEW PORT RICHEY, Fla. (UPI)—There are two things James Cole wants to do: go fishing and go to Heaven.

Cole, who turned 105 Wednesday, says he longs to be reunited with his wife, Marie, who died 11 years ago at the age of 90.

"I like being alive and 105, but I would like to die and see my wife," he said. Her picture is taped to a wall of his nursing home room and Cole says he kisses it every night before he retires.

A native of New York City, Cole said he has seven living children, 14 grandchildren, 28 great-grandchildren and 11 great-great-grandchildren.

"I always liked a good smoke and a good drink," he reminisced, puffing on a cigar. "Always loved beer — but everything in moderation."

"The only thing I didn't do in moderation was love my wife."

"There are two things I would like to do," Cole said. "I would like to go fishing. Love to go fishing. But the thing I would really like to do is go to Heaven."

Having had operations for removal of cataracts on both eyes, Cole is nearly blind and he no longer has his teeth.

"I hid my teeth under my pillow and somebody took all my linen and shipped it to the laundry," he explained. "Never did see my teeth again."

Upstate Man Is Seized

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI) — The Buffalo office of the FBI said today that a Niagara Falls, N.Y., man has been arrested in Mansfield, Ohio, on a warrant charging him with leaving the New York State to avoid prosecution.

The FBI said Raymond Lewis Smith, 26, was indicted by an Erie County grand jury in Buffalo on April 26, 1974, on charges of second degree robbery and third degree grand larceny. He and another man were accused of taking an auto, credit cards and money from a Buffalo-area resident, the FBI said.

A federal warrant was issued for his arrest on March 3, 1976.

Smith was to be arraigned before a U.S. magistrate in Cleveland.

His Niagara Falls address was given as 3710 Highland Ave.

Long Ordeal Almost Over

TRENTON, N.J. (UPI) — Joseph Quinlan, with the sanction of New Jersey's highest court, says he will seek medical permission to remove his daughter, Karen Ann, from a life-supporting machine and let her "die with dignity."

The New Jersey Supreme Court ruled 7-0 Wednesday that a respirator which has kept the comatose 22-year-old Miss Quinlan alive for nearly a year may be turned off if doctors and a hospital ethics committee find there is "no reasonable possibility" of her recovery.

"We don't consider this a victory," said Karen's mother, Julia, through her tears. "We are going to lose our daughter. But this is the way we want our daughter's life to end."

Karen's parents, both Roman Catholics, told a news conference they would consult doctors today about a medical panel acceptable to the ethics committee of St. Clare's Hospital.

Karen has lain there in a coma, bent into a fetal position, her weight reduced from 120 to 60 pounds, since April 15, 1975, after apparently mixing alcohol and barbituates at a party.

"This was the decision we've been praying for from the time we entered the courts," said Joseph Quinlan in announcing his move to obtain the approval to let his daughter "die with dignity."

Chief Justice Richard Hughes wrote, "We have no hesitancy in deciding that no external compelling interest of the state could compel Karen to endure the unendurable, only to vegetate a few measurable months with no realistic possibility of returning to any

The Parents . . . No Victory

semblance of cognitive or sapient life."

He added, "The ensuing death would not be homicide but rather expiration from existing natural causes."

The court said doctors who originally refused the Quinlans' request to remove the respirator may feel differently because "we assume that she is now even more fragile and nearer to death."

If they still disagree, the court said, her father may find other acceptable doctors "who may take a different view."

Quinlan told reporters he wanted the respirator disconnected in the presence of the family and their priest.

State Attorney General William Hyland called the decision "highly compassionate" and said an appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court was unlikely.

Carey School $ Veto . . . Rumblings Continue

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — Gov. Hugh Carey stands a good chance of becoming the state's first chief executive in 104 years to have his veto of a bill overturned by the legislature.

In the process, he has created issues that could assure the re-election of some Democratic assemblymen and will give Senate Republicans ammunition to use this fall to unseat incumbents in marginal districts.

The Senate and Assembly, in separate actions Wednesday night, took the first steps toward overriding two Carey vetoes, both relating to education spending.

A move in the Assembly to pass into law a measure rejected by the governor was approved 128 to 18, with 28 votes more than the two-thirds needed with the Democratic majority voting solidly to rebuke the Democratic governor.

The bill would limit New York City's ability to cut its school budget as officials looked for further economies to cure fiscal problems.

In the Senate, the Republican majority, even with the help of three Democrats, failed by five votes to overturn Carey's veto of the distribution formula for $116 million in state aid to schools.

However, two GOP senators were absent and the Republican strategy was that pressure supplied from home districts and from teachers' union officials would prompt three more Democrats to switch their votes.

The school aid formula was tabled after the unsuccessful vote and the GOP planned to bring it up for reconsideration next Thursday, the same day on which the Senate could vote into law the New York City school budget bill.

The Senate vote was 35 to override and 20 against after more than three hours of debate, during which angry state lawmakers called Carey "a welcher," "a horse thief," "a liar" and "dishonest." At least 40 votes were needed.

Several lawmakers charged that Carey had violated a pledge when he vetoed the formula, which was a key part of a $10.781 billion state budget agreed to after extensive negotiations.

Senate Majority Leader Warren Anderson, R-Binghamton, led the fight to pass the formula into law over Carey's veto. He said Carey was "the first governor that has ever gone back on a promise to me."

All Democrats except Sens. Linda Winikow of Spring Valley, Karen Burstein of Queens, and Carol Bellamy of Brooklyn refused to go against the governor.

Hubert Isn't, But Would

A group of big city mayors provided a forum today for four Democratic presidential hopefuls to state their views on what should be done about the nation's urban problems, and Ronald Reagan sorted through Republican reaction to his televised nationwide address.

The National Conference of Democratic Mayors was gathering in New York for a question-and-answer session with Henry Jackson, Morris Udall, Jimmy Carter and Frank Church, to be followed by a speech from Hubert Humphrey, who says he isn't a candidate but wouldn't mind being the nominee.

A state convention of South Carolina Democrats agreed Wednesday night to send nine delegates to the national convention committed to Carter, eight committed to George Wallace, one committed to Church — his first — and 13 uncommitted.

On the GOP front, Ronald Reagan told a nationwide television audience Wednesday night that because of President Ford's foreign policy "our nation is in danger, and the danger grows greater with each passing day."

Without mentioning his challenger by name, Ford suggested to nearly 1,000 Republicans at a $1,000 a plate dinner in Washington that Reagan was hurting party unity.

"I am always campaigning for the unity of this party," Ford said. "That has been my philosophy and my practice and I will not abandon it in 1976."

Ford's campaign committee, dismissing Reagan's talk as a "basic stump speech," said: "There is nothing new in it."

There was one thing new, but Reagan didn't say it. The moment he quit talking, an announcer told viewers how to send money. Reagan hopes to gather enough funds for a strong bid in primaries in the South and West in early May.

Reagan will seek support in Tuesday's Wisconsin primary with a statewide television address this weekend — similar to a statewide television appeal that preceded last week's North Carolina triumph.

Ford plans to campaign in Wisconsin during the weekend. Reagan's state manager said there was a slight chance Reagan will be in the state Monday.

Mayor Richard Daley, yet to endorse a candidate, said in Chicago Carter "has a potential to be a candidate and a good candidate." Daley said Democrats should quit looking for a "super candidate" and recognize that "there's something in the office that elevates a man and his thinking."

Carter, campaigning in Wisconsin, said the Democrats could suffer from efforts to deadlock the national convention.

"Trying to contrive a brokered convention would be making a serious mistake for the party and the country," Carter said. "It might be the one factor that keeps us from winning this fall."

Udall, campaigning in upstate New York, predicted he would beat Carter for first place in Wisconsin and finish a "strong second" to Jackson the same day in New York.

Udall drew big crowds in Rochester but was snubbed by Democratic legislators in Albany. "Out, out, out of the room," they shouted when Udall and his entourage showed up for a scheduled address to a Democratic caucus.

Gov. Hugh Carey then granted Udall a visit but refused to leave his office to pose with the candidate for photographers.

Wallace said he would cut his Wisconsin campaign short and spend the weekend in Montgomery. "I'm the governor of Alabama and I have things to do," he explained.

Nixon Not in Kingston

KINGSTON—Informed sources said today that there was absolutely no truth to the recent report that former President Richard M. Nixon was planning a press conference for today at the Stockade Restaurant here.

According to the report, Nixon, regarding Kingston as one of our country's great historical sites, as to announce plans that he would pursue, through the courts, a reinstatement of his rights to run for the Presidency in this Bicentennial year, if either party could not come up with a "candidate of the people."

However, it was later reported, through informed sources, that the rumor just wasn't true. Nixon had not planned to come to Kingston, or any other part of Ulster County, to make his earth-shattering announcement.

One source close to the scene said that the rumor may have started because earlier this year, Mrs. Patricia Nixon and daughter, Tricia, had reportedly motored from New York City to have lunch "somewhere in upstate New York."

At the time, many thought that they had been spotted eating in their limousine in the parking lot at the Jack-In-The-Box on Broadway. However, this report was dispelled when it was noted that Mrs. Nixon has an aversion to tacos and hot sauce.

If one thing seems to make the rumor of Nixon's arrival seem more like fact, it is the statement the former President allegedly made before retiring one night a few weeks ago: "Honey, why would a nice, historic town like Kingston, with all its rich historical background, have a Democratic mayor and aldermen-at-large? Haven't they learned anything since 1776?"

Sources of informed sources close to the former Chief Executive later said that Nixon hadn't made that remark either. A 10-second gap in the tapes made of conversations in the Nixons' boudoir bear this out, informed sources said today, April 1.

CONNELLY—A 22-year-old Connelly man who had been free on bail while awaiting sentencing on a burglary charge was arrested late Wednesday for first degree robbery and first degree reckless endangerment in connection with a March 21 armed holdup at the Lake Katrine Convenient Food Mart during which a blast was fired from a sawed-off shotgun carried by the robber.

Authorities said the arrest of Robert J. Sauers Jr. at 11:35 p.m. at his residence was the result of combined efforts by Hurley State Police and the Kingston Police Department detectives.

Police had been seeking the lone holdup man who fled with some $150 from the Lake Katrine store after firing a shot that reportedly narrowly missed the woman store manager during the late night hours of March 21.

Arraigned before Esopus Town Justice Robert Jordan, Sauers was ordered confined without bail pending further court action.

At the time of his arrest Wednesday Sauers was free on $600 bail while awaiting sentencing in Ulster County Court on a charge of third degree burglary to which he had pleaded guilty on Feb. 11. Sauers had been charged along with two 19-year-olds in connection with a December 1975 break-in at a building owned by the Coach House Players, Inc. in Kingston during which a fire broke out, causing some $64,000 in damage to the building.

Lawmakers Zero in on Economic Targets

By Lynn Mulvaney

KINGSTON—Ulster County Legislators, with a bead on the budget, will target in on ways and means of placing stop-gap measures on spending by proposing reductions in present services, personnel and welfare allowances.

An unprecedented number of resolutions all dealing with the county's severe economic conditions are on the agenda for the April 8 meeting of the board in the County Office Building.

A call for departmental studies with an eye toward curtailing or eliminating services is proposed by Thomas Roach, R-Dist. 8, while Philip H. Davis, R-Dist. 7, wants the county to request the state and federal government to reduce welfare allowances by 25 per cent.

Consolidating or deleting departments or department functions is suggested by Minority Leader Louis M. Klein, D-Dist. 6, who is also seeking support for extension of the public works and economic development act in order to combat unemployment.

A capital improvement plan in order to anticipate capital expenditures is proposed by Majority Leader Ernest J. Gardner, R-Dist. 5, who also wants the state to exempt the county from making changes in facility improvements which it had mandated.

The County Treasurer's Committee will seek added revenue by selling county-owned property acquired at a tax sale, at public auction. Chairman William R. West, R-Dist. 2, said the property in question is not required for public use.

Although the county legislature voted last month in favor of requesting state legislation for an increase in sales tax in Ulster County, Klein has offered a new proposal seeking a similar tax to be applied as a direct reduction of property taxes in the 1977 budget.

He is also calling for a priority schedule for capital improvement projects and a study of support for congressional passage of supplemental appropriations for a public works project aimed at employment.

Money also plays a major part in other measures including West's proposal that the county hire a labor relations firm to negotiate new contracts between the county and Ulster County Unit, CSEA and the Ulster County Sheriff's Employees Association which are due to expire Dec. 31.

Legislature Chairman Peter J. Savago, R-Dist. 8, noting that the county's contract with Ulster County Community College Faculty Association, also expires on Aug. 31, has appointed a committee to conduct negotiations between the county and all employees. The county board is expected to confirm the appointing of West as chairman. Serving on the committee will be Charles Scala Jr., R-Dist. 3, John H. Dwyer, D-City, Roach and Klein.

The Community College Committee will request that state aid for community colleges be restored. Chairman Stephen Hyatt, R-Dist. 5, also wants the state legislature to waive the present restriction of not allowing student tuition revenues to exceed one-third of the new operational budget.

Other measures to come up for approval include the awarding of an $8,760 contract for the demolition of the Buick Garage adjacent to the County Office Building to low bidder, Harry A. Lowe. Spinnenweber Construction was high with $26,700. Five bids were received.

Hearings for discharged county employees with provisional status is being called for by Kathleen Quick, D-City, and Klein; and the Public Health Committee seeks authorization for he hiring of an administrative officer to replace Michael Wood, who resigned from the post in Ulster County Mental Health Services.

The Trucks Stop Rolling

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS, Ill. (UPI) — Teamster trucks stopped rolling early today and much of the nation's economy could stop with them in the next few days if the first nationwide Teamsters strike in history is not settled soon.

Teamsters Local 445—with 1,500 members in Ulster, Dutchess, Orange and Sullivan Counties—were prepared to stop their rigs today if a settlement with the trucking industry was not reached. A local 445 strike could cripple some 50 trucking firms in the Mid-Hudson Valley, including four of the largest freight haulers in the nation. Local 445 members overwhelmingly rejected a trucking industry offer last Sunday.

Negotiators worked to the wire early today but failed to reach an agreement to avert a strike by 400,000 Teamsters, who haul 60 per cent of the nation's manufactured goods.

Negotiations aimed at settling the walkout stalled early today. Labor Secretary W.J. Usery remained in town for another meeting today between the two sides.

Teamsters President Frank Fitzsimmons said the meeting would be held "to see if there is any change in the industry's position."

"We are in the ballpark to be able to conclude an agreement," he said.

The walkout threatened to halt auto assembly lines and trigger shortages of foodstuffs and gasolines.

Labor Department sources said President Ford would declare a state of emergency and invoke an 80-day cooling off period under the Taft-Hartley Act. However, other sources said the President would wait three or four days before seeking a Taft-Hartley injunction.

A handful of Teamsters covered by the national agreement remained on their jobs under a series of interim agreements reached at the local level. But the vast majority were off the road.

Fitzsimmons told reporters: "As far as I'm concerned we put everybody on record that if we did not conclude an agreement by midnight March 31 we would not work."

Bill McIntyre, President of Trucking Employers Inc., which represents the industry, said talks broke down because "the offer of one side has not matched the demands of the other."

He said TEI had made a counteroffer to Teamster negotiators but would not elaborate.

'Mom and Pop Stores' in Mutual Protection

By Carl Graham
PORT EWEN—Threatened by chain store domination and concerned over the state's present blue laws, a group of independent neighborhood retailers met at the Dolphin Inn in Port Ewen Wednesday night and formed a mutual protection association.

The group, which formally adopted the name of Association of Independent Retailers, elected Fred Schoonmaker of the Hurley Corner Store as its president.

Although the original intent was to fight the blue laws that they feel discriminate against small businessmen, Schoonmaker emphasized that AIR's objectives would be much broader. He cited such benefits as group discount rates on insurance, advertising and purchasing, group legal services, increased political "clout" and educating the public on the problems facing small businessmen.

Other officers named to get the fledgling association going were Fred Moon of the Town Pantry in High Falls, vice-president; Ann Gentilin of Mower's Market in Woodstock, secretary and Joseph Vaccaro of Vaccaro's Market in Highland, treasurer.

The group voted a $5 monthly membership fee and named Lenny Price, a Kingston antique dealer, to head a committee to draw up bylaws.

Moon pointed out that most retailer's organizations are national in scope and that the average small merchant has little contact with them. "I think we need a local organization, and 'local' is the key word," he said.

Nat Gadaletto, father of Stephen Gadaletto, owner of Gadaletto's Market in Highland, said that he is thinking of bringing suit against District Attorney Francis J. Vogt for discrimination. Gadaletto said that Vogt had brought charges against him in 1974 for selling meat and groceries on Sunday, but that he was found not guilty in town justice court.

"Then he (Vogt) had charges against Grand Union thrown out of court," Gadaletto said. "Your case is one of the reasons we decided to form this association," Moon said.

The Grand Union charges referred to by Gadaletto occurred in February when his son, Stephen, filed a complaint against Don Juhl, manager of the Highland Grand Union store, for keeping his business open on Sunday. Town Justice Louis DiStasi dismissed the charges Feb. 28 when Vogt said that he would no longer prosecute blue law violations.

Vogt's announcement came after State Supreme Court Justice Joseph Kuszyński of Buffalo ruled the blue laws unconstitutional, although Vogt had announced earlier that he would not prosecute such cases.

An earlier announced goal of AIR was legislation that would allow individually owned stores to remain open on the Sabbath if they chose but which would force large chain stores to remain closed, but the State Court of Appeals, ruling on another case arising in Buffalo last year, decided that selective enforcement of blue laws denies equal protection under the law and reversed convictions against several chain stores.

AIR will meet again on Wednesday, April 14, in the Dolphin Inn, beginning at 8:30 p.m., to hear the report of the bylaws committee and to make plans for a membership drive to encompass all areas of the county.

KURA: Dealt in Good Faith

By Hugh Reynolds

KINGSTON—The Kingston Urban Renewal Agency insists it dealt in good faith with would-be developer Roland Augustine and that if there were any delays, as charged by Augustine, they were on the part of the developer, not the agency.

"If Augustine is unable to negotiate leases with his tenants he shouldn't blame the urban renewal agency," said KURA executive director James C. Connors.

The dispute between the agency and Augustine over redevelopment of the five-acre Parcel-17 at the corner of Washington and Hurley avenues was made public Tuesday by the Freeman when Augustine accused the agency of "delaying tactics" which he said thwarted his plans to build a $2.2 million office complex with a bank on that parcel.

Augustine leveled two other charges: that the agency refused to give him a firm price on the land and that the price indicated ($200,000) was far in excess of the price it was offered to James Andretta three years ago for a similar project.

He has said further that the urban renewal agency made unreasonable demands on him regarding parking, making his project economically untenable.

The entire matter was discussed at a meeting of the Common Council Tuesday night at City Hall where both sides presented their views.

Connors tells the Freeman that after the decision was made last October to break up the 5.5-acre Parcel-17 and make it available to smaller subdivisions, the agency received inquiries from several parties, including Augustine.

Among those interested parties, said Connors, were the First National Bank of Highland, a group of doctors, a person seeking land for a funeral home complex, and, at a later date, the Rondout National Bank.

At one point, said Connors, some of the interested parties were considering developing the parcel together. A decision to go separately was made on Dec. 26, 1975.

Connors indicated that at about that time Augustine was discussing a proposal with the First National Bank of Highland. The agency's land use requirements allow the construction of banks but they must be part of a building of at least 50,000 square feet with the bank occupying no more than 20 per cent.

Augustine wanted a "free standing bank" which would have required not only a plan change but approval from the Rondout National Bank which was already an urban renewal redeveloper. (The bank had bought some urban renewal land across the street on Hurley Avenue and had planned to go into construction on an uptown branch this spring).

Connors said he met with James Dwyer, president of the Rondout National Bank on Jan. 6 on the possibility that the bank might want to move its location from Hurley Avenue to the corner of Washington and Hurley Avenues on Parcel-17. Connors said he explained the restrictions. "They called us, we didn't call them," Connors said.

During the next few weeks it became known that due to state banking laws, the First National Bank of Highland could not locate in that area in competition with Rondout National.

Augustine then began negotiating with Rondout National which had expressed interest in building on Parcel-17. The bank wrote Connors on Feb. 23 that it was reserving decision on the move to Parcel-17 until it could get some firm figures from the developer.

The bank also wrote, "We also should have a commitment from urban renewal that should be unable to arrive at acceptable terms with Mr. Augustine, that we could purchase the desired land at a fixed price."

Connors acknowledges Dwyer's letter on Feb. 27 and closes by stating, "Please let us know if you wish to be considered as your own developer or if you are able to work out an understanding with the proposed developer."

Augustine claims that the agency's answer to Dwyer indicates the agency's willingness to undercut his negotiations with the bank. Connors says he was merely responding to Dwyer's inquiry. "It was Roland's prospect," he said.

The subject of the price of the land comes up in a letter of March 12 from Connors to Augustine. In it, Connors states, "Subject to all necessary local, state and federal approvals this will confirm that we estimate the minimum land price to be $1 per square foot for the size of the parcel to accommodate your proposal."

That proposal, as detailed by Augustine Feb. 4, called for a pair of two-story office buildings with 20,000 square feet each and parking for 80 cars and a bank with parking for 25 cars on four acres.

The agency objected to Augustine's layout because it would make the remaining 1.5 acres of land fronting on Hurley Avenue "virtually unsalable." Connors sent Augustine's proposal to the agency's planner, Raymond, Raymond, Parish and Pine, who recommended "a more efficient use of the parcel," i.e. slightly over three acres with parking for 150 cars.

Peter Gives His View

KINGSTON—REPORTER: Hi, Pete. I've been sent out to do a man-on-the-street interview today and thought you might be willing to answer a few questions.

PETER STUYVESANT: Shoot, as we used to say in the old days.

REPORTER: My editors want to know if you approve of off-track betting as a means of raising funds today instead of taxes?

STUYVESANT: Taxes, taxes. Are they STILL talking about taxes? It seems to me that if people are still running around in circles all these years, they might as well let the horses, too.

REPORTER: Say Pete, Is it true what Joe Epstein says about Gov. George Clinton standing over here on Academy Green? That the guy has Hebrew ancestry?

STUYVESANT: Sure is. Says so right in the history books. Not only that, I hear Joe wants to name the downtown post office after him.

REPORTER: My editors would also like to know whether you think the City of Kingston should give Spring Lake residents some of its water?

STUYVESANT: Well, well, well now, let me see. Well... REPORTER: A few more wells Pete and they'll have enough water.

STUYVESANT: Don't be funny. It seems to me that this here being the Bicentennial, with the Spirit of '76 and all that, that a little old-fashioned neighborliness is in order. Seems to me that maybe they could all drink from the same well, or my leg isn't wooden.

REPORTER: Speaking of legs, I hear legend has it that your wooden leg isn't wooden at all, that it is silver.

STUYVESANT: Shhhh! With all the muggers and robbers running around these days, and me standing here so vulnerable on Academy Green, if it gets around that this here leg is silver, well, I may find myself being bartered for a nickel bag.

REPORTER: Seriously Pete. Wouldn't you think a paper like the Daily Freeman could do better than this on April Fool's Day?

STUYVESANT: No way. As I used to tell the New Netherlands before I surrendered the colony to England, "April Fools have a day all their own, but the rest of us just muddle along without any recognition."

A Beautiful Man

Those are the words most people use to describe Andrew J. Murphy III (Andy), who is officially retiring today as head of this city's recreation department.

Most of this city's residents have benefited by Mr. Murphy's tenure (since 1958) as superintendent of recreation. If you've played softball, basketball, tennis or if you've been a spectator sport. If you've had children participate in the gigantic summer program.

Mr. Murphy has been a giant among recreation people in this state. As a former athlete himself, he knew what to put into a program, which in Kingston, has always been short of necessary funds. He has worked with a shortage of personnel, has forsaken many a vacation to stay around and supervise when he thought it was necessary.

While most cities the same size as Kingston have two and even three full-time people running the rec program, Mr. Murphy has carried the ball by himself for many years.

As well as being a competent administrator, this same Mr. Murphy, has always been a gentleman. He has never had a bad word about anyone and in most cases, has always said "yes" to a friend even though a "no" answer would have been easier.

We don't know who will try to fill Mr. Murphy's big shoes but we hope that Mayor Francis R. Koenig will set the wheels in motion quickly to go about getting a permanent replacement.

There's an old saying which we think applies to Mr. Murphy. After he was born, they threw away the mold.

His retirement has been well earned and we wish him well.

Scare Tactics

Dear Editor:

Is there a solution to the problem facing The Kingston Consolidated School District? It would seem obvious to anyone present at the School Board meeting on March 4, that their can be no satisfactory solution, without the Board Stepping on someones toes.

It is obvious that the "educators" and their dupes of the various PTO's have resorted to scare tactics in order to brainwash the parents of the children in certain schools into believing that the only just solution to the problem is a new high school. These masters of deceit apparently think it is permissible to spread false rumors and facts in order to achieve this goal. They know that if you can raise a person's emotions and make him hysterical, he can be lead and controlled like a bull with a ring in his nose. This they are doing quite well as they attempt to brow beat the School Board into submission. In the final analysis the parents will learn that these educators have used and tricked them. Any parents who think their neighborhood school will be saved if a new high school is built will learn shortly there after that several of the elementary schools will have to be closed as a result of a decline in enrollments.

I may have lost touch with what goes on in a seventh grade classroom, but I am in complete contact with the everyday world we live in. These elite, intellectual educators are so wrapped up in their drive to enlarge their cocoon as they strive to keep up with the reckless spendthrift programs suggested by the social planners, fail to realize that the taxpayers can not afford a new high school. They seem to think that us poor taxpayers are all rolling in money and that we can easily afford the outlandish country club, which they want to build and call a high school.

Apparently they haven't noticed that this country is strapped with rampant inflation and a recession, with double digit unemployment. We are on the verge of a depression that will make the depression of the 30's look like prosperity.

Maybe we will need a new high school in fifteen or twenty years, but why build it now if we will be closing three or four elementary schools in a year or two and one of our junior high schools in five or six years? The only reason seems to be so a certain few will have a free place to play tennis and go swimming in the winter.

For God and Country, I remain,

Raps Hinchey's Idea

Dear Editor:

Maurice Hinchey, Assemblyman from Ulster county is dedicated to the creation of a Catskill Agency similar to the Adirondack Park Agency, now engulfed in serious private land use and economic problems.

Assemblyman Hinchey is sponsoring the dictates of former Governor Nelson Rockefeller who in his State of the State Message in 1973, asked for the passage of the Adirondack Plan, and the creation of a Catskill Park.

Governor Rockefeller has left us a legacy of indebtedness with his social reforms, taxation, the south mall and environmental regulations that has caused New York State to become the highest taxed state in the nation and has caused industries to flee the state.

Rocky ran away from his job as governor, with all of his blunder, and now Mr. Hinchey is implementing and supporting Rocky's expensive and regulating ideas for the creation of a Catskill Park Region.

Mr. Hinchey should resign as Assemblyman, the Catskill Region would be better off without him.

At a meeting of the Environment! Planning Lobby, on Tuesday, March 16th, at the Quality Inn, Albany, Assemblyman Hinchey stated that he favored the creation of the Catskill Park Region with private land use planning and an economic development program for the Catskills.

Mr. Hinchey does not have the support of other Assemblymen and Senators in the Catskills—one legislator said 99% of the people in the Catskills do not want a Catskill Park Region, (7 counties). Mr. Hinchey relies on his New York City brethren to pass a bill in the 1976 legislature creating a Catskill Park Region in direct opposition to the wishes of the people who live, pay taxes and are directly concerned with the Catskills.

The Constitutional Rights Association opposes Mr. Hinchey's scheme to create a Catskill Park Region and we believe that Government is best—which Governs the least.

Too Much Meat

Dear Editor:

Can you explain why the stores in this city package all their meats in such large packages? No one can buy a pound of steak or a pound of hamburger. It is not fair to old people on Social Security, on a two hundred dollar a month income. You have to pay rent, light, phone and pay to heat your house and the rents are not cheap in this town. So you have to buy three dollars of meat or go without it when you live alone. You don't want $3 of the same kind of meat.

I just came back from a visit to my daughter. She lives in Florida. There is a store in her town that caters to the people who live alone. You can buy two pork chops or a half pound of hamburger or a pound of steak.

Here they do not care what the old people get to eat. After you pay your rent, light and gas you do not have any money for food and it's time that the economy tries to help the old people. It would not cost them a dime to be a little thoughtful. It would bring a lot of trade from the Social Security people and make them very happy and healthy and a word from one to the other would bring a bigger trade to the store that would try this method.

Thank you for reading this letter.
I remain respectfully a reader of your paper.

I don't know when perspective is going to set in, but until it does, read me, pray, out of that fraternity of self-adulators who surround Woodward and Bernstein as the exemplars of a new journalism fired by ethical concern. I haven't seen the movie, but it is an ironic masterstroke that it should star Robert Redford. The last time out on the boards, Redford was a CIA agent who was finally revolted by his profession. Now he is born again, unburdened of doubts: I Was A Spy For Woodward & Bernstein, And Found Out All About Pat Nixon's Sex Life.

Attempt, for a moment, to recapture perspective. A gang of over-zealous Republican pols decide they should find out what is going on in Democratic headquarters, and to that end organize a team to burglarize those offices and bring out information that might be politically useful. The end result of that attempted invasion of the professional privacy of Lawrence O'Brien was a dozen people in jail, and the resignation of a President of the United States, the first time in history.

The reputation, meanwhile, of the only prominent surviving Cabinet member of that Administration has been under constant attack because he had a hand — how direct, we do not know — in expediting a dozen telephone taps that sought to isolate the sources of leaks of national security information. It is ceaselessly pointed out by the critics that one or two of the people whose telephones were tapped were in no visible way connected with national security matters, giving rise to the possibility that a Republican Administration had a prurient interest in the private affairs of these men. Notwithstanding these events, about which the contention continues, one fact does stand out. It is that not a single personal detail about he lives of the tappees has ever seen public print. Mr. Morton Halperin is engaged in an extensive civil lawsuit against Henry Kissinger, the abstract merits of which are here extraneous. It remains a fact that the public knows not a single thing about Morton Halperin's sex life, his religious habits, his alcoholic intake, or even whether, at night, he is given to fantasizing conversations with Thomas Jefferson.

It is with this background that one judges the activities of the identical bunch of people identified with the investigation that brought down a President — featuring their invasions of privacy. The difference between Richard Nixon and Mrs. Graham is that he was an unsuccessful snoop with a finite curiosity about human weaknesses; while she, as employer and now as purveyor, is sponsor of successful snoops, whose curiosity is entirely unlimited. Perhaps their imagination is an unlimited as their prurience.

We cannot know how much of the current garbage about Richard Nixon has been fabricated. It hardly matters. It matters very much that Nixon has to skulk out the rest of his life and the Woman of the Century Awards take out advertising space telling you how, by merely buying their product, you can learn everything about the private lives of Richard and Patricia Nixon.

It is alleged that, on that final evening, after he had reported to the American people that on the very next day, at noon, he would resign the Presidency of the United States, Richard Nixon called Henry Kissinger to the White House. Kissinger — it is said — saw a broken man. It's not clear what else he might have been expected to see. And that Richard Nixon turned to Kissinger and expressed himself as an imperfect Christian, even as Kissinger was an imperfect Jew, and suggested that they go down on their knees, and pray for help.

One gathers that this is the act from which one is encouraged to deduce that Nixon was really bonkers. Praying! On your knees! I mean, it's not what the British call PLU (People Like Us). The profiteers of this last go around against Nixon had better get down on their knees and pray that the Lord is infinitely merciful, because if He is anything less than that, they are in trouble.

Nobody Bribes The United States

WASHINGTON — One of the big problems in a national election is money. Most of the presidential candidates who have dropped out have said they did it because the well ran dry. Maccabee, a friend of mine, is very bitter about the system and blames our allies for this.

"Whenever a foreign country has an election the United States gives their politicians money. Why don't they give us money when we have an election?"

"Well, for one thing, Maccabee, it's against the law."

"It's against the law in their countries, too, but that doesn't seem to stop the CIA from financing elections all over the world. Look at Italy. The CIA has poured millions of dollars into Italian elections. You would think Italy would show its gratitude by giving our politicians some money in exchange. After all, friendship isn't a one-way street."

"I don't think you understand," I said. "The reason we support politicians in Italy is so that the country won't go Communist. It's to our interest to see the wrong government doesn't get in. Italy has nothing to fear from us no matter which party wins, so there is no reason for her secret service to bribe any of our candidates."

"That's just an excuse. I think the Italians are cheap. They don't want to spend a nickel on our elections. All their politicians know how to do is take money from us. But when the shoe is on the other foot and our candidates are going broke they look the other way. I think we should pass a law which says that we don't interfere in any country's elections unless they're willing to interfere in ours."

"That's not fair," I told Maccabee. "Most of the politicians we've supported in other countries have accepted money from the CIA on the condition they wouldn't have to give it back. How would we look if we went to a foreign dictator and said 'Look, we've put you in office. Now it's your turn to give us the wherewithal to put one of

Rumsfeld Wins Opener

WASHINGTON — With quiet efficiency, the new Secretary of Defense Donald Rumsfeld has quickly solidified his control over the Pentagon and has won a bureaucratic battle lost by his purged predecessor James Schlesinger.

Rumsfeld began changing the guard at the Pentagon shortly after he moved in. This is an exercise in political patronage that usually causes a great ruffling of feathers. But Rumsfeld is accomplishing the changeover smoothly, with scarcely a feather out of place.

Six top Pentagon aides have been shown the door by Rumsfeld and at least two more will soon be asked to depart. Five others have shifted jobs in a maneuver that has impressed the Pentagon brass that their new boss will be calling the signals. Six new arrivals have moved into the secretariat and another is waiting in the wings.

But what has impressed the Pentagon crowd the most is the way Rumsfeld neatly outmaneuvered Secretary of State Henry Kissinger in a bureaucratic power play. Kissinger was hostile to Robert Ellsworth, an aggressive assistant defense secretary, who was in charge of "international affairs." His office was commonly called "the Pentagon's State Department."

Ellsworth sometimes clashed with Kissinger over foreign policy. This opposition had the support of Kissinger's old nemesis, James Schlesinger, who tried to elevate Ellsworth to deputy defense secretary. Our sources say Kissinger quietly blocked the promotion, fearing this would enhance Ellsworth's influence on foreign affairs.

State Dept. officials insist, however, that Kissinger simply didn't want another deputy defense secretary. He was opposed for efficiency, not personal reasons, the officials said.

Schlesinger hadn't been out of the Pentagon long, however, before Rumsfeld quietly moved Ellsworth into the deputy secretary's post. Rumsfeld was able to draw on his close personal relationship with President Ford to overcome Kissinger's opposition.

Indeed, Rumsfeld has also had quiet success in pushing other Pentagon projects that brought Schlesinger under heavy fire. A former Schlesinger man told us with some awe that "Rumsfeld is out-Schlesingering Schlesinger."

The Washington-wise Rumsfeld, however, knows when to give ground. Unlike Schlesinger, who stood up to Senate Appropriations Chairman John McClellan, D.-Ark., Rumsfeld carefully appeased the crotchety old McClellan.

Schlesinger made the mistake of fighting too vigorously against budgetary excesses. He worked through Assistant Secretary Leonard Sullivan, who headed the Pentagon's Program Analysis and Evaluation office. Sullivan antagonized the military brass by slashing their pet projects.

Sen. McClellan usually sympathized gruffly with the military brass when they came crying to him about cutbacks. Sullivan, therefore, soon found himself in a dangerous confrontation with the powerful McClellan.

Schlesinger stood staunchly behind his man Sullivan, thus getting the evil eye himself. The more astute Rumsfeld quickly concluded that Sullivan was expendable and gave him his two-week's notice.

This has placated the irascible Senate Appropriations chairman and has brought triumphant grins to the faces of a few generals and admirals. But the budget watchers in the PAE office have found themselves stripped of power and reorganized into near impotency. "The frustration level" inside the PAE, says a source, "is kind of high."

The men who have left the Pentagon, in addition to Sullivan, are Assistant Secretaries James Cowan, Joseph Laitin, John Maury, Albert Hall and Deputy Assistant Secretary Vice Adm. Earl Rectanus.

Sullivan's principal deputy John Christie and Navy Undersecretary D.S. Potter are also on their way out. The Defense research director, Malcolm Currie, censured for accepting gratuities from a defense contractor, is also on shaky ground.

The six new arrivals, who have moved into positions of power around Rumsfeld, are Assistant Secretary William Greener, Assistant Secretary Frank Shrontz, Deputy Assistant Secretary Lt. Gen. Samuel Wilson, Deputy Assistant Secretary Tod Hullin, general counsel Rich Wiley and telecommunications director Richard Shriver.

Eugene McAuliffe, the ambassador to Hungary, is waiting for Senate approval before joining Rumsfeld as an assistant defense secretary.

DEADLY COVER-UP: U.S. officials cooperated last month to cover up a pesticide epidemic which killed 17 people in Jamaica.

The story is told in an Environmental Protection Agency memo intended for official eyes only.

On Feb. 6, 1976, the memo states, the EPA "was informed of a pesticide incident which occurred in Jamaica ... A ship of German registry ... delivered flour or grain contaminated with parathion to the island of Jamaica. Bread was subsequently made with the contaminated flour, resulting in 16-17 deaths by early report."

Drs. Renate Kimbrough and Phil Andriag from the U.S. disease control center in Atlanta were invited to Jamaica "to assist in the investigation of the incident."

"At the request of the various governments involved," states the memo, "Dr. Kimbrough asked that the incident not be publicized. The situation is under control and the resulting publicity could significantly impact the Jamaican economy. The U.S. embassy is aware of the situation"

The contaminated flour, we have learned, was imported from West Germany on the vessel Heideberg.

Gallup Poll

Jimmy, Jerry Virtual Tie In National Test Voting

By George Gallup

PRINCETON, N.J. — President Gerald Ford has moved into a virtual tie with Jimmy Carter following the Illinois primary, after having trailed the former Georgia governor two weeks ago.

In the latest nationwide survey, Carter wins the support of 45 per cent of registered voters compared to 46 per cent for Ford. Carter led the President, 47 to 42 per cent, in a survey completed between the Florida and Illinois primaries.

At the same time, Sen. Hubert Humphrey runs Ford a close race. Ford, however, enjoys an 11-point lead over another potential Democratic opponent, Sen. Henry Jackson, 52 to 41 per cent.

As reported by the Gallup Poll this week, Humphrey and Carter are currently the two top choices of Democratic voters across the nation to be their party's nominee this year. Humphrey is chosen by 30 per cent of the Democratic rank-and-file for the nomination while Carter has about the same support — 25 per cent. Jackson is fourth on the list of Democratic choices, the favorite of 11 per cent.

Ford Gains

Analysis of the latest results shows Ford has made his gains on Carter by winning a larger share of the independent vote than he did before the Illinois race and — following his fifth consecutive primary win over challenger Ronald Reagan — by increasing his support among his own party members.

Although Carter does better against Ford among independents than does either Humphrey or Jackson, the President nevertheless has a 52 to 37 per cent edge over Carter with this important bloc of voters.

Also, while Carter continues to generate more appeal among young voters against

Ford than either of the two other Democrats tested, he no longer enjoys the 2-to-1 margin he had over the President in the previous survey with people under 30 years old.

Here is the question asked of all registered voters:

"Suppose the presidential election were being held today. If President Gerald Ford were the Republican candidate and Jimmy Carter were the Democratic candidate, which would you like to see win?" (The same question was asked posing Humphrey and Jackson as the Democratic candidate.)

Here are the latest results for all three races as well as the trend for this year.

Ford vs. Carter

The results reported today are based on personal interviews with 1,052 registered voters out of a total sample of 1,487 adults, 18 and older, taken in more than 300 scientifically selected localities during the period March 19-21.

Teamsters Are Moving Into the Government

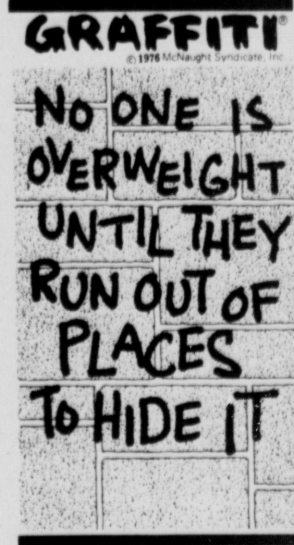

WASHINGTON—Nine months have passed since Jimmy Hoffa disappeared and the Federal Bureau of Investigation is nowhere close to solving Hoffa's murder. A "sizeable number" of FBI agents still work on the Hoffa case, mostly in Detroit. The FBI hasn't given up hope of finding Hoffa's body. It still pursues leads and eliminates suspects. But it has made no progress that FBI headquarters here considers encouraging. Hoffa's murder was a professional job. The profession that did the job is organized crime. And the job is in the tradition of criminal infestation of the Teamsters. Extraordinarily, the federal government never has been able to lay a hand on the Teamsters and Hoffa's murder is the perfect crime. More extraordinarily, the Teamsters have been able to lay a hand on the federal government. And, most extraordinarily, the Teamsters' hand has been assisted by President Ford. The background of this extraordinary story is that Teamster and other unions are fighting each other to sign up government employees—federal, state and local—of all kinds. Some five million local and state employees and at least 680,000 federal employees already belong to unions. The Teamsters, however, seem most interested in signing up government law enforcement employees. When Hoffa still was Teamster boss a decade ago, he directed the union to begin organizing local and state police, starting in his home state of Michigan. Today the Teamsters claim to represent 3,000 police officers in Michigan plus perhaps 12,000 local and state police from California to Minnesota to Virginia. Until Feb. 5, 1975, however, the Teamsters couldn't represent federal employees in police and security jobs. President Kennedy in 1962 signed the executive order allowing unions to represent federal employees, but with safeguards. The order excluded FBI employees. And it said other federal employees in police and security jobs could not be represented by a union, such as the Teamsters, that represented other types of federal workers. Federal police and security guards, therefore, had to have their own unions or no unions. On Feb. 6, 1975, Ford signed a supposedly technical and thus unnoticed amendment to the executive order. The amendment said that henceforth federal police and security guards could be represented by multiemployer unions, such as the Teamsters. When Ford retreated, the Teamsters advanced. Teamster officials in their white marble headquarters here won't say how many federal police and guards they've signed up. But government sources tell me the Teamsters have signed up hundreds of federal police and guards, such as the security guards at U. S. Navy bases in San Diego and Coronado, Calif., and at the Naval Electronics Laboratory at San Diego. The Teamsters now are organizing Federal Aviation Administration police officers at National Airport here. The Teamsters drive also is netting other federal employees, some raided from other unions. Recently the Teamsters won an election to represent 400 Armed Forces Exchange System employees in San Francisco. The Teamsters have organized the Federal Aviation Administration's 50 technicians who maintain air navigation facilities in Chicago. Unionization of any government employees, local, state or federal, raises profound questions. It's against the law almost everywhere for government workers to strike because a strike by public employees is a strike against the public. But local, state and even federal employees have struck, in violation of the law. Unionization of government law enforcement officers by the Teamsters Union raises frightening public questions. The Teamsters were expelled from the AFL-CIO for corruption in 1957 and Hoffa's murder confirms that crime and violence infest the Teamsters now more than ever. At best, Teamster representation of law enforcement officers raises the possibility of blackmail. At worst, it raises the possibility that criminal infestation of the union will infest government.

Military Aid to Chile Is Once Again an Issue

WASHINGTON, D.C.

Former President Richard Nixon finally admitted in a sworn statement to the Senate recently that he had ordered the Central Intelligence Agency to try to prevent a leftist government in Chile and didn't much care how it was done.

It was the final confirmation, if something of an anticlimax, of one of the most sordid chapters in American foreign policy.

The current chapter isn't much nicer, except this time we're trying to be the good guys and Chile represents the bad guys. This week Congress is engaged on two fronts in an effort to stop U.S. military aid to the current Chilean government, a military regime widely believed to be one of the nastiest and most repressive in the world.

Dubious Distinction

A year ago, Congress bestowed upon Chile the dubious distinction of being the first country in modern peacetime to be denied credit for purchases of U.S. military hardware purely on the basis of humanitarian reasons. The Senate repeated the rebuke earlier this year, also forbidding government and commercial cash sales and terminating deliveries from orders placed long ago. Congressional experts estimate Chile has $121 million in such airplane orders now in the works. President Ford had requested $20 million in credits and $900,000 for military training in this year's budget.

But House opponents of military aid to Chile were too eager and proposed such sweeping punishment that the measure was defeated approximately 2 to 1. A Senate-House conference is attempting to work out the differences this week.

The House International Relations Committee also begins hearings this week on military aid for fiscal 1977, in which assistance to Chile will once again be an issue. Among the committee's witnesses will be three freshmen congressmen who recently returned from Chile—Democratic Reps. Toby Moffett of Connecticut, Thomas Harkin of Iowa, and George Miller of California.

The trio walked into a tense situation that is typical of current U.S.-Chilean relations. They had been invited to visit the country by Chilean officials and were permitted to move about freely and talk to whomever they wished, insofar as they could tell. But the day after they left the country a news story from Santiago announced that any resident who had discussed the government unfavorably with outsiders would be guilty of a crime.

Stone Wall

Inquiries from the State Department and the congressmen produced a stone wall from Chile. The Chilean embassy here denied such a policy and accused the congressmen of making false charges, which didn't improve the diplomatic climate. The congressmen suspect the story, accurate or not, was designed to intimidate them and force them to soften the account of their visit, during which they talked to families of prisoners.

They intend to push for an aid cut-off anyway. They said they had evidence of "widespread detention of individuals without trials, tortures, killings of junta opponents and the disappearance of thousands of persons."

It is peculiar that the congressmen were allowed to enter Chile in the first place, since the regime recently refused to admit United Nations and Organization of American States human rights commissions seeking to investigate reports of torture and murder.

Economic assistance to Chile continues, including about $55 million in Food for Peace funds this year. But that too is out of concern for human rights, since it is hoped most of it will actually reach the people of that very poor country—whereas it is certain the weapons and planes will do them no good.

Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, who has deplored the excesses of the Chile regime, has an opportunity to snub or boost Chile in June. He is scheduled to attend a high-level Organization of American States meeting there which, if he goes, is certain to be interpreted as tolerance of the regime. A State Department spokesman waffled last week, saying, "Whether we attend an OAS meeting has nothing to do with the internal situation. As far as we are concerned, we in no way condone the denial of human rights in Chile, but I think it's two separate issues."

Congress, however, where Kissinger is in increasing disfavor, is not likely to view it as two separate issues at all.

Foreign Commentary

Three Birds, One Stone

CAIRO (UPI) — China's move in giving Egypt 30 warplane engines and other spare parts for its predominantly Soviet-supplied arsenal kills three birds with one stone for the Peking government.

According to an authoritative diplomatic assessment, the action also undercuts criticism that President Anwar Sadat has swerved to the West.

Sadat disclosed China's help, which he said was free of charge, in an interview with the Italian news agency ANSA. The Egyptian state-run Middle East news agency said the Chinese gift also included "several thousand types of spare parts for planes in addition to some other equipment."

For China, diplomats say, this achieves three major aims:

— It goes some way toward helping Egypt to overhaul its Soviet-made MIG warplanes and other weapons which, in Sadat's own words, risked becoming "scrap iron" in 12 to 18 months because of a Soviet ban on new arms and spare parts to this country. It was mainly for this reason that Sadat abrogated his friendship and cooperation treaty with Moscow earlier this month.

— The situation afforded

China, locked in a serious ideological conflict with the Soviets for years, a golden opportunity to take a swipe at Moscow on the particularly sensitive issue of arms deliveries. Peking has previously attacked the Soviet Union as an arms merchant and in making its gift to Egypt, according to Sadat, the Chinese government said "We are no arms merchants."

— The gesture improves China's image in third-world countries and, by the same token, undermines Soviet standing by indirectly pinpointing Soviet use of arms as an instrument of pressure.

For Egypt, China's move is a welcome contribution to Cairo's desperate efforts to overcome a military dilemma which Sadat is now trying to solve by visiting West Europe.

Egyptian officials say Yugoslavia also has pitched in with spare parts and other assistance agreed at a Belgrade visit by War Minister Gen. Mohamed Gamassy just before cancellation of the treaty with the Soviets.

Diplomats say the deals with China and Yugoslavia, both Communist nations, show that Egypt is not relying on the West only to bail it out of military shortages.

Sadat decided in the middle of 1974 to diversify his arms sources and since then has made several transactions with Western countries, notably France and Britain. He is also seeking to establish an ongoing arms supply relationship with the United States, starting with the proposed purchase of six C130 transport planes.

This has given rise to charges by the Soviets and some extremist Arabs, including Libya, that Sadat has become totally Western oriented. His cancellation of the treaty with Moscow has added fuel to the charges.

In hindsight, Sadat's treaty abrogation was not a complete gamble, taken without advance preparation. The President said the arrangement with China was made six months ago. Gamassy's trip to Yugoslavia also predated the scrapping of the treaty.

Artists', Construction Workers' Ball Wild and Wooly

WOODSTOCK — The social event of the season, attended by a smashing crowd of more than 2,000, took place over the weekend at Deanie's Restaurant here. The Watkins Glen Grand Prix and the opening of the Metropolitan Opera were like nights spent in a Stewart's ice cream parlor compared to this gala event.

The occasion was the 36th Annual Artists "and Construction Workers" Ball, sponsored by painters and sculptors in the art colony and those residents of the town who earn their living as plumbers, electricians and home builders. The latter have in recent years, been salting away as much money in Swiss banks for cleaning septic tanks, wiring second homes for vacationers and building ski chalets as the town's internationally known artists have been sending to financial institutions in the Alps from commissions to paint portraits of Nelson Rockefeller and Barbra Streisand.

Admission was $3.75 per person and there was dancing to a six-piece band until 2 a.m. People brought their own booze, of which there was gallons.

Deanie's, of course, is nationally known. It says so right on the paper napkins. It is a large place and has a long bar, a lot of tables, and a big front porch, access to which is up several steps.

Usually at the Artists "and Construction Workers" Ball, a man who has been drinking falls down the steps and lands on his derriere like a bomb, disturbing the other celebrants, who must either carry him to his car or call the local ambulance squad to transport him to the hospital.

That did not happen this year, although, as the evening heightened, many people were falling head over heels trying to dance on the tables to the six-piece band.

The tone of the evening was set at 11 o'clock when a man named Chester came into the restaurant wearing pressed blue jeans and a Mexican shirt and carrying in an Adidas bag two quarts of homemade hard cider he said he intended to drink all by himself before the festivities ended three hours hence.

Chester is well-known around Woodstock as an old time beatnik poet who often reads his own verse in another bar up the street. Normally, local residents steer clear of him but, tonight, because homemade hard cider is almost a thing of the past, a nostalgic artist introduced himself to Chester in an effort to become friendly.

Chester stepped back, clutching his Adidas bag to his chest. "I hate artists," he said. "There hasn't been a decent artist since Rembrandt."

Everybody stopped drinking and dancing on the tables. Alfie was, as usual, making everybody uncomfortable. The plumbers and electricians wear khaki or denim work shirts and feel strongly that Mexican shirts like Chester's are not only ostentatious but actually un-American.

The first of eight acts was introduced at this point. When this happened many of the plumbers and electricians repaired to the parking lot since five of the acts were local rock bands and they don't think rock holds an electric guitar to country and western.

At one end of the bar, a local artist, who never misses a chance to sell a painting, set up his easel and began painting portraits. A member of the local country club, who had wandered across the road from the golf course, was in a corner demonstrating how Ben Hogan used to win tournaments.

"He had a lot of class," he kept saying. "He could beat that Chicano Trevino any time."

You knew it was a success when Chester fell off his chair, reciting a Jack Kerouac poem on the way down. He had been drinking the remaining bottle of hard cider and he went down under the table like a plane shot from the sky in a World War I dogfight.

The wife of a local construction worker stood in the show signs of renewed life. "Where'd you get that shirt?" he sneered. "Off Castro's Commie back, I bet!"

Chester lashed out with the last, remaining, empty, hard cider bottle. He missed by a mile and the roofer grabbed the Mexican shirt by its embroidery and shook hard. It was stars over Tijuana for Chester.

People were stomping all over the tables by now and bumping into the artist at the easel and tripping over Chester's feet. Anybody who says Woodstock balls are not great should be exiled to High Falls.

Bicentennial Prints Offered

KINGSTON — James F. Dwyer, President of the Rondout National Bank announced today that the bank is offering sets of bicentennial prints of early-day Ulster County to its patrons. The collector prints, which were done by the well-known Bloomington artist, A.E. Ruffing, depict scenes of The Spy House in Old Hurley, The Senate House, The Court House, and the VanSteenbergh House all in Kingston.

Winner of numerous awards, A.E. Ruffing is nationally known for her watercolors and lithographs depicting the passing scene of rural America and is represented in fine collections and galleries throughout the country.

She was commissioned this year by the Boy Scouts of America to create lithographs in celebration of its founding, the originals of which are now part of the permanent collection of the National Boy Scout Museum. Her American pen and ink drawings were reproduced for the National Leukemia Association, and she has presented several benefit shows of her original works for hospitals and other worthy organizations.

Flower Show Set

SAUGERTIES — Plans for the 52nd annual flower show on June 9 and a conservation report on diverting some chemical fertilizers from golf courses and lawns to vital food production were part of the agenda for a Society of Little Gardens meeting here recently.

In the interest of the public, Mrs. William Waldele discussed horticulture as "the backbone of all flower shows" and emphasized the importance of reading flower show schedules with regard to entries.

"You're not a lady," said the curator's wife.

"Up your nose with my pantyhose," the construction worker's wife said.

It was becoming a traditional Woodstock affair in the mould of the old Maverick Festivals.

"There's a guy over there I owe something to," said a volunteer bartender who had once been a middleweight fighter. He did not mean the return of a monetary debt. He meant a hard right to the jaw. The guy never knew what hit him.

A roofer ambled over to Chester, who was still under the table, but beginning to

This all proved that art and culture can mix with septic tank cleaning and weather stripping. Everybody got stiff together in a very democratic way and there was a lot of action.

Proceeds from the Artists and Construction Workers Ball go to a college scholarship fund set up in honor of Hervey White, who helped found the Brydcliffe and Maverick art centers in Woodstock. The program for the ball had lots of ads and the money from them goes to the scholarships, too.

The best ad in the book from an anonymous donor. It said: "One night of fisticuffs and hard cider in the REAL Woodstock is better than three days of peace and music at Bethel."

A Real Clean House

KINGSTON — Several months back a well-known official at IBM was transferred and his rambling ranch was put up for sale. IBM handled all the transactions.

The home was vacant throughout the winter. However, IBM saw to it that the house was heated sufficiently to avoid damage to pipes and plumbing. And, in order that the residence would make a favorable impression on potential buyers, an elderly woman was hired to clean up the place occasionally and keep it presentable.

Finally, after all this time, an out-of-town family looked, liked and latched on to the place lock, stock and barrel. The new owner was amazed at the cleanliness of the house. After all, it had been empty for a year or more. Then, he was told about the cleaning woman who came in regularly to take care of such details. He smiled and said: "I don't think I'll let on that it's sold."

Honorable Mention Awards were presented to Ulster Academy student Gregory Dinger of Manor Drive, Woodstock; Sean Troy, Ulster Academy Student who resides on Lucas Avenue Extension Kingston, and to Melanie Rau of Spring Lake Trailer Park, a Kingston High School Student.

These six winning entries were taken by Sorosis to a contest of District Clubs of the Federated Women's Clubs in Latham on March 24. Winners of the District Contest will be taken to a State Competition in May.

He has had one man shows in New York City, Boston and in Worcester and has taken part in group shows in New York City, Dallas and Chicago. He holds awards from the Ford Foundation, Ball State College, the Berkshire Museum and others.

Krotky also teaches at the Arts Community in New Paltz. His pictures have been widely exhibited at the National Academy, the National Arts Club, the Allied Artists and the Berkshire Museum.

Winners of the high school student's contest were: First Prize won by Scott Petito of 21 Emerson Street Kingston, a pupil at the Coleman High School; Second Prize won by Blair Caple of the Kingston High School who lives at 15 Overlook Drive, Kingston; Dave Jones of Mill Rd. Rhinebeck, a Coleman High School student won Third Prize.

Jaunting Along on Hikes by UCCC

STONE RIDGE—A series of four hikes to the Catskills under the leadership of Bob Steuding is being sponsored this spring by Ulster County Community College.

There will be an April 24 jaunt to North Lake and South Mountain, a trip to Artists' Rock and North Point May 8, a journey May 22 to Devil's Path-Hunter Mountain, and a hike June 5 to Wittenberg.

Steuding, an Associate Professor of English at UCCC, is known locally as a poet, hiker and author. He has written a series of poems inspired by the Catskill locale dealing with man's relationship to the land.

Those going on the North Lake and South Mountain hike will see the locale of three of the classic mountain houses of the 19th century and the real setting for the Rip Van Winkle legend. They will visit the favored haunts of John Bartram, one of America's first naturalists and the place from which James Fenimore Cooper's Leatherstocking tales had a setting.

The Artists' Rock-North Point hike will enable participants to look back on some of the physical settings used by the Hudson River school of painters. Other spots visited will be the natural rock shelters and waterfalls at Mary's Glen, Sunset Rock, Newman's Ledge, Rip's Rock and Sleepy Hollow Notch.

The Devil's Path-Hunter Mountain hike will follow a different trail than previous Hunter Mountain hikes sponsored by the college. Hikers will see Kaaterskill Falls in the distance, Kaaterskill High Peak, Round Top, Plateau Mountain and a view of the Sprucetown Valley. The Wittenberg Hike, one of the favorites of Catskill buffs, is harder than the other three, because the terrain is more varied and difficult. A highlight will be a breathtaking look hikers will be able to take at the Ashokan Reservoir.

Artists', Construction Workers' Ball Wild and Woolly

WOODSTOCK — The social event of the season, attended by a smashing crowd of more than 2,000, took place over the weekend at Deanie's Restaurant here. The Watkins Glen Grand Prix and the opening of the Metropolitan Opera were like nights spent in a Stewart's ice cream parlor compared to this gala event.

The occasion was the 36th Annual Artists "and Construction Workers" Ball, sponsored by painters and sculptors in the art colony and those residents of the town who earn their living as plumbers, electricians and home builders. The latter have in recent years, been salting away as much money in Swiss banks for cleaning septic tanks, wiring second homes for vacationers and building ski chalets as the town's internationally known artists have been sending to financial institutions in the Alps from commissions to paint portraits of Nelson Rockefeller and Barbra Streisand.

Admission was $3.75 per person and there was dancing to a six-piece band until 2 a.m. People brought their own booze, of which there was gallons.

Deanie's, of course, is nationally known. It says so right on the paper napkins. It is a large place and has a long bar, a lot of tables, and a big front porch, access to which is up several steps.

Usually at the Artists "and Construction Workers" Ball, a man who has been drinking falls down the steps and lands on his derriere like a bomb, disturbing the other celebrants, who must either carry him to his car or call the local ambulance squad to transport him to the hospital.

That did not happen this year, although, as the evening heightened, many people were falling head over heels trying to dance on the tables to the six-piece band.

"He had a lot of class," he kept saying. "He could beat that Chicano Trevino, any time."

Chester began to roll up the sleeves of his Mexican shirt. "You wanna fight?" he challenged. And without waiting for an answer, felled the golfer with one blow across the belt with a bottle of hard cider.

By now it was well past midnight and the entertainment was over. The plumbers and electricians who'd been listening to country and western from Wheeling, W.

Va., on their car radios, wandered back in. The noise level was now that of Niagara after the spring floods. The Artists and Construction Workers Ball was turning into a complete success.

You knew it was a success when Chester fell off his chair, reciting a Jack Kerouac poem on the way down. He had been drinking the remaining bottle of hard cider and he went down under he table like a plane shot from the sky in a World War I dogfight.

The wife of a local construction worker stood in the

On Conductors and Musical Directors . . .

By O. Lincoln Igou

KINGSTON—The search for a new conductor for the Hudson Valley Philharmonic Orchestra has concluded with the recent appointment of Imre Pallo. Leopold Stokowski protested years ago that he was not a ticket-collecting conductor, but a director, a leader. Curiously, the most recent orchestra program here lists an Acting Music Director but an Associate Conductor. Perhaps subtle distinctions or implications are concealed therein, or it may have been little more than a careless bit of editing. Yet, on the opposite page appears a heading, "The Season's Six Conductors," underneath which are discussed backgrounds of the various candidates, with references almost exclusively to the person's past "conducting" experience.

As a matter of fact, the broader title of Music Director is certainly the proper appellation for the position which the Philharmonic is seeking to fill. He (No women were included!) must be much more than one who accepts the polite or even enthusiastic plaudits of the audience at the end of each number. He must command the respect and admiration of many people for a variety of reasons.

A Product of Interaction

Since the quality of concert performance is a product of the interaction between members of the orchestra and the person standing in front of them, the player's individual and composite evaluation of the director must be regarded as one of prime consideration. True, every member of the orchestra is being paid for a job, a service, which he is expected to provide. Nevertheless, the operation of the principle of satisfaction as a motivating force for producing one's best work also must be recognized here and, if unsuccessful, the immediate result will be an inferior performance. Eventually, the departure of key musicians for happier fields will contribute to the deterioration of the Philharmonic or of any other comparable group.

What, then, are the qualities which the players have a right to, and do expect in their leader? Obviously he must be well-grounded not only in the stylistic traditions of various music periods but particularly of those works which he will program. But this is only the beginning. He must also have studied thoroughly the score of each work about to be rehearsed and performed, developing his own concept of what the composer was trying to say, and deciding how best to marshal the orchestra's resources to convey that message.

Should he double the woodwinds to balance the large body of strings in the modern orchestra? Should he rewrite brass lines to include seemingly more logical notes which were unavailable to Haydn, Mozart, and even Beethoven, or should he conclude that the composer compensated in other ways at the time for these mechanically-imposed voids? How does he want to shape the musical lines in the strings by starting this phrase with an up-bow or down-bow; and exactly where does the bow now most effectively change direction again?

When, if ever, is the overall effect of a major work tightened by ignoring the composer's instructions to repeat the exposition, or some there section? In order to secure the proper dynamic balance, how should he supplement indications omitted by the composer; or should he even revise pianos and fortes already there? And what of articulation: attacks, slurs, staccatos, and the like? Or how "happy," how fast is this particular allegro? How much modification does this ritardando call for, and starting exactly where? How much louder should the music become at this crescendo, especially in relationship to other crescendos which appear earlier, or those which will follow? Of critical importance: where's the peak, the climax of the movement, or of the entire work? Truly, the director's lot is not a happy one!

Answers to most of the questions above are also important to those in the audience, but they are less aware of individual problems, because they are not or cannot be at rehearsals, usually do not have access to musical scores, and must rely on a more general and somewhat less calculated response to a performance.

The orchestra musicians, however, have yet other criteria to which their reader must measure up. He must have a clear and precise beat, yet one which conveys the mood or spirit of the moment. With his hands, his yes, his total posture, he must provide important cues, regulate tempo, dynamics, and matters of broader musical import, even (especially) in rehearsals. When less than ten hours are available to prepare a Hudson Valley Philharmonic concert, one needs an experienced and effective rehearsal-master, one who can make the more minor adjustments both vocally and by utilizing that broad range of gestures available to the director, without exhausting both the orchestra and himself by stopping and starting every few measures throughout a rehearsal.

Leadership Not Automatic

Orchestral leadership is not an automatic, concomitant aspect of musicianship to be regarded as a basic possession of every fine singer, pianist, or violinist. It requires differing, specific skills and training, even as those of an electrician, a carpenter, and a plumber vary, although all of them flourish within the building trade. To go a step further, a quite different set of problems faces the one directing choral groups, and still other techniques are needed for the successful opera leader. They may overlap as do those of the violinist and the violist, or the clarinetist and the saxophone player; nevertheless, one does not immediately and casually move from the piano to the orchestra to the opera pit.

The director may be a special kind of soloist, but not in the sense of one playing a Brahms sonata. The success of the director's performance, in addition to his mastery of all the items listed earlier, demands that he be no less than a triple-threat genius. He (she) must be able to work persuasively with people: the musicians, the audience, and the board of directors. He must command the respect of his players, yet not be inaccessibly aloof, striving for perfection yet sympathetically sensitive to human imperfections, including his own.

He must establish rapport with his audience in many ways: by the obvious clarity of his performances, and by the variety of composers and musical idioms built into his programs, so as to include modern, contemporary works as well as Gershwin, Strauss, or even good musical show elections, together with the standard symphonic repertoire and representative American composers. He must even present a picture of an upright citizen free from all hints of behaviour or mannerisms which might arouse any suspicion whatsoever, either rightly or falsely. Yet, despite all this, he must not be a colorless figure.

Convincing Relationship Necessary

Finally, the Musical Director of the Hudson Valley Philharmonic Orchestra, and of practically all other professional orchestras large or small, must be able to establish a convincing, many-faceted relationship with the board of directors and all of those others who work for and provide financial and moral support so vitally needed by the orchestra if it is to survive. He must be not only the means of a successful liaison between his musicians and the board, but also a lion of the first order in socializing with and stimulating interest in the groups and individuals who are in a position to contribute to the support of the orchestra, either financially or through many other time-consuming services. With all these, he should be prepared to defend, hopefully through a soft-sell, a balanced musical diet which includes opportunities for talented, young unknowns to perform, as well as famous virtuosi.

Obviously he must be a twentieth-century "Renaissance gentleman." But is there any such creature alive today, and specially one who is available? "Yes, and more than one who is willing and able," said one member of the orchestra, who continued: "For this salary we all have a right to expect a really top-quality director." In a partial survey of orchestra musicians, most pointed out the difficulties in making accurate, fair, and thorough evaluations of candidates on the basis of a single concert. It was also recommended that a one- or two-year short-term contract be signed, rather than awarding an automatically-tenured appointment. It sounded like an excellent idea.

In any case, maestro Pallo, the new Music Director, has several things going for him. He has gained the approval and confidence of a committee made up of representatives of the orchestra's Central Board, management, and members of the orchestra. Presumably and almost certainly this group of ten also must have reflected a substantial positive inclination toward Mr. Pallo in polls recently taken of audiences, Philharmonic Society members, and orchestra musicians. Dear Abby

Bulldog Sings to Owner

DEAR ABBY: I am a happily married woman. I've had a very close relationship with a man who is also happy with his wife. We are both in the same type of business, and we see each other frequently to discuss business matters or just to have a friendly get-together. We have been to bed together during business trips, but neither of us thinks of it as any great love affair. We are just friends who enjoy all sides of our relationship.

About a year ago, his wife found out about us and got all uptight. (I don't blame her.) After that, we stopped seeing each other socially, but when we meet on business, the close romantic feeling is still there. Now I've heard that this man's wife has a terminal illness and hasn't much longer to live.

When she dies, should I attend the funeral? If my husband were to die, I'd want this friend of mine to attend the funeral, but I don't know if he would feel the same way.

Should I ask him? That seems so crass. Please advise me.—OLD FRIEND

DEAR FRIEND: Don't ask him. And don't attend the funeral. I think he'll probably appreciate your absence.

DEAR ABBY: I am a widow in my mid-50s, and I live in an exclusive high rise apartment. Last month a bachelor moved into the apartment next to mine. This man has an electric organ, that I can hear him playing nearly every evening. I don't mind that, but he also has a Boston bulldog that "sings" while he plays the organ. The dog's "singing" consists of a howling sound, but he very often hits the right note, begins at the beginning of every song and finishes at the end. (Sometimes the man "harmonizes" with the dog.)

The man is very attractive, and appears to be in his 60s. I understand he is a retired physician.

I suppose he is lonely, but I'm sure he could do much better than a singing dog for company. How do I meet him? —THE LADY NEXT DOOR

DEAR LADY: Invite him over for a T-bone steak dinner and tell him you'll save the bone for his dog.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are in the process of seeking an inexpensive way to get a divorce. We are already living apart and are in total agreement on everything, including the custody of our child and the visitation rights. All we have to do is get it all down in writing and make it legal.

We inquired at the Legal Aid Society but were told that we don't qualify for low-cost legal aid because we are both gainfully employed.

The other alternative is a "divorce kit," which is a kind of "do-it-yourself" divorce, costing $95 for papers plus a $3 fee for filing.

As we see it, the $3 fee is the only necessary action to be taken by us. Isn't it possible to write up our own legal papers and have them notarized?

Why do we have to go through with the expense of having a lawyer write up the papers when we are in complete agreement on all the terms?—FRIENDLY PART-ING

DEAR FRIENDLY: Regardless of how "friendly" and "in agreement" you two may be, I would still recommend legal counsel. Some of those "do-it-yourself" divorces are more expensive in the long run than the regular kind are. - -

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

MILLBROOK — A unique cooperative, educational venture between Bennett College and New York Institute of Technology that will unlock academic potential within the two institutions of higher learning, has been approved by the Regents of the University of the State of New York. The joint announcement was issued March 26 by the presidents of the involved colleges — Dr. J. William Nystrom of Bennett College and Dr. Alexander Schure of New York Institute of Technology.

Collegiate education is in an era necessitating consolidation and refinement of activities and student services that will improve and strengthen existing institutions and their instructional programs. The affiliation between Bennett College and New York Institute of Technology exemplifies the kind of institutional cooperation beneficial to institutions and students alike.

N.Y. Institute of Technology, in this new approach, is extending certain NYIT baccalaureate degree curricula to Bennett College graduates upon completion of the Bennett two-year associate degree program. Tech — a private undergraduate/graduate institution with campuses in Old Westbury and Commack, L.I., and New York City — will offer Bennett students the opportunity to pursue NYIT degree programs in advertising design and behavioral sciences at the Bennett campus in Millbrook, beginning with the 1976 summer session. Consideration is being given to expanding curriculum development to include architectural technology and communications arts.

Bennett College is an independent, fully accredited two-year degree granting institution located in Millbrook, 75 miles north of Manhattan. Major fields of interest are fashion and interior design, the fine arts, performing arts, liberal arts, child study, and horsemanship. Established in 1891, the charm of the scenic Bennett campus is a meld of the traditional and the ultra modern. Facilities provide spacious living accommodations, sophisticated equipment, studios, labs, and more, in combination with specialized professional career preparation.

Approved NYIT curricula on the baccalaureate level have been integrated with Bennett programs. Administrative, faculty and staff meetings have taken place at both colleges in order to dovetail and finalize plans. No loss of autonomy is involved for either institution. The affiliation will serve to enable students to complete baccalaureate degree programs offered by NYIT that complement and coincide with Bennett's associate degree specialties. Students will be expected to pursue the NYIT degrees at Bennett's campus in Millbrook. Tech's low tuition rates will apply to all who study at Bennett for baccalaureate degrees.

The traditional Bennett programs that lead to the associate degree will, of course, continue. Current developments will not replace existing programs at the two-year college — rather, additional courses of study and new educational opportunities will be possible for Bennett graduates as well as for qualified graduates of other two-year colleges.

N.Y. Institute of Technology is a fully accredited, independent coeducational institution offering career oriented education. Its programs are available in conventional and accelerated day, evening and weekend schedules. At present, NYIT educates some 19,000 students of all ages and backgrounds at three major campus locations.

The Necklace with a Legend

While the Sand Dollar is one of the most widely known and popular of all shells, few people are aware of the pretty little legend attached to it.

Legend has it that these strange shells tell the story of Christ's suffering and his glory.

The five holes represent the five wounds of Christ. On the front the Easter Lily—its center, a five pointed star representing the Star of Bethlehem which led the shepherds from afar. On the back the outline of the Christmas Poinsettia reminds us of His birthday. When the shell is broken open, five Doves of Peace and Good Will appear.

Because of this religious legend, this fascinating creature of the sea is often referred to as the Holy Ghost shell.

A beautiful story, beautifully told in sterling silver.

'Media Centers,' Not 'Libraries'

By UPI

So what's a Victorian bathtub lined in fur doing in a grade school media center?

Media center is the "now" name for what used to be the school library. There are 64,000 nationwide. The conversion to media centers makes the libraries no place to say "shhh" anymore.

Other media centers have bean bag chairs, floor cushions and rocking chairs.

The American Library Association says the contemporary school media center does a good deal more than make books available and encourage reading, although these still are important library objectives.

There also is emphasis on audio visual materials, including tapes on plays, filmstrips, records, slides and transparencies. These usually can be taken home, along with the equipment to see and hear them.

Promoting creativity also is a function of the media centers.

Children in Brookline, Mass., for example, write and illustrate books.

A lot of kids across the country are writing their own books—fiction and non-fiction—as part on the media center program.

In Knox County, Tennessee, boys and girls are introduced to literature by hand puppets they make. The puppets and a makeshift stage are the media center's repertory theatre. Old and new stories are dramatized.

In Fort Wayne, Ind., students make kits, games and puzzles in the media center. These are catalogued with the author's name. Librarians lend them out.

A film about Paul Revere's ride was made by fifth graders in a Burlingame, Calif., media center.

When students in Silverton, Ore., discovered there was no written history of their town, they "wrote" one.

Armed with tape recorders from the media center, boys and girls interviewed senior citizens. They also took pictures, then turned out a slide-sound show on Silverton's history.

Other examples on happenings in school media centers—In Rochester, N.Y. Librarians borrow rabbits, sheep and chickens from a nearby farm and transport them to the media center for children to observe. Children by the way, serve on library committees in Rochester and may suggest any titles and materials they wish to be added.

Several Arizona schools have artists in residence at their media centers. Children see a lesson in art that no book can convey. They watch the artist create his sculpture, painting or watercolor from scratch.

In Richardson, Tex., a suburb of Dallas, the media center sponsors an Art Forum each week. Students hear an opera singer, meet an author or rap with an artist.

What's going on at the media center in hour neighborhood school?

Chromium Supply Now in Jeopardy

NEW YORK (UPI) — The expanding African nationalist guerrilla warfare along the 800-mile border between Rhodesia and Mozambique poses a long-term threat to the Achilles' heel of the U.S. economy — chromium.

Stainless steel is 11 per cent chromium and there is no known substitute for the chromium. That makes it the single most important strategic metal to modern civilization. Rhodesia has 67 per cent of the world's strategic reserves of metallurgical chromium.

Although stainless steel was not developed until early in this century — in England — the modern world could not get along without it.

Without stainless steel, there could be no jet airplanes, no spaceships and missiles, no nuclear power plants and no efficient oil refineries. Conventional power generation would be much more difficult and most modern, sophisticated medical and surgical equipment, and chemical and food processing equipment would be impossible to produce, says E.F. "Andy" Andrews, a vice president of Allegheny-Ludlum Steel Co., Pittsburgh, who also is chairman of the critical metals committee of the American Iron & Steel Institute.

Andrews said the United States is largely dependent on Rhodesian and South African chromium. Chromium also is bought from the Soviet Union but much of Russia's large chromium deposits are not believed to be metallurgical grade. Turkey and the Philippines also produce some chromium. Andrews said the only U.S. deposit in Montana is not economical to mine now and, even if it were, would last only about five years.

Jacquelyn Bivins, an editor of the daily newspaper, American Metal Market, who studies strategic metals, and Andrews both said the United States does not have a short-term chromium problem.

Present inventories and stockpiles are very high as a result of the recession and, in a pinch, the U. S. possibly could get along without Rhodesian chromium for a full year.

"But if a chromium crisis had developed in 1974, we would have been in real trouble," Miss Bivins said.

The present inventory is so good President Ford wants to put quotas on imports of stainless steel, but not on chromium. The president's proposal was bitterly assailed by Editor Robert M. Bleiberg of the financial weekly, Barron's, who said it could cost the American people $250 million to $500 million a year in higher prices and lost wages.

The chromium problem is not new. It has been brewing ever since the early 1960s when the white ruling class in Rhodesia, led by Premier Ian Smith, defied the British government's effort to create an independent state based on universal suffrage.

Smith set up a regime under which 275,000 whites rule some 5.5 million blacks. The United Nations subsequently voted economic sanctions against the Smith regime. The United States voted for these sanctions, which obligated Washington to boycott Rhodesia and refuse to buy her chromium, nickel or copper.

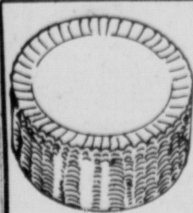

The boycott resulted in the closing of three large ferrochrome processing plants in the United States and was such a thorn in the side of U. S. industry that Congress eventually passed a law known as the Byrd Amendment, which allowed purchase of Rhodesian chromium to be resumed.

That aroused great resentment among the strongly nationalistic, newly independent African states. But so long as Portugal retained control of Mozambique on the Indian Ocean and Angola on Africa's Atlantic coast, Rhodesia was able to export freely. Even Zambia, lying between Rhodesia and Angola, allowed the freight trains to cross her territory between Rhodesia and the Atlantic coast although the Rhodesian-Zambian frontier was politically closed.

But now the Portuguese are gone both from Mozambique and Angola and suddenly the guerrilla warfare, which has been raging on the northern end of the Rhodesian-Mozambique frontier since 1972, has spread over the whole border.

The number of black guerrillas is reported have increased from 2,000 to 10,000 and they are said to be armed with the latest Soviet and Czechoslovak weapons although no tanks or warplanes have been spotted.

Is Andy Messersmith a Yankee or Isn't He?

NEW YORK (UPI) — On the surface, under a provision in baseball's bylaws, you'd think Commissioner Bowie Kuhn has no option but to step in and declare that free agent pitcher Andy Messersmith must play for the New York Yankees.

However, there's more to baseball's latest legal entanglement than meets the eye, so don't be surprised if the commissioner rules in Messersmith's favor at a 2 p.m. EST meeting here today.

On Wednesday, the Yankees claimed that Messersmith, who has been shopping around for the best offer since March 9, the day he was officially declared a free agent, reneged on a four-year, $1 million contract with them and appealed to Kuhn for a ruling concerning the destiny of the 30-year-old right-hander.

Messersmith's agent, Herb Osmond, and Yankees President Gabe Paul both signed a written agreement Tuesday providing for Messersmith to pitch for the Yankees in 1976, 1977, 1978 and 1979 for $1 million and it is that agreement which is the center of the storm.

Kuhn gave some indication of what his ruling might be when he called attention to a provision in baseball's rules, 3(D), which states that an agreement between a player and a club before a contract is signed can bind that player to the club. Under this rule, it would appear that Kuhn could only rule in favor of the Yankees.

The issue, however, suddenly has become one of whether or not Osmond actually has the power of attorney for Messersmith. According to Marvin Miller, the executive director of the Players Association, it is clear he does not.

"I've been advised he doesn't have any power of attorney," Miller said. "There was no contract signed by Messersmith; No contract signed by Osmond or anybody else. It was just a piece of paper outlining some of the provisions."

"There are dozens of agents all negotiating for players. Not one of them signs a contract. No agent that I know of has any such authority."

Even Paul could not clearly refute Miller's contentions, saying only that Osmond "REPRESENTS" the power of attorney for Messersmith. Paul admits never having spoken to Messersmith and that all his dealings were through Osmond.

"The Yankees have entered into a written agreement with Andy Messersmith through his authorized agent, Herb Osmond," Paul explained in New York. "We have been advised through the Players Association that Mr. Messersmith is now attempting to void the term of the agreement despite the fact that both the Yankees and Mr. Osmond bargained in good faith. Osmond represents the power of attorney. We had an agreement to put it in legal verbiage. Anything he didn't like, he could change the wording."

"We intend to perform our obligations under the agreement and expect Mr. Messersmith to do likewise. I'd think I have been in this business long enough to know when we have a firm agreement. It appears to be that Andy Messersmith is being made an unfortunate pawn."

Additionally, Paul said the agreement was in Osmond's own handwriting.

Dick Moss, attorney for the Players Association, wired Yankee owner George Steinbrenner to inform him that Osmond was not authorized to sign an agreement for Messersmith and also the contract sent to Messersmith on Tuesday had several discrepancies from the one agreed upon in Tampa Saturday night.

In New York, Miller also insisted no binding agreement had been reached because the contract did not conform with the previous agreement.

"Paul and Osmond wrote some details on a handwritten piece of paper outlining a few provisions," said Miller. "This was supposed to be presented to Andy and be followed by a contract. The contract that subsequently came over did not conform with the piece of paper I'm talking about and negotiations broke down."

At that juncture, the Yankees asked Kuhn to intervene.

Part of the salary to Messersmith was to be made in the form of deferred payments over a 20-year period and it is believed that the interest on the deferred money was at the root of the breakdown in negotiations. At six per cent, the interest on deferred payments would be approximately $450,000 over 20 years.

Messersmith, along with Dave McNally, was declared a free agent last Dec. 23 when arbitrator Peter Seitz ruled that the reserve clause was invalid. Eight clubs entered into the bidding for Messersmith, a 19-game winner with Los Angeles last year.

Should Kuhn order him to play for the Yankees, Messersmith will be the second All-Star pitcher signed as a free agent by them in the past 15 months. The Yankees also signed Catfish Hunter to a three-year, $3 million contract on Dec. 31, 1974, after he gained his free agency from Oakland on a contract technicality.

Messersmith has twice been a 20-game winner. Last season he led National League pitchers in starts (40), complete games (19), shutouts (7) and innings pitched (322 1-3). He also was second in earned run average (2.29) and third in strikeouts (213).

Messersmith, who also pitched for five years with California, has a lifetime ERA of 2.65 and a 112-77 record.

It Looks Like Andy Is Going to Win Another One

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Editor

St. PETERSBURG, Fla. (UPI) — Andy Messersmith wins again!

He hasn't thrown a ball yet this year, but this one makes it four in a row for him. Imagine what he's going to be like when the weather warms up.

Messersmith's first victory was the big one. It was so big, it turned the entire baseball structure around. That was four months ago when arbitrator Peter Seitz made him and Dave McNally free agents by knocking out the reserve clause.

His second and third wins came when two different courts backed up Seitz' ruling and now here comes No. 4 pretty much the same way Catfish Hunter won his free agency from the Oakland A's and picked up three million bucks from the New York Yankees. On a technicality.

Here's the way it happened:

With eight clubs looking to sign

Messersmith, his agent and next-door neighbor in Newport, Calif., Herb Osmond, met with Yankees' President Gabe Paul in Tampa this past Sunday.

They talked about any number of things and then got down to the only one that mattered: money.

Paul told Osmond the Yankees would pay Messersmith $1 million to pitch for them four years—this one, 1977, 1978 and 1979.

Osmond okayed the money but said Messersmith wanted it on a deferred basis to help him tax-wise and otherwise, and Paul said that was fine with him.

The details were set down on a plain piece of paper, Osmond writing them out himself. When he finished, both he and Paul signed the paper. Paul said he'd have the whole thing put into legal language and would bring the finished version to Osmond in the form of a contract.

He did that Tuesday.

Osmond, said he'd get back to him. Messersmith's agent conveyed the terms to his client, who checked with Marvin Miller and Dick Moss of the Players' Association. Osmond then informed Paul it was no deal.

Why not, Paul wanted to know? The salary figures were the same, weren't they? One million dollars for four years with the total to be deferred over 20 years.

Yes, Osmond said, but there had been a misunderstanding. Such as how and when the deferred payments would be made to Messersmith. That could affect the interest where there would be a swing of as much as $450,000 either going to Messersmith or staying with the Yankees.

Paul was flabbergasted. He issued a statement Wednesday saying the Yankees had entered into a written agreement with Messersmith, through his authorized agent, Osmond, and that Messersmith now was trying to renege on it. Paul said he felt his agreement with Osmond was binding and that Messersmith, a 19-game winner with the Los Angeles Dodgers last year, now was the legal property of the Yankees.

Paul went further. He called Bowie Kuhn, telling him his troubles, and the commissioner is holding a hearing in his New York office today with Paul, Osmond, Miller, Moss and George Steinbrenner, the Yankees' principal owner, all expected to be present.

Kuhn called attention to Rule 3-D of the major league rules which says any written agreement of acceptance between a player and a club "shall be construed as a contract and held to be binding."

"It was not an agreement," insists Marvin Miller. "It was merely a piece of paper outlining a few provisions."

Paul insists otherwise.

"I think I've been in this business long enough to know what a firm agreement is," he says. "This was a firm agreement and we expect Andy Messersmith to pitch for the Yankees."

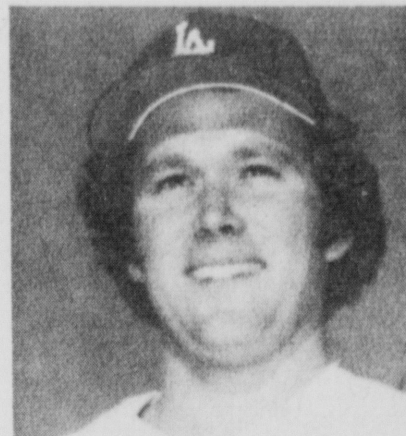

Miller claims the contract sent to Osmond for Messersmith's signature did not conform to the terms on the original piece of paper signed by Osmond and Paul. There was a change, he says, in how the deferred payments would be made.

I asked Gabe Paul whether Herb Osmond has the power of attorney for Messersmith. The Yankee president said, "he represented himself that he did."

And there you have it another win for Andy Messersmith.

Messersmith, it develops, never signed over any power of attorney to Osmond.

You don't have to be any legal genius to figure out what that piece of paper is worth that Paul and Osmond signed.

Andy Messersmith

Strong Showing by Ryan

By UPI

American League hitters received just about the worst news they could get Wednesday short of learning that it would be two strikes and out this year.

That man Nolan Ryan is back at it again.

The California Angels' major league strikeout king and author of four no-hitters pitched five near-perfect innings in a 31 victory over the San Diego Padres Wednesday. He faced only 16 batters during the five innings, struck out 10, allowed a homer by Willie McCovey and walked none.

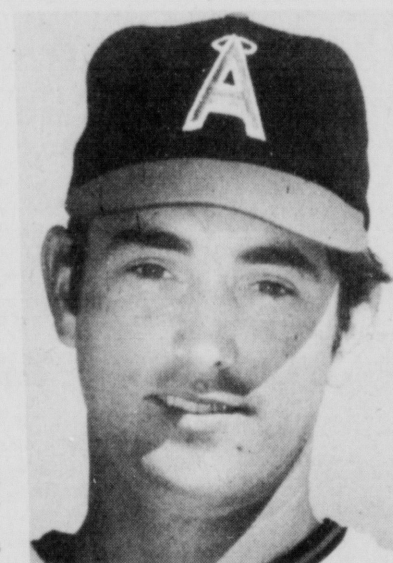

"I had as good stuff as I had all last year," said Ryan after the game. "I couldn't throw any better than I threw in this game."

"He said that and I've got to believe it," said Manager Dick Williams. "He's a power pitcher and it looks like he hasn't lost any of his velocity."

Ryan pitched the fourth nohitter of his career last June 1 and followed it with a 5-2-3 inning no-hit performance before winning a two-hitter on June 6. His record on that date was 10-3 and he seemed headed for a magnificent season.

Ryan suffered a groin injury in his next start, however, and then developed elbow trouble. He finished the season with a 14-12 record and underwent surgery during the winter.

Whether he returns to his 1972-73-74

Nolan Ryan

form is likely to make or break the Angels' season. With Ryan and Frank Tanana leading their staff, the Angels could be a Western Division pennant contender. Without Ryan in top form, the Angels could finish fifth or sixth.

On other fronts: John Candelaria, who had an 8-6 record after being brought up in mid-1975, pitched the first six innings as the Pittsburgh Pirates defeated the Chicago White Sox 3-0. Candelaria allowed two hits, struck out three and walked one. Burt Hooton pitched seven strong innings for the Los Angeles Dodgers in a 6-1 triumph over the Cincinnati Reds.

Steve Braun doubled in the winning run in the 11th inning to give the Minnesota Twins a 4-3 win over the Texas Rangers. Jim Sundberg, Juan Beniquez and Wayne Pinkerton homered for the Rangers. Keith Hernandez hit a three-run homer and the St. Louis Cardinals rocked Jim Hunter for six runs in six innings in a 6-2 triumph over the New York Yankees.

John Vukovich's three-run double in the seventh inning capped a four-run rally that gave the Philadelphia Phillies a 4-1 victory over the New York Mets, who have lost all eight of their exhibition games. Larry Milbourne, batting 450 this spring, knocked in the winning run with his third single of the game as the Houston Astros beat the Montreal Expos 3-2 in 10 innings. Dwight Evans hit a three-run homer and Carl Yastrzemski a three-run double leading the Boston Red Sox to a 13-4 triumph over the Detroit Tigers. The Kansas City Royals put pitcher Steve Busby on the 21-day disabled list because they consider him "behind in his overall conditioning."

Cavaliers Set Sights on League Title

By UPI

The Cleveland Cavaliers clinched a berth in the NBA playoffs for the first time in their history Wednesday night, then set their sights on a more lofty and prestigious position, the league championship.

Things weren't always so peachy for the Cavs, however. There was a time when they couldn't see above the cellar.

In the first year of its existence, 1970-71, Cleveland had the dubious distinction of setting two league records—both negative. They lost their first 17 games and won only 15 the entire season.

Throughout those troubled times, one thing remained constant—Coach Bill Fitch's humor.

Even last year, when the Cavs improved immensely, missing a playoff berth on a one-point loss in the final game, Fitch was able to put things into proper perspective.

"Close only counts in horseshoes, hand grenades and at the drive-in movies," he said.

Well, the Cavs aren't close anymore. In fact, they have a shot at dethroning the Washington Bullets as Central Division champions. They moved into first place Wednesday night when Jim Clemons scored 12 of his 18 points in the fourth quarter and the Cavs beat New Orleans 110-101.

"We want the big one and we have to keep on winning to get it," said Nate Thurmond, the team's elder statesman. "We have to beat everyone anyway. We played really well at the end of last season and we barely missed the playoffs. This has been a very gratifying season."

If Austin Carr, who scored 17 points against New Orleans, can return to top form by playoff time, the season might be even more gratifying.

Meanwhile, the Bullets had their hands full with the Golden State Warriors, who swept them four straight games in the finals of the playoffs last year and have already clinched the Pacific crown this season.

Phil Smith, who made only 1-of-8 shots in the first half, scored six points in the final five minutes to lead Golden State to a 95-88 victory.

Smith put the Warriors ahead to stay 81-79, with 4:45 left and then twice improved the lead to five as the Bullets threatened in the closing minutes.

Rick Barry led all scorers with 22 points while Jamaal Wilkes and Charlie Johnson each added 18 for Golden State. Smith had 14 points.

In other NBA games, Philadelphia edged Buffalo 107-103, Boston routed Phoenix 122-102, Detroit shaded Chicago 102-96 and Seattle beat Los Angeles 120-109.

In the ABA, San Antonio downed Denver 117-110, Indiana topped New York 116-106 and Kentucky beat Virginia 111-103.

Sixers 107, Braves 103

In a likely preview of a first round playoff series, reserve center Clyde Lee scored the go-ahead basket with 71 seconds left, lifting Philadelphia into second place in the Atlantic Division, a half-game ahead of Buffalo in a battle for the homecourt advantage. George McGinnis topped the 76ers with 25 points and Steve Mix added 24. Randy Smith led Buffalo with 28.

Pistons 102, Bulls 96

Detroit, making a late season bid to catch Milwaukee in the Midwest Division, stretched its longest winning streak of the season to six games as John Mengert scored 23 points and Bob Lanier added 18 to beat Chicago. The Pistons now trail the Bucks by 1½ games.

Celtics 122, Suns 102

In a game in which Boston never trailed, Jo Jo White scored 22 points and Charlie Scott 18 to snap a seven-game Phoenix winning streak. Dave Cowens added 15 for the Celtics, while Nate Hawthorne led the Suns with 22 and rookie Alvan Adams added 21.

Sonics 120, Lakers 109

Herm Gilliam, Fred Brown and Tommy Burleson combined for 64 points to lead Seattle over Los Angeles and into second place in the Pacific Division. The victory was the Sonics' 12th straight at home and seventh in eight games. Los Angeles now trails Seattle by 2½ games with four games left.

Spurs 117, Nuggets 110

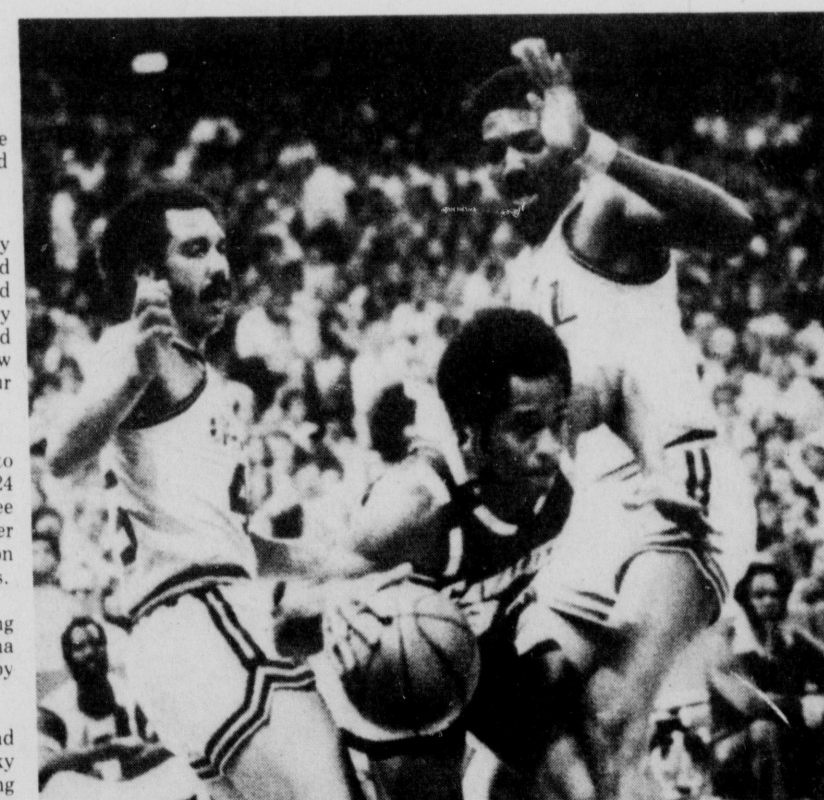

Foul trouble limited George Gervin to 24 minutes playing time but he scored 24 points, including six in the final three minutes, to propel San Antonio over league champion Denver. Larry Kenon and Billy Paultz each added 21 points.

Pacers 116, Nets 106

Billy Knight won his individual scoring duel with Julius Erving 32-23 and Indiana clinched the fifth and final playoff spot by downing New York.

Colonels 111, Squires 103

Artis Gilmore poured in 26 points and Maurice Lucas added 25 as Kentucky beat Virginia to stop a three-game losing streak. The Colonels broke open a tight game open by hitting seven of their first 10 shots in the third period.

Monticello Raceway Opens 19th Season Tonight

MONTICELLO—There are folks hereabouts who just live for the moment when Monticello Raceway track announcer Max Brewer bellows out the familiar "H-e-r-r-e they come!" Tonight they can rejoice as the Sullivan County harness racing plant begins its 19th season of competition.

Although it might be a soggy opening night, Monticello management plans on ushering in the new season in festive manner. Besides the regular 10-race card (Post Time 8 p.m.), MR will present two circus acts, bands of roving musicians, and a carnival-like atmosphere for its patrons.

On the track, Tartalah, an eight-year-old gelding from the Louis Gigante stable, has been listed as the morning line 3-1 favorite in the featured sixth race, a B-3, $2000 "Salute to Labor" pace.

Tartalah will be coming out of the two hole and will be driven by Gigante. The horse won its last race by ¾ of a length over a mile and a quarter at Freehold.

Armbo Jess, driven by Kingston's Jack Ferraro, figures to give Tartalah the most competition. The 10-year-old last raced January 4 here and won by five lengths. It is listed at 7-2.

Ferraro also will be in action in the 10th race when he pilots 6-1 Il Cavallo out of the two hole. Saugerties driver Ralph Arone, meanwhile, is also entering two races. Just Reward is 10-1 in the third, Gerhard Hanover is 6-1 in the sixth.

On the entertainment side, tonight, Friday and Saturday, Monticello will presnet The Great Zucchini, the human cannon ball, and the Quassars, an internationally-known team of high wire artists who perform their stunts without a net.

In addition, MR fans will hear the sounds of roving groups of musicians dressed in authentic native costumes. The groups will include a Mexican Mariachi band, a Polish Polka trio, Italian folk singers, and a barbershop quartet.

In keeping with the circus atmosphere, the track's snack bar and souvenir stands will offer cotton candy, helium-filled balloons and popcorn dispensed by an old-fashioned popcorn cart.

The season runs from tonight until September 12. There will be racing on Sunday afternoons with the exception of April 11 and 18, Palm Sunday and Easter Sunday respectively. The track will be closed on Mondays until July 1 when it will be open every day through the conclusion of the meet. There will also be racing on the two Mondays in April immediately following the dark Sundays.

Also planned are doubleheaders for Saturdays during July and August and selected other Saturdays during the season.

This season the track is headed by a new executive team led by President S. Harvey Fosner, racing Secretary Gary Buxton, and Director of Public Relations Len Katz. The trio has pledged to continue the track's entertainment policy and to bring to MR fans the highest quality racing available to a track its size.

The 1976 MR meet could be the last as it has been known since the track's inception 19 years ago. Tentative plans call for the conversion of the Monticello oval from one-half mile to five-eighths of a mile to attract young horses.

The Outdoorsman

The archery committee of the Federated Sportsmen's Clubs of Ulster County wants no part of any mandatory qualifying course or test for archers. Joe Juliano, chairman of the Federation's archery committee, made that clear at the March meeting in Wallkill.

Juliano quickly emphasized that he favors continuation of the present hunter safety program for all hunters that has been in effect for many years.

"If such a test were mandatory, it would soon be instituted against pistol and rifle shooters as well," said Juliano in his monthly report to the Federation.

Juliano said the archers would favor any regulation which would require: (1) Bows with minimum weight of 39 pounds at 28 inches; (2) some standard of sharpness for broadheads and (3) broadheads with minimum wind plane at general shooting distances. Such regulations would improve the hunting equipment and conditions without hunter harassment.

In his report on the current status of varying hares, Federation president Fred Faerber said the Department of Environmental Conservation has given Ulster County permission to import hares from out of state.

Faerber has ordered hares based on club participation when the program operated in the past. Cragmoor, Highlands, Marlborough, The Vly and Walker Valley will receive them when they arrive.

Faerber also announced that the Federation has put in an order for 1500 rainbow trout from 9 to 12 inches long to continue the county wide stocking program started in 1975.

Another order for 500 hybrid brook trout was made for stocking in the Esopus where rainbows cannot be stocked. The stocking date requested was May 1 and Faerber will report on the actual date at the April meeting.

Nineteen stops were requested, the same as last year. Other stocking dates for Ulster County streams already have been announced with more than 20,000 browns and brooks scheduled to be stocked.

In his waterfowl report, Skip Lyons read a letter from Matt McHugh Congressman for part of Ulster County, dealing with the zoning proposal. It is now in the hands of the politicians, Lyons said, and the only way to win the battle is bombard your Congressman with letters.

Lyons also reported on some correspondence with the postal authorities about the lack of duck stamps in the Cottekill post office. Some people assumed that such a small post office would have no call for duck stamps, but president Faerber patronizes the Cottekill PO because of its nice wide door and Fred likes duck stamps.

The fisher, an animal still considered rare or endangered in many parts of its range, has shown a remarkable comeback in New York State in response to protection and management. And not all conservationists are as happy about it as some of the DEC brass.

(Webster defines the fisher as a large, dark brown somewhat vulpine arboreal carnivorous mammal) related to the marten and weasels, native to the forested half of North America and now extinct over much of its former range).

During the 1920's fishers were in high demand and their scarcity ran the price of a good pelt as high as $345, says Paul Kelsey, DEC Regional Conservation Educator. This meant that it was worthwhile for a trapper to get on a fisher track and follow it for several days, if necessary.

The females had much more valuable hides, so trappers would selectively seek out the smaller tracks. This selective pressure on the already limited numbers brought them to the verge of extinction.

Closed seasons were legislated in 1936 and, combined with the natural recovery of the forest habitat, which followed the era of heavy cutting and burning of the extensive Adirondack forests, resulted in a remarkable recovery of the fisher.

Though the fisher themselves may not be seen often some evidence of their presence, such as the reduced porcupine population is very obvious to those who can recall the before and after.

"As a boy in the mid-30's, it was the exception when our canoe camp was not invaded by two or three porkies," Kelsey recalls. "My own boys' 'night raiders' have been limited to bears and raccoons. I refer porkies to bear."

Because of their ability to control porcupines, several states which were less fortunate than New York in saving their original fisher, have carried out fisher re-introduction programs to help save timber from porcupine destruction, a prime example of biological control of destructive wildlife.

Fisher have filled their appropriate habitat in the Adirondacks and are now beginning to range beyond. A few reliable reports of their having been seen in the northern Catskills have come in to DEC. The Department is planning to help them jump the gap by live-trapping a few and transferring them to suitable habitat in the Catskill Mountains, including Ulster County.

Though a predator, it is not anticipated that they will have any measurable effect on the hunting of small game. On the favorable side of the ledger, says Kelsey it will add a valuable bearer for the trappers and restore an extremely interesting animal to the Catskill ecosystem for those who look at an area as a bio-community, not just a place to hunt for one or two of their favorite species of game.

So, the fisher is back in the Catskills, for better or for worse, depending upon your viewpoint.

Fallsburgh Upsets OCS

Triple Tie in UCAL

BOICEVILLE—The Ulster County Athletic League's girls volleyball division has a three-way tie for first place on the eve of today's opening round of the Section 9 Tournament at Sullivan County Community College at Loch Sheldrake.

It all came about when Fallsburgh High stunned league leading Onteora High Tuesday, with a comeback 7-15, 15-10 and 15-8 victory.

The loss dropped Onteora into a three-way tie for first place in the final standings with Red Hook and Marlboro. Fallsburgh, in doing what Coach Esther Grossman said was "something really phenomenal" got a piece of the Pie.

The Fallsburgh victory forces a playoff between New Paltz and Fallsburgh before the start of the Section 9 Tournament play to determine the fourth representative of the UCAL.

The four UCAL representatives will be pitted against the top four finishers in the Western Sullivan League. The four survivors will join Wednesday's first-round winners—Port Jervis, James I. O'Neill, Clarkstown North and Clarkstown South—in the quarterfinals Saturday at New Paltz High School.

In first round action Wednesday, Port Jervis rallied from a 7-15 first game loss to defeat Pearl River 15-12 and 15-6 at Orange County Community College. Port, on the verge of extinction, reeled off 13 straight points after falling behind 2-12 in the second game.

In other matches at OCC, Orange County champions James I. O'Neill defeated Tappan Zee 15-11, 11-15 and 15-13; Rockland County champion Clarkstown South over Monticello 15-12, 6-15 and 15-4 and Clarkstown North eliminated Newburgh Academy, 15-8 and 15-10.

Busby Disabled

FORT MYERS, Fla. (UPI) — The Kansas City Royals Wednesday put ace pitcher Steve Busby on the 21-day disabled list, meaning he will miss the first week of the season to catch up in his conditioning program.

The 26-year-old right-hander, who won 22 games in 1974 and was 18-12 last year, was placed on the disabled list effective March 25. He will be eligible to return to active status April 15 during the club's first home stand against California and Cleveland.

Hurley Tryouts

Hurley Little League will conduct tryouts for the 1976 season at the West Hurley Little League field. Tryouts for nine and 12-year-olds will be held Saturday, April 3 at 1 p.m. and 10 and 11-year-olds Sunday, April 4 at the same time.

Trout Have Last Laugh

PHOENICIA—April Fool! The fishermen's luck was likely to be all bad today, as an overnight downpour turned Wednesday's clear, flowing streams into muddied torrents and threatened to wreck what was expected to be one of the finest New York State trout openings in years.

Three traditional area checking points reported a mixed bag of reaction.

"We haven't seen any fish yet (mid-morning)," said Mike Spada of Spada's Sports Shop, a popular hangout for Kingston area anglers. "We were extremely busy Wednesday, but today's early morning traffic was less than half of normal on opening day."

Folkert's, the Phoenicia checkpoint, reported "a few fishermen out, but we haven't seen any fish and the boys are getting wet." The only optimistic note came from Carroll's Bait Box on Route 28, where a few catches were reported at the dividing weir mostly rainbows, ranging in size from 17 to 18 inches.

The mainstream is running high, wide and muddy," said a Carroll spokesman. "Conditions could get better later in the day."

For the most part, however, opening day 1976 appears to be literally a washout. The hard core group of anglers who will brave any kind of weather on opening day were out but in drastically reduced numbers.

But 24 hours can make a big difference in a fisherman's life and Friday could come up all roses—and trout.

Borg Winner Over Stone

SAO PAULO, Brazil (UPI)

Bjorn Borg, Sweden's 19-year-old superstar, had to mount a desperate rally to beat Australian Allan Stone, 5-7, 6-4, 6-3, and move to the quarterfinals of the World Championship Tennis tournament Wednesday.

After winning the first set and taking a 4-0 lead in the second, it appeared that Stone would score a major upset over Borg, one of the tournament favorites. Borg, however, kept himself in the match, breaking Stone's service in the fifth game of the second set and winning six straight games to take the set, 6-4.

With the third set tied 3-3, Borg finally broke the tired Stone's service on the seventh advantage point before a silent house in the tournament's most dramatic game to date. Borg easily won the next two games and the match.

Flag Dedicated To Chambers

The late Adelbert Henry Chambers was honored recently with a flag raising ceremony at the Town of Ulster Library. A native of Kingston who operated the Stuyvesant Motor Cadillac and Oldsmobile Agency for 40 years, Chambers donated the land upon which the library and Chambers Elementary School are built. The flag, flown over the national Capitol, was presented by Rep. Hamilton Fish Jr. (c), R-25th Dist., with Mrs. Harold Keator (l), Mr. Chambers' daughter, and Miss Anna McGrath, his granddaughter.

Freedom Keeps Dental Costs Down

NEW YORK (UPI) — Those Americans who are fond of praising the virtues of free enterprise might take considerable comfort from the comparative cost performances of medicine and dentistry.

The nation's overall national health bill soared 13.9 per cent to $118.5 billion in 1975, with $7.5 billion going for dental care.

The dental costs, however, amounted to only 6.3 per cent of the total national cost of health care compared with 6.5 per cent in 1974, 9.1 per cent in 1971 and 10.1 per cent in 1950. Dr. Robert B. Shira, president of the American Dental Association, says the big reason dental care cost has not gone up as much as general health care is that dentistry still is a private enterprise profession drawing only 5.5 per cent of its income from tax funds.

On the other hand, medical bills and other general health costs increasingly are paid for out of Medicare, Medicaid, public welfare and other tax sources. Shira said governmental agencies, federal and local, pay 40 per cent of the general health bill.

The cost of dental care not only has fallen as a percentage of the total national health bill, but dental fees and costs have not risen quite as fast as other consumer services and products, Shira said. He said the 1975 dental price index was 146.8 as compared with an overall federal consumer price index of 147.7 for all goods and services that year.

"The dentist has increased his productivity significantly in the past few years," Shira said. "This has been accomplished partly by improved technology. The invention of the new high speed drill, developed by the ADA and offered free to all dentists, enabled dentists to handle many more patients. University of Michigan economist Paul Feldstein calculated the development of this machine had the same effect as adding 1,714 full time dentists to the profession."

Good assistants, however, had done much more to increase the dentist's productivity. The old time dentist had only an office nurse. The dental hygienist was the first really trained assistant. Now there is a large corps of assistants who can take over so much of the dentist's routine work that

HONG KONG (UPI) — Tran Van Don has probably forsaken forever the military and political intrigue some deemed as malodorous as the Vietnamese-style fish sauce he now seeks to import to the United States.

For nine hectic days last April the retired lieutenant general was the deputy prime minister and minister of defense of the doomed Republic of Vietnam.

Don, who helped topple the Diem government in a 1963 coup and once commanded South Vietnam's Air Force, now works for a firm which exports Oriental food to groceries and restaurants in North America.

Don, 58, who now lives in Falls Church, Va., has ready answers for those who ask him why the war was lost.

"We never made real war," he said in an interview during a recent visit to Hong Kong. He said 200,000 South Vietnamese soldiers, using U.S. naval transport and American air cover, should have been unleashed in an invasion on North Vietnam in the vicinity of the city of Vinh, north of the 17th Parallel.

He said President Nguyen Van Thieu once told him that such an invasion was discussed in 1972 by Thieu and Secretary of State Henry Kissinger.

Don said he did not believe the discussion was "very serious" and, in any case, it already was too late for an invasion because a tentative peace agreement had been reached in Paris.

Don said the other main factor in the fall of South Vietnam was that "we didn't make a political struggle. We didn't have a new social order so it was difficult to get support from the people for the war."

There was also a lack of coordination between American and Vietnamese forces, Don said.

"There was no joint command for any operation," he said. "That was a big mistake."

Don fled Saigon by helicopter the day before his government surrendered unconditionally. He said he had learned the North Vietnamese considered him a "war criminal" because of the use by the South Vietnamese Air Force of the hated Cluster Bomb Units.

Don refrains from blaming individual leaders—either Vietnamese or American—for the Communist victory.

"I blame destiny," he said. "If I blame Thieu, I have to blame many people, including myself."

He was mildly critical of what he described as the panicky American evacuation in the final days of the war, tending that many Vietnamese were abandoned in the confusion who should have been taken out.

"You Americans are very well organized if you can push buttons," he said. "You can even send people to the moon. But when the buttons break you don't know what to do."

He grinned when he said it and later elaborated: "Americans are so beautiful and at the same time so innocent. They didn't understand the revolutionary war made by Hanoi."

Don acknowledged that the "bloodbath" some American officials predicted would follow a Communist takeover has not occurred, but he added "it still could happen."

He said he hopes the new government will have a policy of reconciliation but he does not believe refugees who want to return to Vietnam will be permitted to do so soon.

"Maybe later," he said, "in four or five years."

Don's wife, two sons and a daughter left Vietnam long before the takeover. He said he managed to get out some savings "but now I must work to support my family."

Don indicated he did not regret ordering South Vietnamese soldiers to fight to the end. He said as defense minister it was his duty to urge that positions be held as long as possible in the hope that a negotiated settlement might produce a coalition government. He said when failure was obvious he boarded what he believes was the last available helicopter out of Saigon.

Five members of the pathology department at Northern Dutchess Hospital Ruth Henderson (L.), Blanche Back, Frances Bradley, Pia Alexander and Joanne Komenda (seated)—have passed qualifying medical/medicare tests

Shots for Swine Flu Will Mostly Be Free

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Most Americans will get their flu vaccine shots free of charge next fall, according to health experts.

Administration witnesses told Congress Tuesday no one will be denied the swine influenza shots because of an inability to pay. Most persons will be able to get shots free at clinics, they said, and those going to private physicians probably will incur only slight costs.

A House appropriations subcommittee unanimously approved the $135 million immunization program — the first congressional hurdle since it was proposed by President Ford.

In Ottawa, the Canadian government announced it will vaccinate 10 million persons against swine flu next fall. The vaccinations will be made to high risk groups such as the aged, diabetics and heart patients.

The U.S. immunization program will be aimed at nearly everyone. Health officials said only a few persons — those allergic to eggs, for example — won't be asked to take the vaccine. The government's Advisory Committee on Immunization Practices will decide which groups to exempt.

Alongside mass production of swine virus vaccine, a smaller production of A-Victoria vaccine will be continued.

Hotline Dropped

RHINEBECK — Members of Rhinebeck Chapter 2381, American Association of Retired Persons, learned recently that the AARP hospital emergency hotline has been temporarily discontinued for lack of demand.

Mrs. Mary Hayden, RN, of Red Hook, told AARP members at their recent monthly meeting that only three calls had been received in two months on the hotline, staffed seven days a week from 9 a.m. to noon.

Mrs. Penny Plass RN, director of social services at Northern Dutchess Hospital, said that the hotline could become an important part of hospital service, especially for older persons, once it becomes established.

Frederick Connell, chapter president, announced that Charter No. 2381 has been awarded to the chapter by the national organization and that formal installation ceremonies will be held later.

Mrs. Plass said that speakers and workshops have been planned at Northern Dutchess Hospital May 11, during observance of the "Healthy Birthday America" theme for the 1976 Hospital Week.

James Kelly, membership chairman, reported that 37 persons had joined prior to the business meeting. Membership will be closed at 400 at this month's meeting, with future applicants going onto a waiting list.

STONE RIDGE — With the culture of house plants one of the increasingly popular activities during this Bicentennial year, indoor gardeners should find much of interest at the Third Annual Horticultural Heyday celebration, slated for Saturday, April 10, at the Stone Ridge campus of Ulster County Community College.

An entire series of illustrated lectures and demonstrations dedicated to indoor gardening will be presented.

For those who have not discovered their green thumb, Heyday will offer "House Plant Selection and Care" by Dr. George Goddard, a foliage and houseplant authority from the University of Massachusetts. Dr. Goddard is prominently represented in the Time-Life Encyclopedia of Gardening and is the inventor of the selection and care "wheel" designed to help the knowledgeable as well as the novice with house plant problems.

From Rutgers University will come Jack Sacalis who will present demonstrations on house plant propagation. If you've ever failed to root any house plant, Sacalis will have the reason for you. He'll show you how to select cutting, tell you when to take them, and display the material and techniques to do the job.

Pecos Bill, a mythical cowboy of Texas legend, was said to have been reared by coyotes, used coyotes as saddle horses and caused rattlesnakes to hide in terror when they heard him coming.

The first newspaper in Texas was "El Mexicano," published in Nacogdoches by Jose Alvarez de Toledo in 1813 during the revolution against Spain. The first modern newspaper was the "Galveston News," established in 1842.

A Heyday for Indoor Gardeners

Dr. James Boodley, professor and chairman of the Department of Floriculture and Ornamental Horticulture at Cornell, inventor of the original artificial soil mixes now being utilized around the world, will deliver illustrated lectures on the techniques of growing plants under light.

Because there are as many indoor gardening preferences as there are indoor gardeners, Heyday will offer a multifaceted program catering to the tastes and interest of many.

Experts from the New York and Brooklyn Botanical Gardens will be on hand to offer special demonstrations and instruction in the selection of materials and techniques for building terrariums. The same institutions will present illustrated lectures about the ancient oriental art of Bonsai.

Raymond T. Fox, a professor of Floriculture at Cornell and a man distinguished in the field of floral arranging will share his secrets with those who are eager to learn to display cut flowers to their greatest advantage.

There will be special lectures to those who are hung-up on hanging plants. And those who have problems with house plants are encouraged to start making up lists of symptoms for diagnosis by some of the worlds most prominent authorities. In addition to the lectures, the very popular resource center will provide an informal meeting place where lecturers and guests gather to discuss specific problems and areas of common concern. Students from the college's own Landscaping Club will be offering healthy house plants that were propagated in the college greenhouse especially for Heyday guests.

Hormone Usage For Depression

NEW YORK (UPI) — Some depressive ailments stem from short circuits in the brain's biochemistry and a psychiatric researcher says sex hormones probably can be used to treat such illness.

Dr. Turan Itil, research professor of psychiatry at New York Medical College, bases the point on initial controlled clinical trials showing such hormones effective in the treatment of some depressive states.

The trials involved two hormones. One was mesterolone, a male sex hormone similar to androgen. The other was cyproterone acetate, an antimalarial hormone most often used to treat sexual hyperactivity in males.

He said the tests showed the hormones were effective in the treatment of some depressive patients and did not have the well-known side effects — dry mouth, sedation, and blurred vision — of the tricyclic antidepressant drugs currently in use.

Itil said due to the good results, he is expanding the clinical testing program.

It has been estimated that one out of every 10 adults is affected by some degree of depression. It is by far the most common psychological disorder and one of the most common of all physical illnesses.

"For a number of years, there has been a search for less toxic psychoactive drugs to treat the ailment," Itil said.

"Recent reports concerning the untreatable, irreversible neurological damage caused in patients who have been treated with major tranquilizers for long periods of time cannot be ignored.

"Physiological substances such as hormones have none of these toxic effects," he said.

In Itil's pilot studies, a group of severely depressed young and middle-aged men were given mesterolone for up to four weeks. They showed improvement in mood, alertness, memory, concentration, and psycho-motor performance.

Cyproterone acetate was used to treat female patients suffering from severe premenstrual tension, depression and irritability. Daily dosages of the hormone were administered beginning seven days before onset of the period.

Eighty per cent of the women, according to Itil, showed marked improvement.

Research on the effect of sex hormones on depression was abandoned when the new fastacting and effective psychoactive drugs became available on a large scale in the 1950s.

Itil believes that was premature.

"Sex hormones are the body's own natural substances," he said. "If we can discover a natural substance that can actually cure depression, we can also discover the cause of depression."

"But so long as we continue to treat depression solely with anti-depressant drugs, we only are attacking symptoms, not causes."

Crank It Up for Any Problem

MOUTH OF SENECA, W.Va. (UPI) — When a fire breaks out in this pastoral valley, no one bothers to call the fire department.

Folks crank up the telephone and call switchboard operator Gladys Richards instead.

She is ready to handle all emergencies — fires, impassable roads, the death of a neighbor's relative.

"They just say, 'we've got a fire' and I do the rest," says Mrs. Richards. "When someone dies, it's my responsibility to find out when and where the funeral is and inform everyone."

That's how citizens here — 260 by last count — have been handling crises since 1902, when they formed the North Fork Mutual Telephone Co.

Everyone shares party lines — 20 families to a line — and Mrs. Richards is the phone company's only employee.

Now, some are suggesting a drastic change: dial telephones.

"I don't know how much longer we can hold out," sighs

Mrs. Bessie Kisamore. She and her neighbors have battled the Public Service Commission for four years to keep dial service from replacing the old-fashioned system.

If it does, Mrs. Richards will lose her job.

Mrs. Richards says residents who have resided in cities are the only ones who want the change.

"The people who have lived in this valley all their lives couldn't get by without the crank system. But someone's always trying to ram city things down our throats," she said.

Telephone customers here pay only an annual tax of 75 cents, plus charges for long distance calls. There is no monthly fee.

The anti-dial faction suffered a setback two years ago when the Rural Electrification

Administration approved a $1.15 million loan to a Spruce Knob group who wanted to bring dial service throughout the county.

"Most of the people up here are farmers or senior citizens," said Mary Alt, whose mother ran the switchboard before Mrs. Richards.

"By the time they pay their grocery, gas and electric bills, they can't afford $150 a year for dial phones."

Ancient Chinese Laws Unearthed

HONG KONG (UPI) — China's earliest laws discovered so far were found on bamboo slips in a recently excavated tomb, the New China News Agency announced recently.

Some 1,000 bamboo slips, most with laws and documents dating back 2,200 years, were found in one of 12 tombs excavated in Yunmeng, County in Central China, NCNA said. The tombs were discovered by peasants digging a drainage canal.

The official news agency said: "The three laws of the Chin Dynasty unearthed are China's earliest laws and acts so far discovered and the bamboo slips, well-preserved and with legible characters, are the first discovered of the Chin Dynasty (221 B.C. to 207 B.C.)."

The finds date from the late years of the warring states

period (475 B.C.-221 B.C.) and

"provide important historical evidence of the how the Chin Dynasty followed the legalist line and imposed the dictatorship of the landlord class over the slave-owning class," NCNA said.

Preliminary studies show the bamboo slips include a document of a governor in 227 B.C., laws, acts, judicial cases, a book on the "ways of officials," and a chronicle of major events from 306 B.C.

Also included are specific cases showing how court trials were conducted.

"The records of laws and acts of the chin Dynasty and of earlier periods had been lost for centuries," NCNA said. Chin Shih Huang was the founder of the dynasty.

Among the new finds are acts on farmland, currency, appointment of officials, self-exiled chin subjects and dismissal of officials.

Money Experts Hail Return of $2 Bill

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Financial experts all over the world are heralding the return of America's two dollar bill. For the first time in ten years, the $2 is again being issued by the U.S. Treasury. The bills will be available at banks all over Ulster County and the rest of the United States on April 13.

The April 13th issuance date coincides with the birthday of Thomas Jefferson, whose picture appears on the bill. The bill became prominent during Federalist times when one day Aaron Burr asked Jefferson if he had change for a $10 and Jefferson replied, "How about five twos?"

Completing the Bicentennial design on the reverse side is a vignette based on the signing of the Declaration of Independence by artist John Trumbull.

Initially, the Treasury is making 225,000,000 of the new notes available. The Treasury estimates the new $2 bills will also result in a savings of $4-7 million per year in printing of $1 bills. An average of 1.6 billion $1 bills are printed per year, accounting for 55-60 per cent of the total volume of the currency printed. The new $2 bill is expected to replace about one-half of the $1s in circulation during the next several years.

One comment heard concerning the reissuance of the $2 bill was: "Now the $2 window at the rack will have some meaning."

The American Bankers Association, in making the announcement, would neither confirm or deny reports that a $3 bill was in the making. Reports have it that the $3 bill would have a picture of Billie Sol Estes on one side and P.T. Barnum on the other.

Up With People Needs Some People

KINGSTON — Kingston Trust Company, which will sponsor a local appearance by the world famous "Up With People" ensemble on June 15, is seeking area families who would like to serve as hosts for the young members of the troupe.

Those interested in welcoming one or more of the 50 cast members as house guests for the two nights they will be in town are asked to call the "Up With People" coordinator at Kingston Trust.

"Up With People" will give two performances at the Community Theater on Broadway. The public performance is scheduled for 8 p.m. An afternoon assembly for youth organizations serving the disadvantaged is also planned.

Wynnton School, built in 1843, is the oldest school in Georgia still in use.

Manufacturers in Pennsylvania have two day shipping access to 23 states, 60 per cent of the nation's population, with $533 million in disposable income.

"Up With People" musical productions have been seen throughout the United States and in 32 countries around the world. The settings for their performances have included The White House; Carnegie Hall and Lincoln Center in New York; The Los Angeles Music Center; Olympia Theater, Paris and Royal Albert Hall, London. They were most recently seen here providing the half-time entertainment for the Super Bowl.

Officials at Kingston Trust see the appearance of "Up With People" as a culmination of The Bank's Bicentennial program, which provided financial aid to a number of groups in Kingston and throughout Ulster County.

Tickets will be available starting May 24 at all Kingston Trust branches and at the Community Theater on the night of the performance.

Phone Budget Petition Drive Underway

PHOENICIA — Irate Consumers of Ulster County Inc. met with residents of Spillway Road and Route 28A recently, kicking off a petition drive aimed at reducing the $9.75 a month "basic budget" service by the telephone company in that area which many residents consider excessive and restrictive.

The basic service, according to the consumer group, covers only in-coming calls. All others, they say, some in the town of Shandaken itself, are toll calls. Basic budget rates as low as $4 in some other areas were noted.

Plans call for the circulation of a questionnaire to gather information concerning telephone rates in the area.

Assemblyman Maurice D. Hinchey, D-101st Dist., has been working on that problem since last year. He reports he's been in contact with Gov.

Carey who Hinchey says is in substantial agreement with him that toll free areas in Ulster County should be extended.

"It is up to the Public Service Commission to demonstrate that it can act in the public interest and they have an excellent opportunity to do so in this case," Hinchey said. "If the Public Service Commission moves in the right direction they should be encouraged. If they don't I will be back in touch with the governor."

The telephone company has offered to study the rate structure. The PSC is currently studying the phone company's rural rate structure.

Uncommitted Slate

POUGHKEEPSIE — The "uncommitted slate" in the April 6 Democratic primary for president can be found on Row B on the voting machine. The slate includes former Ulster County Legislator Roger Mabie as an alternate. It seeks to represent the 25th congressional district.

Listen Veteran . .

KINGSTON — GI benefit assistance to a veteran's family does not necessarily cease upon the veteran's death.

Depending upon whether or not the veteran's death is attributable to a service-connected disability, a variety of benefits are available to the eligible widow, children, and in some cases, dependent parents.

Immediate benefits include a burial flag, reimbursement for burial expenses and GI insurance proceeds if a policy is in force. Death resulting from a service-connected disability would entitle the widow and minor children to dependency and indemnity compensation. In some instances, the veteran's dependent parents may be eligible. If death resulted from a non-service-connected disability then the widow and children may be eligible for pension payments, depending upon their income. Widows and children of veterans who die from service-incurred disabilities become eligible for up to 36 months of higher education assistance. And, if the widow does not remarry, she may be eligible for a GI home loan.

Depending upon the nature of the benefit, one or more of the following records should be brought along when applying: the veteran's discharge papers or military service number, branch of service, and dates of service; the veteran's birth, marriage, and death certificates, and children's birth certificates. Assistance in applying may be obtained from Don Moore at the local office of the NYS Division of Veterans' Affairs located at 300 Flatbush Avenue, UPO Box 527, Kingston, Office Hours Monday through Friday 9 to 5, tel. 331-9300 Ext. 287.

Confining Time for Smokers

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Utah sent its smokers back behind the woodshed today. A tough new anti-smoking law designed to protect the health and sensibilities of non-smokers went into effect — requiring restaurant owners and other businesses to banish smokers to special areas away from the general public.

The "Utah Indoor Clean Air Act" was passed earlier this year by the state legislature, which is dominated by Mormon Church members who are forbidden the use of tobacco, alcohol and coffee. Smokers who leave their confines face a $299 fine. Proprietors who refuse to plaster their businesses with "no smoking" signs or to segregating smokers face both the fine and a 90-day jail sentence. But state and local health officials, who must enforce the law, say they will bring no charges for the first few weeks. "No citations will be issued until people have had a time to become familiar with the law," said Dr. Harry Gibbons, director of the Salt Lake City-County Health Department, which must oversee the law in Utah's largest metropolitan area.

"We are not going to clobber anybody right away," he said. "It has to be a cooperative thing. I see no way to enforce this law unless people help us."

Utah has always had laws against smoking in public — laws that were seldom enforced because police departments figured they had better things to do.

But the legislature voted to make smoking a public health issue, transferring enforcement power to state and local health inspectors.

The law requires businessmen to either ban smoking outright in their establishments, or to set up special "designated smoking areas."

Wanted

Joseph Maurice McDonald, wanted on a Federal warrant for interstate transportation of stolen property and conspiracy, issued on October 6, 1975, at Los Angeles, Calif., has been added to the FBI's list of "Ten Most Wanted Fugitives." McDonald has been indicted on charges connected with interstate transportation of a large amount of extremely valuable collector's stamps which were stolen during an armed robbery of a Boston, Mass., business on March 17, 1971. (UPI)

More Time in Orange

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — Orange County residents will have until April 9 to renew their drivers licenses that expire March 31, according to State Motor Vehicles Commissioner James P. Melton.

Melton Monday cited a work slowdown by county workers, some of whom are members of the Civil Service Employees Association that has on strike since March 17.

A statement from Melton's office said "a work slowdown" and "absenteeism" by county employees "at the county clerks' four motor vehicle issuing offices" had caused serious delays.

The Death Penalty . . . Arguments Completed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The lawyers seemed to be talking to four Supreme Court justices. At any rate, only four justices seemed to be questioning the lawyers.

Despite the enormity of the subject, the other five had few questions of the 10 attorneys who argued for two days on whether the death penalty should be outlawed in the United States.

The arguments are completed and the justices are pondering their opinions — expected to be handed down before the term ends in June.

During the six hours of arguments in two days, Justice William Brennan Jr. didn't speak once. But he said flatly the last time capital punishment was before the court, in 1972, the death penalty does not "comport with human dignity" and should be held unconstitutional under all circumstances.

Justice William Rehnquist was almost totally silent, too. He was at the opposite pole in 1972. He said the court was wrong then in striking down state capital punishment laws — a proper matter, he said, for state legislatures.

Those with questions were Chief Justice Warren Burger and Justices Potter Stewart, Lewis Powell Jr. and John Paul Stevens.

Ultraviolet Light New Cancer Worry

ST. PETERSBURG BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — Experiments with mice suggest the ultraviolet part of sunlight might suppress body defenses against cancer — an idea which could have far-reaching implications in assessing the impact of manmade atmospheric changes.

A research report was released today by Dr. Margaret Kripke of the Frederick, Md., Cancer Research Center. She said the results were unexpected and unexplained.

Scientists knew too much ultraviolet radiation can cause skin cancer in animals and humans. But she told an American Cancer Society seminar that not only does chronic treatment of mice with ultraviolet light induce skin cancer, it also appears to suppress a body defense mechanism that otherwise would eliminate these tumors when transplanted to other genetically related mice.

munobiology at the government center, said she and her colleagues are a long way from understanding what is happening.

"We do know, however, that UV light itself is responsible for this situation," she said.

Most of the ultraviolet radiation from the sun is screened from earth's surface by a layer of ozone in the upper atmosphere. Concern has been raised recently that exhaust from supersonic jet transports and fluorocarbon gases used in some aerosol sprays might erode the ozone layer and increase the amount of ultraviolet radiation reaching earth.

P-C Part of History
 PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Seven bankrupt railroads including the giant Penn Central faded into history today, absorbed by a government-planned corporation charged with creating one profitable system.
 At 12:01 a.m. EST, the hundreds of freight trains moving throughout the East and Midwest on the bankrupt lines became ConRail freights, no longer the property of Penn Central, Erie Lackawanna, Jersey Central, Reading, Lehigh Valley, Lehigh & Hudson River or Ann Arbor, whose names now exist only in court suits and history books.
 Some 2,034 miles of active railroad was abandoned at midnight. Most of it lightly used branch line, it also included the Erie Lackawanna main line from Mansfield, Ohio, to Chicago, which paralleled the Penn Central.
 Several shops also were closed, including the EL shops at Marion, Ohio, and the LV shops at Sayre, Pa., as ConRail consolidated repair work in Altoona, Pa.

Orange Woman Bludgeoned
 HIGHLAND FALLS, N.Y. (UPI) — Local and state police continued a search today for the person who bludgeoned a woman to death Wednesday night and beat up her three children and elderly mother, leaving one child near death.
 Police said Lily Peoples, 24, of Highland Falls, died of a severe beating with a blunt instrument. Her injured children were identified as: Cassandra, 6; Stephen, 8; and Wilma Jean, 11. Also harmed was the dead woman's mother, Jewel, who lived with the family.
 They were all taken to Cornwall hospital, where their condition was unknown early today. Because of her critical condition, Cassandra was moved to Vassar Hospital in Poughkeepsie.
 Troopers said they were seeking William Kemp, 36, for questioning.
 Early reports indicated there were witnesses to the incident, which took place around 8:30 p.m., and which apparently stemmed from an argument.
 The Peoples woman lived at 14 Snyder Ave.

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

FRIDAY, APRIL 2

Your birthday today: Opens as smooth a year for solid self-expression as you'll have for several years to come. Resist the temptation to take pleasant times for granted. Set up a tight schedule and push yourself to meet it. Relationships become serious. Today's natives are extremists, either indulge in creature comforts or avoid them entirely.

Aries (March 21-April 19): Strike a good bargain on an item you've wanted. Practical matters blend smoothly with your plans. Quit work early to stretch the weekend.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Bring out extra resources to apply for career advancement. A difficult question proves surprisingly easy to ask. Be patient about a delayed answer.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Get scholarly friends involved in your problem. Learn a fresh viewpoint. Decline social invitations tonight.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Group action lags. Get in some hard work on your own ventures. It is no time for casual explorations or excessive indulgences.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Consult with agents who distribute or work with what you produce. Correspondence is of greater importance that it appears. Diplomacy works wonders.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22):

Collect widely scattered items that belong together. See what sense you can make of them. A revival of long-past incidents offers inspiration.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): New information and skills are at your fingertips. Quiet conversations with friends tighten relationships and yield invaluable information. Update budgets.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Don't resort to promotional gimmicks or pretense of any sort. Speculation in familiar areas is well worth the risk. Just be sure you have the facts.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Your imagination comes alive but tempts you to do things you normally wouldn't. Entertainment is favored. Share the good humor.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Recycle spare parts and leftovers into useful items. Don't discard anything unless it won't fit into schemes you're promoting.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Be cooperative despite many remaining doubts. Your group forges ahead with or without you. Try to go alone. Don't make promises.

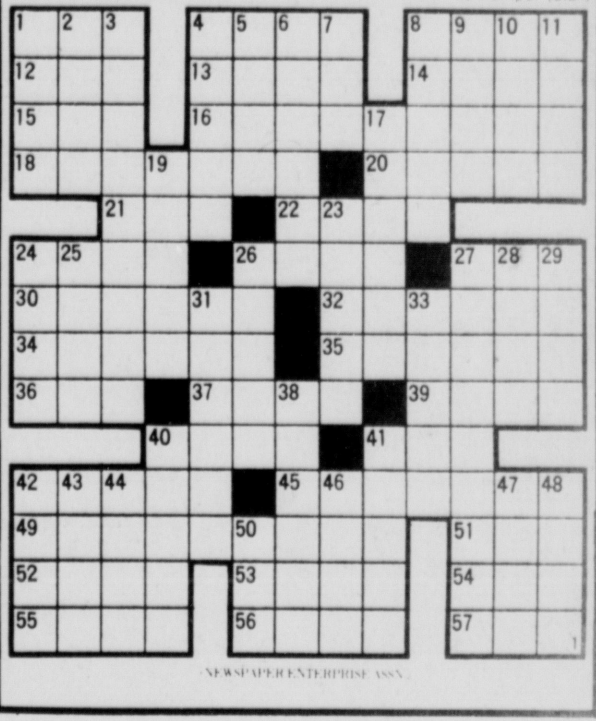

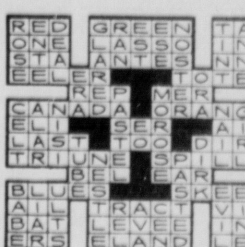

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 21): You can be all things to everybody as you move on to new, untried experience. Be wary of financial offers; let others rise to the bait.

In the '20s the best auction bridge in the world was played at New York's Knickerbocker Whist Club. Culbertson and Sims were two of the best, but many others contributed tremendous help in getting contract bridge on its feet.

One was Ted Lightner. Ted, who is now 82 or 83, plays rubber bridge at the Regency Whist Club several days a week.

The best known of his many contributions to the game is the Lightner slam double. This double means that when your opponents bid a slam on their own steam you are asking your partner to make an unusual lead, rather than the one you would normally make.

Here is a simple example of this bid which every expert uses today. Without the Lightner double West would open a club. East would take the first trick and South the rest. After the double, West leads a heart and poor South is one trick short of his contract.

Jean Adams TEEN FORUM

By Jean Adams, Ph.D.

EXPERIENCE: (Q.) This is for girls who write you for advice about whether to give in to their boy friends. I'm 18, married, and have a year-old daughter.

Her real father took off the minute he heard I was pregnant. I had loved him enough to give in to him on our first date and I thought the feeling was mutual.

Well, thank God, another boy came along. Four months had passed by then, and I told him the truth. When I was eight months pregnant we got married. It's been over a year now and we've been happy. Of course, we have problems, but we work them out.

Not everyone has been so lucky or will be. My advice is to hold off and don't be fooled by pretty words. Wait for a promise, and a ring, and not just friendship, either!—Fortunate in New Jersey

(A.) As you say, yours is a rare case of finding understanding under the worst possible circumstances.

Few girls are so unusually blessed. No girl should count on being so fortunate, because so few are. The best course is to stay in control and not invite trouble.

HELPING: (Q.) I am the youngest one in my family. I have two older sisters. One went candy-stripping at the hospital when she was 14. I could hardly wait till I was 14 so I could do the same thing. My mother said I could.

But now I am going to be 14 soon, and just because candy-stripping didn't do my sister any good my mother is telling me I can't go. I don't think this is fair. Do you?—Turned Down in Pennsylvania

(A.) Candy-stripping is one way a teen-age girl can help her fellow human beings. Helping others is rewarding, and most girls who go into it seriously find candy-stripping rewarding.

Your sister may not have been serious about it. Impress upon your mother that you ARE serious in wanting to try it, and that it is very important to you. When she sees that with you it is not just a whim or just something to do, maybe she will change her mind. Good luck.

Discouraging Words for '76 College Seniors and Job Hopes

WASHINGTON, D.C. — This year's college seniors are having a harder time lining up jobs than last year's, the College Placement Council has reported to no one's great surprise.

And what happened to the Class of '75? We asked the director of the largest college placement office in the area at SUNY, New Paltz, Mary Louise Farley.

"The Class of '75 has largely disappeared," she said. "We've had the poorest response to our job questionnaire we've ever had. We really don't have enough feedback to know what's happened to them."

Her personal opinion is that many may have set the questionnaire aside until they had a job more of their choice to report. "We all have our personal pride," she commented.

Another gauge usually used by "career development" offices (as they are now called) to measure employment is to study the recruiters from industry, educational and other institutions and their job offers.

This gauge is now practically worthless, noted Ms. Farley, as there are practically no recruiters on campus anymore. "It's unbelievable how fast it has decreased," she exclaimed, adding that "they don't need to come to campus" and most corporations now prefer to use agencies to screen job applicants.

Some statistics from the College Placement Council: employer job offers to students at 159 colleges are 16 per cent lower this year than last for bachelor degree candidates. Offers are down 25 per cent to master's degree candidates, and down 32 per cent for doctoral candidates. And "just about everyone agreed that 1974-75 was a tough year," said a council spokesman.

One bright spot was seen to be that undergraduate women are getting 27 per cent more job offers than a year ago, and offers were up 36 per cent at the master's level. Job offers to men declined 20 per cent for undergraduates and 13 per cent for master's candidates.

Offers to students in the humanities and social sciences declined by 26 per cent, the greatest drop, followed by those of students in engineering, science and business fields.

Despite some pressure to reorient liberal arts education to make it more specifically job oriented, Ms. Farley remains adamant in her defense of the liberal arts as developing a basis that will give a student options later in his or her life.

She did emphasize that students must learn to "investigate early" in the job market, or they will be greatly disappointed. Many come into the Career Development Office naive about job seeking and expect to see a choice of jobs laid out before them in five minutes.

There is a trend among young people to try to integrate their job into their life in a more meaningful way than has been done on a large scale in the past. Ms. Farley cited a survey she had read that determined a high percentage of people nationally are very unhappy with their jobs. "Young people are feeling more able to admit their life style," she commented.

Thus, at New Paltz, her office conducts "life planning seminars" on a semi-regular basis where students come in groups of seven or eight and try to nail down some of their values, decide what's important to them, and then begin planning to achieve it.

Ms. Farley believes that students should go after what they really desire, choose a location they want to live in, and be willing to "go without certain amenities" in order to satisfy themselves with their work, if necessary. There is very little hope for someone who walks into the office and asks for rewarding work in the Hudson Valley, she added.

At SUNY, New Paltz the problem is currently compounded by the large number of staff members who have been thrown out of work due to state budget cuts, she pointed out, referring to "a man in his 30s with two children" waiting outside who has been faced with an even more complex dilemma than those undergraduate students he must compete with for work.

"This is a terribly discouraging business these days," said Ms. Farley.

Head Bird Disputes DEC on Goose Watching

KINGSTON — The ever-informative Department of Environmental Conservation has just put out the word that this is the season for goose watching.

The DEC means watching

the kind that go "honk," not the kind that result in a "whoosh."

Goose watching seems like an interesting enough sport for the humans who indulge in it, but the Freeman wondered how the watchees feel about the game.

In keeping with this newspaper's long-standing principle of getting our information from the best available sources, the Freeman interviewed the head goose, Pegasus Thunderbeak, in the middle (actually a little more towards the end) of his annual flight back from the Chesapeake Bay, his winter waddling grounds.

We flagged down Thunderbeak from the Kingston-Rhinecliff Bridge, as he was proudly winging his way along at the head of a V-shaped phalanx of his kind, which in keeping with this newspaper's long-standing principle of printing the truth even if it hurts, must be said to have been in not very good order.

Actually, we flagged Thunderbeak up; he was leading his group under the bridge, claiming to be avoiding DEC radar.

Asked about his feelings on the goose watching game,

Thunderbeak got right to the point. "People should mind their own damn business," he honked.

"How would you like it," he honked rhetorically, "if every time you and the little woman and a group of your friends came back from Florida, the Interstate was lined with geese, all of them with field glasses, and telescopes, and radar and a lot of other mechanical stuff."

"It's embarrassing, degrading and downright degoosizing," he honked on.

In keeping with this newspaper's long-standing principle of asking every relevant question, no matter how tough, we asked Thunderbeak to give his opinion of the DEC's statement that geese actually help the fields of winter wheat they forage in by clipping off the tops of the wheat and encouraging fuller growth, and contributing "ample high nitrogen fertilizer."

He honked that it was "a matter to delicate to comment on," and flew off.

Just before he left, he honked that he had changed his mind about using the Hudson as a flyway, and was going to use the Rondout all the way up to Peekamoose Mountain before bearing north again, claiming that state budget cuts had thinned out the DEC radar on that route. He and the V headed west.

Schermerhorn: Death for Murderers

ALBANY — Noting "a life is a life; murder is murder, no matter by whose hand the blow is cast, nor on whom the blow falls," State Senator Richard E. Schermerhorn, R-C, Cornwall, has announced he has introduced in the State Senate a bill that would mandate the death penalty for all convicted murderers.

Schermerhorn explained that under current law there are two classifications of murder. The Cornwall lawmaker said, "Murder-one is when a person is convicted of killing a police officer or an employee of a state correctional institution. This carries a mandatory death sentence." Schermerhorn continued, "Murder-two deals with the murder of anyone else. A prison term ranging from 15 to 25 years and possibly life imprisonment would be imposed."

"The result of the current law," Schermerhorn said, "is if a police officer is murdered in the line of duty, the defendant shall be sentenced to death. If a housewife is murdered, the defendant's sentence may range from 15 years to life in prison."

Schermerhorn's bill, therefore, will mandate the court to impose the death penalty to defendants who are convicted of murdering another human being.

Future Looks Rosy for Saugerties

SAUGERTIES—Saugerties is heading into a business boom. After several dormant years, new businesses will be opening up, established ones are relocating within the village and positive steps are being taken to clean up empty stores.

Evidence of this business development is even indicated by traffic counters installed by the New York State Department of Transportation on Route 9W, at Barclay Heights, in the Village of Saugerties and outside of Veteran on Route 212.

With a "green light" indicated for the town's sewage project, according to talks with Town Supervisor Frank Greco who is expected to announce details this week, more new business opportunities will be opening up.

Cumberland Farms, a convenience store popular throughout Connecticut and New Jersey, is completing construction of its new building on Main Street next to the Post Office. The store is known to sell staples and gasoline.

On April 26 at 7 p.m. in the Village Hall, the Saugerties Ambulance Service will be seeking approval of a variance from the Zoning Board of Appeals to relocate on property recently purchased by them. The new site is the Campbell property located on West Bridge and Partition Streets.

Stewart's Ice Cream Company, which purchased the Ambulance Service property on Main and John Streets, will open a "bread and butter shop" there and may possibly be equipped with gasoline pumps similar to their other locations in the county.

It is rumored Kentucky Fried Chicken is planning to take over Stewart's current location on Main Street. According to Albert J. Cawein, public relations and industrial development director for Ulster County, officials from Kentucky Fried Chicken were inquiring about locations in Saugerties about a year ago.

Joan Feldmann, new village trustee, told the Freeman that three empty stores have been officially condemned and will remain closed until the owners repair them. "It will be up to the village board to keep on top of that problem," she said.

Mrs. Feldmann and her husband, Edward, who own Eddie's Delicatessen in Saugerties, are active leaders on the area's New Business Development and have been spearheading these new moves. On their list for the Village is another supermarket and department store.

The Freeman also learned that Kaye Sports Inc. of Kingston may open a branch store on Main Street next to the International House and pending approval from the Comptroller of the Currency in Washington, D.C., the Rondout National Bank will open a branch office on Main Street in the old Clum Building. This will be the second commercial bank for the village, the other being Chase Manhattan.

It also is rumored that the Fondi Farm on Route 9W owned by Daniel D. Cantor of Jericho, L.I., has been discussed as a possible location for a shopping mall. Two years ago the issue was raised and Alexander's Department Store was rumored to be interested. Two weeks ago, according to Cawein's office, population figures and other pertinent information were again being researched by two individuals "who were reluctant to identify themselves." They are interested in the Cantor site located near Flamingo Restaurant.

Mrs. Feldmann, however, told the Freeman this type of development would not be possible until the sewage project is completed.

"It will be necessary to use the Village's disposal plant until another plant is constructed. The entire project is expected to take about two years," she says.

'Crystal Ball' Computer Latest Electronic Coup?

KINGSTON—Inquiries to a local electronics firm regarding reports of the new 'crystal ball computer' drew denials and curt replies of "no comment." Despite the corporate giant's repeated protestations that such a computer does not exist, the rumors continue to pour in.

The first incident called to our attention took place at a local bistro. A patron, obviously in his cups, boasted that he could accurately predict the outcome of all 10 races at Monticello the following night. With odds like that his bet was quickly covered, doubled, and squared. Every one of the gentleman's selections did, indeed, come in (one only after a hotly contested disqualification), but he never returned to claim his winnings.

The next occasion we had to puzzle over this seer's uncanny clairvoyance came right before election time. A neatly typed roster of the coming election's outcome came in the mail, unsigned. The writer's prophesy was correct in every detail.

Added to these incidents are the bits and pieces of back fence gossip that sift through the community. One such account reports that the programmer involved with the crystal ball computer is impaled on the horns of a dilemma: He had now profited greatly from the computer's advice on races, football games and the stock market. He could comfortably retire on the small fortune he has amassed. But that would end his association with the research computer that lays the golden eggs. The gossip-mongers further state that the merits of the marvelous machine have not been brought to the attention of corporate headquarters. With inflation accelerating, he doesn't know how much is enough' (Why doesn't he ask the computer?) At any rate, the equipment employed is not for sale, so our hapless hero must continue to maintain low profile and sleep on a lumpy mattress.

We have polled experts in the field asking if such a thing could be possible. They shrug and mumble about the law of probability . . . the mathematics of chance . . . and finally state that such a thing as infallible prediction couldn't happen.

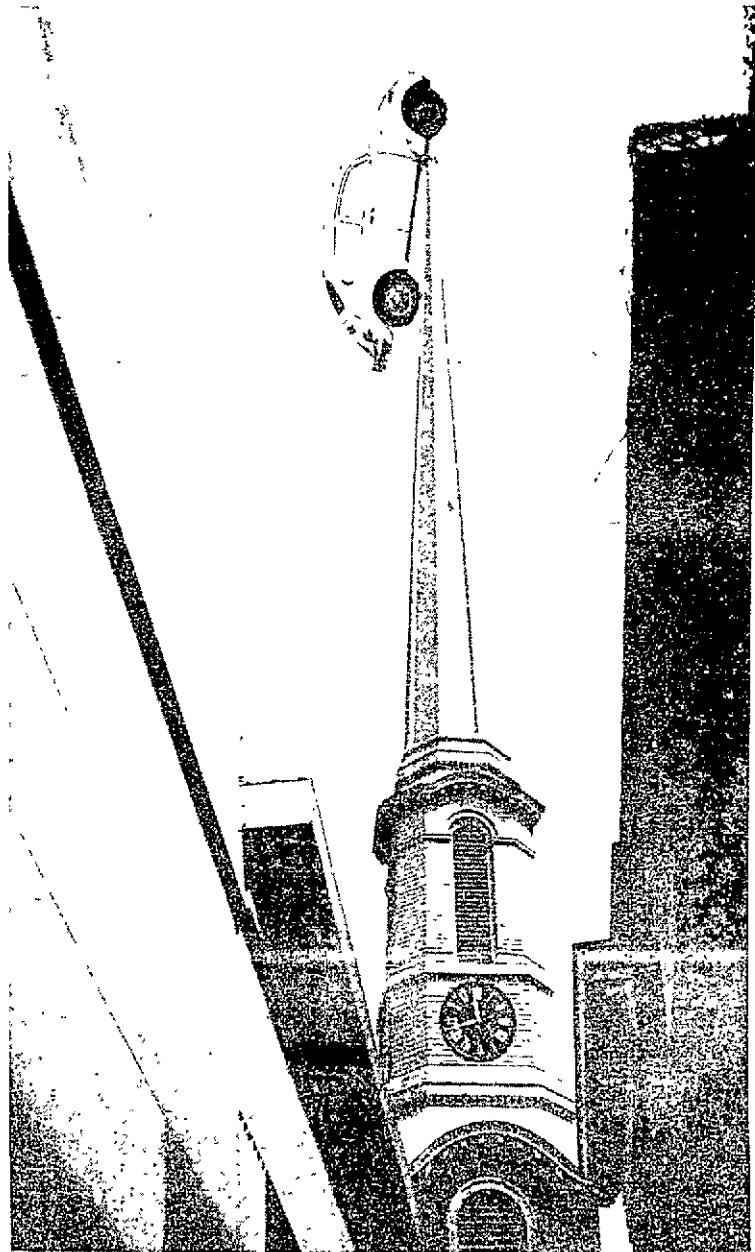

And yet, as the rumors persist, we find ourselves remembering that most discoveries were believed to be impossible until some creative genius brought all the components together in the proper quantities, sequence and theory. Others follow the reasoning of the originator, but only a few have the gift of invention.

Mind-boggling are the possibilities of the ability to foresee the future. In the hands of the unscrupulous, the deck would be stacked against any parlor gambler. In the hands of a wealthy few, stock market killings would be common. In wide usage, no race would be worth running . . . no lotter ticket, save one, worth buying . . . no competition worth entering . . . no war worth fighting?

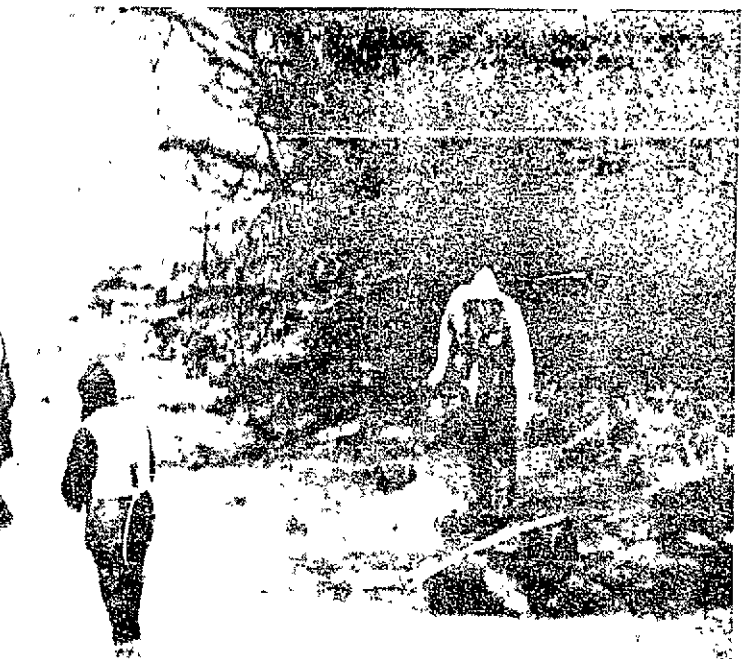

As we pursue the matter further, we realize how much of the spice of life is dependent upon the laws of chance. Young maidens could know the name of their future husband . . . the sex and prospects of their unborn child. Young men would know their career prospects, or the lack, aloof. We would know the moment of our deaths . . . the onset of illness.

On the other hand, the trips involving accidents would never be made. Houses would burn with no one home. The unexpected would cease to be.

If such a thing as he crystal ball computer does exist, it would certainly be kept under wraps by those who discovered the concept. It holds more possibilities than the electric light; more danger than nuclear fission.

LOOK UP IN THE SKY—It's a bird, it's a plane . . . it's Superbug! And, why not? If it gets more miles to the gallon on a straight-away, it can do the same in the stratosphere. And what better challenge than a heavenward climb up Kingston's Old Dutch Church steeple? Disbelievers are reminded that a ghostly painter once haunted this spire on stormy nights, left his hobgoblin's cap perched atop its pinnacle by the dawn's early light. But that was a horse and buggy tale. In today's wheel society, the story needs modernizing—and what better day for the birth of a new legend than April Fool's?

FIVE FEARLESS FISHERMEN . . . This bleak setting at the portal near Allaben early today reflected the mood of the opening of the 1976 trout season in New York State—swollen, roily and running streams, few catches and steady rains. Meanwhile, an upgraded flood watch brought a

A. J. Winds Up Long Rec Career

KINGSTON—Andrew J. Murphy III, closes out a 28-year career as superintendent of recreation today.

Murphy, contacted by the Freeman following his recent vacation, confirmed that he has "filed his papers" and is awaiting official word from the state retirement system. Murphy expects to vacate his $16,200 a year job today. "I'll probably work Friday just to finish out the week," he said.

Lawrence Hyatt, park foreman and Murphy's number two man for the past few years, will assume leadership of the recreation department until Civil Service examinations can be administered. An exam has been ordered.

Murphy, native of Kingstonian with a degree in physical education from Bucknell University, was recreation director at Wallkill Prison before succeeding the late Harry Edson as city superintendent of recreation on May 3, 1948.

Prior to that Murphy had an outstanding athletic career beginning at Kingston

High School where he lettered in three sports and continuing at three major colleges, Notre Dame, Manhattan and

A. J. Murphy

Bucknell. Murphy led the nation in yardage gained as an offensive end at Bucknell in 1943.

He was called into the Marine Corps that year, serving almost four years and rising to the rank of captain at the time of his discharge in 1946. (Murphy saw combat action in the south Pacific during World War II.)

As head of the city's recreation department he has been honored on several occasions, most recently as the Kingston Moose Club's "Citizen of the Year" in April of 1975.

He turned 55, the minimum retirement age, in October of last year and that combined with some health problems dictated his retirement.

Murphy said he doesn't have any immediate plans for his retirement other than "just to take it easy for awhile." Murphy has owned the Plaza Liquor Store in Kingston Plaza for a number of years.

He and his wife, the former June Maurer, live at 79 Lucas Avenue. They are the parents of seven children, three at home

But Will It Help Plattekill?

By Matt Spireng

PLATTEKILL—Ulster County's proposed Local Law No. 2 of 1976 regulating the importation of refuse may go far toward banning the dumping of garbage from outside the county in any landfills newly established within the county in the future. But, ironically it may have little effect on what garbage winds up in a privately-owned landfill in the Town of Plattekill which was one of the main reasons for constructing the proposed law.

(A special meeting of the Ulster County Legislature has been called by Legislature Chairman Peter J. Savago, R-Dist. 8, for Monday, April 6, to set a date for a public hearing on the proposed local law regulating the importation of refuse into Ulster County.)

Assistant County Attorney Francis T. Murray, who drew up the law, told the Freeman Wednesday that he doesn't think it will apply to the Plattekill situation.

Murray explained that any local town ordinances banning importation of refuse take precedence over the proposed county law.

The Town of Plattekill does have a local ordinance banning importation of garbage. Murray said he thinks the local ordinance applies to the landfill owned by Dutchess Sanitation Service, Inc., which is the center of the garbage controversy in Plattekill, and therefore the county law, which is expected to go into effect April 13, will not apply.

However, town officials in Plattekill say that they have been told by attorneys they have consulted that the local ordinance does not apply to the Dutchess Sanitation landfill near the hamlet of Clintonville. The town non-importation measure, which only covered the town-run landfill until it was amended in 1968 to apply to all landfills in the town, can not be used by the town to keep garbage out of the Dutchess Sanitation landfill since that site was already in existence prior to the amendment, town officials say they have been advised.

Even if the proposed county law is found to be applicable in the Plattekill situation, it will apparently be difficult, if not impossible, to enforce. The reason: while prohibiting the importation of refuse, the law makes an exception for existing approved landfill sites where imported garbage is presently being dumped. It will be legal to dump up to 60 tons of imported garbage a week in such sites.

Murray admitted the exception would make it difficult to enforce the law on a daily basis. Explaining that the importation would have to be monitored by Health Department personnel, he said, "Obviously we're not going to stand down there and trace all the trucks coming in and out of the county." He said such action would only be taken if there was reason to believe the law was being violated.

Murray said he does not think the exception makes the law ineffectual and explained that if the exception were not included the law would be more open to a Constitutional challenge.

"You have to make some provisions so you don't look completely unreasonable in shutting them down completely," he said.

He noted that there is sound legal precedent for townships shutting down landfills, whereas there is no such precedent for counties taking such action.

"The towns should all realize that this is something they should be doing for themselves," he said.

The proposed county law does provide for a fine of up to $300 and/or imprisonment of up to six months for each violation, which would be a misdemeanor.

Wholesale Prices Gain

WASHINGTON — Wholesale prices rose 0.2 per cent in March as rising costs of industrial goods and processed foods overshadowed a drop in prices for farm products, the Labor Department reported today.

The 1 per cent decline in farm product prices was less than in recent months, the department said. Industrial commodities rose 0.4 per cent last month and processed food costs were up 0.2 per cent.

Filipino Flees to Embassy

MANILA, The Philippines — Former Philippine President Diosdado Macapagal sought asylum in the U.S. embassy today to avoid arrest for his book calling for the military to end the "lawless dictatorship" of President Ferdinand Marcos, a Macapagal spokesman said.

A press release from Macapagal's office said he had sought asylum "following reports from a dependable source that his arrest was imminent on 'concocted grounds' because of his persistence in asking for the convening of the interim assembly and to 'frighten supporters' of his proposal."

Ack-Ack in Brink's Probe

MONTREAL — The police investigation into the biggest cash robbery in North American history was centered today on the American-made antiaircraft gun used to hijack a Brink's truck and its $2.8 million cash cargo.

"We have a few leads we must follow, but there is nothing firm at this time," said Inspector Jean-Claude Rondou, in charge of the city police force's Criminal Investigation Bureau.

Pink Slip for Schwartz

ALBANY, N.Y. — The Senate Finance Committee's rejection of Gov. Hugh L. Carey's controversial nominee to head the state's prison watchdog agency was to be officially announced today.

Informed sources told United Press International at least 13 of the 24 committee members, a majority, had voted to reject the appointment of Herman Schwartz to chair the Commission of Correction.

NBC Struck, Continues

SAN DIEGO — Some 1,700 technicians and news writers, rejecting a federal appeal for delay, went on strike today against the NBC television network. NBC continued operating with supervisors and management personnel.

Dick Goldstein, the network's vice president for labor relations, said crews of supervisors and management personnel were standing by to take over when the strike began.

Carey's Edict Scored

SCHENECTADY, N.Y. — State Supreme Court Justice Guy A. Graves has assailed as "arbitrary, undemocratic governmental compulsion" Gov. Hugh L. Carey's executive order barring state employees earning $30,000 or more from holding elective governmental office.

Graves also said that conferring "absolute power of removal of duly elected officials by the governor or his appointed boards by 'fiat'" appeared inconsistent with the state constitution and Town Law elective processes.

Argentina Pruning Knife

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina — Argentina has decided to fire all nonessential government employees in its first drastic step to reduce a $2.38 billion budget deficit and put the nation back on its economic feet.

A law issued late Wednesday by the ruling three-man military junta did not specify how many employees would be involved in the payroll cuts, but they were expected to remain in effect until at least the end of the year.

New Lebanon Cease-Fire?

BEIRUT, Lebanon — The United States and Syria both opened urgent new peace efforts today to end Lebanon's 11-month civil war and there were indications a cease-fire was in the making.

Former Premier Saeb Salam, after conferring with Socialist party leader Kamal Jumblatt Wednesday, said he thought a cease-fire was imminent. But Jumblatt later said that optimism was premature, telling reporters "not to be in such a hurry," for a truce.

Heavenly Wish for Jim, 105

NEW FORT RICHEY, Fla. (UPI) — There are two things James Cole wants to do: go fishing and go to Heaven.

Cole, who turned 105 Wednesday, says he longs to be reunited with his wife, Marie, who died 11 years ago at the age of 90.

"I like being alive and 105, but I would like to die and see my wife," he said. Her picture is taped to a wall of his nursing home room and Cole says he kisses it every night before he retires.

A native of New York City, Cole said he has seven living children, 14 grandchildren, 28 great-grandchildren and 11 great-great-grandchildren.

"I always liked a good smoke and a good drink," he reminisced, putting on a cigar. "Always loved beer — but everything in moderation."

"The only thing I didn't do in moderation was love my wife."

"There are two things I would like to do," Cole said. "I would like to go fishing. Love to go fishing. But the thing I would like to do is go to Heaven."

Having had operations for removal of cataracts on both eyes, Cole is nearly blind and he no longer has his teeth.

"I hid my teeth under my pillow and somebody took all my linen and shipped it to the laundry," he explained. "Never did see my teeth again."

Soviets Checking Europe

LONDON (UPI) — Soviet warplanes flying too fast and too high for Western defenses are making regular reconnaissance flights over Europe, the magazine New Scientist said today.

The aircraft were identified as MIG25 Foxbats, capable of achieving three times the speed of sound at an altitude of 90,000 feet. The magazine said they were based near Dresden in East Germany and near Gdansk in Poland.

According to New Scientist, the aircraft "are making regular reconnaissance and electronic intelligence gathering missions over Britain and other NATO countries."

The purpose, it said, is both to take pictures and to test the defensive reactions of the target countries. No NATO warplane or missile can get high enough to challenge the intruder.

A NATO spokesman in Brussels, questioned about the report, said "We have no reports about any overflights of NATO countries by the MIG25s."

New Scientist said the MIG25s were moved to their forward bases 18 months ago and shortly thereafter began the flights. It said in wartime, they would provide reconnaissance for long-range bombers.

"The move forward has brought most parts of Britain within range," the magazine said. "Prominent targets for photography include RAF and USAF base concentrations."

Similar MIG25 flights are being made over Israel, the report said.

"One attempt has been made to shoot down a MIG25 when an Israeli Phantom (jet) fired a Sidewinder missile unsuccessfully during a Soviet overflight of Tel Aviv," it said.

Upstate Man Is Seized

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI) — The Buffalo office of the FBI said today that a Niagara Falls, N.Y., man has been arrested in Mansfield, Ohio, on a warrant charging him with leaving the New York State to avoid prosecution.

The FBI said Raymond Lewis Smith, 26, was indicted by an Erie County grand jury in Buffalo on April 26, 1974, on charges of second degree robbery and third degree grand larceny. He and another man were accused of taking an auto, credit cards and money from a Buffalo-area resident, the FBI said.

A federal warrant was issued for his arrest on March 3, 1976. Smith was to be arraigned before a U.S. magistrate in Cleveland.

His Niagara Falls address was given as 3710 Highland Ave.

Long Ordeal Almost Over

TRENTON, N.J. (UPI) — Joseph Quinlan, with the sanction of New Jersey's highest court, says he will seek medical permission to remove his daughter, Karen Ann, from a life-supporting machine and let her "die with dignity."

The New Jersey Supreme Court ruled 7-0 Wednesday that a respirator which has kept the comatose 22-year-old Miss Quinlan alive for nearly a year may be turned off if doctors and a hospital ethics committee find there is "no reasonable possibility" of her recovery.

"We don't consider this a victory," said Karen's mother, Julia, through her tears. "We are going to lose our daughter. But this is the way we want our daughter's life to end."

Karen's parents, both Roman Catholics, told a news conference they would consult doctors today about a medical panel acceptable to the ethics committee of St. Clare's Hospital.

Karen has lain there in a coma, bent into a fetal position, her weight reduced from 120 to 60 pounds, since April 15, 1975, after apparently mixing alcohol and barbituates at a party.

"This was the decision we've been praying for from the time we entered the courts," said Joseph Quinlan in announcing his move to obtain the approval to let his daughter "die with dignity."

Chief Justice Richard Hughes wrote, "We have no hesitancy in deciding that no external compelling interest of the state could compel Karen to endure the unendurable, only to vegetate a few measurable months with no realistic possibility of returning to any semblance of cognitive or sapient life."

He added, "The ensuing death would not be homicide but rather expiration from existing natural causes."

The court said doctors who originally refused the Quinlans' request to remove the respirator may feel differently because "we assume that she is now even more fragile and nearer to death."

If they still disagree, the court said, her father may find other acceptable doctors "who may take a different view."

Quinlan told reporters he wanted the respirator disconnected in the presence of the family and their priest.

State Attorney General William Hyland called the decision "highly compassionate" and said an appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court was unlikely.

Carey School $ Veto . . . Rumbblings Continue

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — Gov. Hugh Carey stands a good chance of becoming the state's first chief executive in 104 years to have his veto of a bill overturned by the legislature.

In the process, he has created issues that could assure the re-election of some Democratic assemblymen and will give Senate Republicans ammunition to use this fall to unseat incumbents in marginal districts.

The Senate and Assembly, in separate actions Wednesday night, took the first steps toward overriding two Carey vetoes, both relating to education spending.

A move in the Assembly to pass into law a measure rejected by the governor was approved 128 to 18, with 28 votes more than the two-thirds needed with the Democratic majority voting solidly to rebuke the Democratic governor.

The bill would limit New York City's ability to cut its school budget as officials looked for further economies to cure fiscal problems.

In the Senate, the Republican majority, even with the help of three Democrats, failed by five votes to overturn Carey's veto of the distribution formula for $116 million in state aid to schools.

However, two GOP senators were absent and the Republican strategy was that pressure supplied from home districts and from teachers' union officials would prompt three more Democrats to switch their votes.

The school aid formula was tabled after the unsuccessful vote and the GOP planned to bring it up for reconsideration next Thursday, the same day on which the Senate could vote into law the New York City school budget bill.

The Senate vote was 35 to override and 20 against after more than three hours of debate, during which angry state lawmakers called Carey "a weecher," "a horse thief," "a liar" and "dishonest." At least 40 votes were needed.

Several lawmakers charged that Carey had violated a pledge when he vetoed the formula, which was a key part of a $10.781 billion state budget agreed to after extensive negotiations.

Senate Majority Leader Warren Anderson, R-Binghamton, led the fight to pass the formula into law over Carey's veto. He said Carey was "the first governor that has ever gone back on a promise to me."

All Democrats except Sens. Linda Winkow of Spring Valley, Karen Burstein of Queens, and Carol Bellamy of Brooklyn refused to go against the governor.

Hubert Isn't, But Would

A group of big city mayors provided a forum today for four Democratic presidential hopefuls to state their views on what should be done about the nation's urban problems, and Ronald Reagan sorted through Republican reaction to his televised nationwide address.

The National Conference of Democratic Mayors was gathering in New York for a question-and-answer session with Henry Jackson, Morris Udall, Jimmy Carter and Frank Church, to be followed by a speech from Hubert Humphrey, who says he isn't a candidate but wouldn't mind being the nominee.

A state convention of South Carolina Democrats agreed Wednesday night to send nine delegates to the national convention committed to Carter, eight committed to George Wallace, one committed to Church — his first — and 13 uncommitted.

Without mentioning his challenger by name, Ford suggested to nearly 1,000 Republicans at a $1,000 a plate dinner in Washington that Reagan was hurting party unity. "I am always campaigning for the unity of this party," Ford said. "That has been my philosophy and my practice and I will not abandon it in 1976."

Ford's campaign committee, dismissing Reagan's talk as a "basic stump speech," said: "There is nothing new in it."

There was one thing new, but Reagan didn't say it. The moment he quit talking, an announcer told viewers how to send money. Reagan hopes to gather enough funds for a strong bid in primaries in the South and West in early May.

Reagan will seek support in Tuesday's Wisconsin primary with a statewide television address this weekend — similar to a statewide television appeal that preceded last week's North Carolina triumph.

Ford plans to campaign in Wisconsin during the weekend. Reagan's state manager said there was a slight chance Reagan will be in the state Monday.

Mayor Richard Daley, yet to endorse a candidate, said in Chicago Carter "has a potential to be a candidate and a good candidate." Daley said Democrats should quit looking for a "super candidate" and recognize that "there's something in the office that elevates a man and his thinking."

Carter, campaigning in Wisconsin, said the Democrats could suffer from efforts to deadlock the national convention.

"Trying to contrive a brokered convention would be making a serious mistake for the party and the country," Carter said. "It might be the one factor that keeps us from winning this fall."

Udall, campaigning in upstate New York, predicted he would beat Carter for first place in Wisconsin and finish a "strong second" to Jackson the same day in New York.

Udall drew big crowds in Rochester but was snubbed by Democratic legislators in Albany. "Out, out, out of the room," they shouted when Udall and his entourage showed up for a scheduled address to a Democratic caucus.

Gov. Hugh Carey then granted Udall a visit but refused to leave his office to pose with the candidate for photographers.

Wallace said he would cut his Wisconsin campaign short and spend the weekend in Montgomery. "I'm the governor of Alabama and I have things to do," he explained.

At the time, many thought that they had been spotted eating in their limousine in the parking lot at the Jack-In-The-Box on Broadway. However, this report was dispelled when it was noted that Mrs. Nixon has an aversion to tacos and hot sauce.

If one thing seems more like fact, it is the statement the former President allegedly made before retiring one night a few weeks ago: "Honey, why would a nice, historic town like Kingston, with all its rich historical background, have a Democratic mayor and aldermen-at-large? Haven't they learned anything since 1776?"

Sources of informed sources close to the former Chief Executive later said that Nixon hadn't made that remark either. A 10-second gap in the tapes made of conversations in the Nixons' boudoir bear this out, informed sources said today, April 1.

Peter Gives His View

KINGSTON—REPORTER: Hi, Pete. I've been sent out to do a man-on-the-street interview today and thought you might be willing to answer a few questions.

PETER STUYVESANT: Shoot, as we used to say in the old days.

REPORTER: My editors want to know if you approve of off-track betting as a means of raising funds today instead of taxes?

STUYVESANT: Taxes, taxes. Are they STILL talking about taxes? It seems to me that if people are still running around in circles after all these years, they might as well let the horses, too.

REPORTER: Say Pete, is it true what Joe Epstein says about Gov. George Clinton standing over here on Academy Green? That the guy has Hebrew ancestry?

STUYVESANT: Sure is. Says so right in the history books. Not only that, I hear Joe wants to name the downtown post office after him.

REPORTER: My editors would also like to know whether you think the City of Kingston should give Spring Lake residents some of its water?

STUYVESANT: Well, well, well now, let me see. Well...

REPORTER: A few more wells Pete and they'll have enough water.

STUYVESANT: Don't be funny. It seems to me that this here being the Bicentennial, with the Spirit of '76 and all that, that a little old-fashioned neighborliness is in order. Seems to me that maybe they could all drink from the same well, or my leg isn't wooden.

REPORTER: Speaking of legs, I hear legend has it that your wooden leg isn't wooden at all, that it is silver.

STUYVESANT: Shhhh! With all the muggers and robbers running around these days, and me standing here so vulnerable on Academy Green, if it gets around that this here leg is silver, well, I may find myself being bartered for a nickel bag.

REPORTER: Seriously Pete. Wouldn't you think a paper like the Daily Freeman could do better than this on April Fool's Day?

STUYVESANT: No way. As I used to tell the New Netherlanders before I surrendered the colony to England. "April Fools have a day all their own, but the rest of us just muddle along without any recognition."

'Mom and Pop Stores' in Mutual Protection

By Carl Graham

PORT EWEN—Threatened by chain store domination and concerned over the state's present blue laws, a group of independent neighborhood retailers met at the Dolphin Inn in Port Ewen Wednesday night and formed a mutual protection association.

The group, which formally adopted the name of Association of Independent Retailers, elected Fred Schoonmaker of the Hurley Corner Store as its president.

Although the original intent was to fight the blue laws that they feel discriminate against small businessmen, Schoonmaker emphasized that AIR's objectives would be much broader. He cited such benefits as group discount rates on insurance, advertising and purchasing, group legal services, increased political "clout" and educating the public on the problems facing small businessmen.

Other officers named to get the fledgling association going were Fred Moon of the Town Pantry in High Falls, vice-president; Ann Gentilin of Mower's Market in Woodstock, secretary and Joseph Vaccaro of Vaccaro's Market in Highland, treasurer.

The group voted a $5 monthly membership fee and named Lenny Price, a Kingston antique dealer, to head a committee to draw up bylaws.

Moon pointed out that most retailer's organizations are national in scope and that the average small merchant has little contact with them. "I think we need a local organization, and 'local' is the key word," he said.

Nat Gadaletto, father of Stephen Gadaletto, owner of Gadaletto's Market in Highland, said that he is thinking of bringing suit against District Attorney Francis J. Vogt for discrimination. Gadaletto said that Vogt had brought charges against him in 1974 for selling meat and groceries on Sunday, but that he was found not guilty in town justice court.

"Then he (Vogt) had charges against Grand Union thrown out of court," Gadaletto said. "Your case is one of the reasons we decided to form this association," Moon said.

The Grand Union charges referred to by Gadaletto occurred in February when his son, Stephen, filed a complaint against Don Juhl, manager of the Highland Grand Union store, for keeping his business open on Sunday. Town Justice Louis DiStasi dismissed the charges Feb. 28 when Vogt said that he would no longer prosecute blue law violations.

Vogt's announcement came after State Supreme Court Justice Joseph Kuszyński of Buffalo ruled the blue laws unconstitutional, although Vogt had announced earlier that he would not prosecute such cases.

An earlier announced goal of AIR was legislation that would allow individually owned stores to remain open on the Sabbath if they chose but which would force large chain stores to remain closed, but the State Court of Appeals, ruling on another case arising in Buffalo last year, decided that selective enforcement of blue laws denies equal protection under the law and reversed convictions against several chain stores.

AIR will meet again on Wednesday, April 14, in the Dolphin Inn, beginning at 8:30 p.m., to hear the report of the bylaws committee and to make plans for a membership drive to encompass all areas of the county.

KURA: Dealt in Good Faith

By Hugh Reynolds

KINGSTON—The Kingston Urban Renewal Agency insists it dealt in good faith with would-be developer Roland Augustine and that if there were any delays, as charged by Augustine, they were on the part of the developer, not the agency.

"If Augustine is unable to negotiate leases with his tenants he shouldn't blame the urban renewal agency," said KURA executive director James C. Connors.

The dispute between the agency and Augustine over redevelopment of the five-acre Parcel-17 at the corner of Washington and Hurley avenues was made public Tuesday by the Freeman when Augustine accused the agency of "delaying tactics" which he said thwarted his plans to build a $2.2 million office complex with a bank on that parcel.

Augustine leveled two other charges: that the agency refused to give him a firm price on the land and that the price indicated ($200,000) was far in excess of the price it was offered to James Andretta three years ago for a similar project. He has said further that the urban renewal agency made unreasonable demands on him regarding parking, making his project economically untenable.

The entire matter was discussed at a meeting of the Common Council Tuesday night at City Hall where both sides presented their views.

Connors tells the Freeman that after the decision was made last October to break up the 5.5-acre Parcel-17 and make it available to smaller subdivisions, the agency received inquiries from several parties, including Augustine.

Among those interested parties, said Connors, were the First National Bank of Highland, a group of doctors, a person seeking land for a funeral home complex, and, at a later date, the Rondout National Bank.

At one point, said Connors, some of the interested parties were considering developing the parcel together. A decision to go separately was made on Dec. 26, 1975.

Connors indicated that at about that time Augustine was discussing a proposal with the First National Bank of Highland. The agency's land use requirements allow the construction of banks but they must be part of a building of at least 50,000 square feet with the bank occupying no more than 20 per cent.

Augustine wanted a "free standing bank" which would have required not only a plan change but approval from the Rondout National Bank which was already an urban renewal redeveloper. (The bank had bought some urban renewal land across the street on Hurley Avenue and had planned to go into construction on an uptown branch this spring.)

Connors said he met with James Dwyer, president of the Rondout National Bank on Jan. 6 on the possibility that the bank might want to move its location from Hurley Avenue to the corner of Washington and Hurley Avenues on Parcel-17. Connors said he explained the restrictions. "They called us, we didn't call them," Connors said.

During the next few weeks it became known that due to state banking laws, the First National Bank of Highland could not locate in that area in competition with Rondout National.

Augustine then began negotiating with Rondout National which had expressed interest in building on Parcel-17. The bank wrote Connors on Feb. 23 that it was reserving decision on the move to Parcel-17 until it could get some firm figures from the developer.

The bank also wrote, "We also should have a commitment from urban renewal that should we be unable to arrive at acceptable terms with Mr. Augustine, that we could purchase the desired land at a fixed price."

Connors acknowledges Dwyer's letter on Feb. 27 and closes by stating, "Please let us know if you wish to be considered as your own developer or if you are able to work out an understanding with the proposed developer."

Augustine claims that the agency's answer to Dwyer indicates the agency's willingness to undercut his negotiations with the bank. Connors says he was merely responding to Dwyer's inquiry. "It was Roland's prospect," he said.

The subject of the price of the land comes up in a letter of March 12 from Connors to Augustine. In it, Connors states, "Subject to all necessary local, state and federal approvals this will confirm that we estimate the minimum land price to be $1 per square foot for the size of the parcel to accommodate your proposal."

That proposal, as detailed by Augustine Feb. 4, called for a pair of two-story office buildings with 20,000 square feet each and parking for 80 cars and a bank with parking for 25 cars on four acres.

The agency objected to Augustine's layout because it would make the remaining 1.5 acres of land fronting on Hurley Avenue "virtually unsalable." Connors sent Augustine's proposal to the agency's planner, Raymond, Raymond, Parish and Pine, who recommended "a more efficient use of the parcel," i.e., slightly over three acres with parking for 150 cars.

Gallup Poll

Jimmy, Jerry Virtual Tie In National Test Voting

By George Gallup

PRINCETON, N.J. — President Gerald Ford has moved into a virtual tie with Jimmy Carter following the Illinois primary, after having trailed the former Georgia governor two weeks ago.

In the latest nationwide survey, Carter wins the support of 45 per cent of registered voters compared to 46 per cent for Ford. Carter led the President, 47 to 42 per cent, in a survey completed between the Florida and Illinois primaries.

At the same time, Sen. Hubert Humphrey runs Ford a close race. Ford, however, enjoys an 11-point lead over another potential Democratic opponent, Sen. Henry Jackson, 52 to 41 per cent.

As reported by the Gallup Poll this week, Humphrey and Carter are currently the two top choices of Democratic voters across the nation to be their party's nominee this year. Humphrey is chosen by 30 per cent of the Democratic rank-and-file for the nomination while Carter has about the same support — 25 per cent. Jackson is fourth on the list of Democratic choices, the favorite of 11 per cent.

Ford Gains

Analysis of the latest results shows Ford has made his gains on Carter by winning a larger share of the independent vote than he did before the Illinois race and — following his fifth consecutive primary win over challenger Ronald Reagan — by increasing his support among his own party members.

Although Carter does better against Ford among independents than does either Humphrey or Jackson, the President nevertheless has a 52 to 37 per cent edge over Carter with this important bloc of voters.

Also, while Carter continues to generate more appeal among young voters against

Ford than either of the two other Democrats tested, he no longer enjoys the 2-to-1 margin he had over the President in the previous survey with people under 30 years old.

Here is the question asked of all registered voters:

"Suppose the presidential election were being held today. If President Gerald Ford were the Republican candidate and Jimmy Carter were the Democratic candidate, which would you like to see win?" (The same question was asked posing Humphrey and Jackson as the Democratic candidate.)

Here are the latest results for all three races as well as the trend for this year.

	Ford	Carter	Other/undecided

The results reported today are based on personal interviews with 1,052 registered voters out of a total sample of 1,487 adults, 18 and older, taken in more than 300 scientifically selected localities during the period March 19-21.

Teamsters Are Moving Into the Government

WASHINGTON—Nine months have passed since Jimmy Hoffa disappeared and the Federal Bureau of Investigation is nowhere close to solving Hoffa's murder. A "sizeable number" of FBI agents still work on the Hoffa case, mostly in Detroit. The FBI hasn't given up hope of finding Hoffa's body. It still pursues leads and eliminates suspects. But it has made no progress that FBI headquarters here considers encouraging. Hoffa's murder was a professional job. The profession that did the job is organized crime. And the job is in the tradition of criminal infestation of the Teamsters. Extraordinarily, the federal government never has been able to lay a hand on the Teamsters and Hoffa's murder is the perfect crime. More extraordinarily, the Teamsters have been able to lay a hand on the federal government. And, most extraordinarily, the Teamsters' hand has been assisted by President Ford. The background of this extraordinary story is that Teamster and other unions are fighting each other to sign up government employees—federal, state and local—of all kinds. Some five million local and state employees and at least 680,000 federal employees already belong to unions. The Teamsters, however, seem most interested in signing up government law enforcement employees. When Hoffa still was Teamster boss a decade ago, he directed the union to begin organizing local and state police, starting in his home state of Michigan. Today the Teamsters claim to represent 3,000 police officers in Michigan plus perhaps 12,000 local and state police from California to Minnesota to Virginia until Feb. 5, 1975, however, the Teamsters couldn't represent federal employees in police and security jobs. President Kennedy in 1962 signed the executive order allowing unions to represent federal employees, but with safeguards. The order excluded FBI employees. And it said other federal employees in police and security jobs could not be represented by a union, such as the Teamsters, that represented other types of federal workers. Federal police and security guards, therefore, had to have their own unions or no unions. On Feb. 6, 1975, Ford signed a supposedly technical and thus unnoticed amendment to the executive order. The amendment said that henceforth federal police and security guards could be represented by multiemployer unions, such as the Teamsters. When Ford retreated, the Teamsters advanced. Teamster officials in their white marble headquarters here won't say how many federal police and guards they've signed up. But government sources tell me the Teamsters have signed up hundreds of federal police and guards, such as the security guards at U. S. Navy bases in San Diego and Coronado, Calif., and at the Naval Electronics Laboratory at San Diego. The Teamsters now are organizing Federal Aviation Administration police officers at National Airport here. The Teamsters drive also is netting other federal employees, some raided from other unions. Recently the Teamsters won an election to represent 400 Armed Forces Exchange System employees in San Francisco. The Teamsters have organized the Federal Aviation Administration's 50 technicians who maintain air navigation facilities in Chicago. Unionization of any government employees, local, state or federal, raises profound questions. It's against the law almost everywhere for government workers to strike because a strike by public employees is a strike against the public. But local, state and even federal employees have struck, in violation of the law. Unionization of government law enforcement officers by the Teamsters Union raises frightening public questions. The Teamsters were expelled from the AFL-CIO for corruption in 1957 and Hoffa's murder confirms that crime and violence infest the Teamsters now more than ever. At best, Teamster representation of law enforcement officers raises the possibility of blackmail. At worst, it raises the possibility that criminal infestation of the union will infest government.

Military Aid to Chile Is Once Again an Issue

WASHINGTON, D.C.

Former President Richard Nixon finally admitted in a sworn statement to the Senate recently that he had ordered the Central Intelligence Agency to try to prevent a leftist government in Chile and didn't much care how it was done.

It was the final confirmation, if something of an anticlimax, of one of the most sordid chapters in American foreign policy.

The current chapter isn't much nicer, except this time we're trying to be the good guys and Chile represents the bad guys. This week Congress is engaged on two fronts in an effort to stop U.S. military aid to the current Chilean government, a military regime widely believed to be one of the nastiest and most repressive in the world.

Dubious Distinction

A year ago, Congress bestowed upon Chile the dubious distinction of being the first country in modern peacetime to be denied credit for purchases of U.S. military hardware purely on the basis of humanitarian reasons. The Senate repeated the rebuke earlier this year, also forbidding government and commercial cash sales and terminating deliveries from orders placed long ago. Congressional experts estimate Chile has $121 million in such airplane orders now in the works. President Ford had requested $20 million in credits and $900,000 for military training in this year's budget.

But House opponents of military aid to Chile were too eager and proposed such sweeping punishment that the measure was defeated approximately 2 to 1. A Senate-House conference is attempting to work out the differences this week.

The House International Relations Committee also begins hearings this week on military aid for fiscal 1977, in which assistance to Chile will once again be an issue. Among the committee's witnesses will be three freshmen congressmen who recently returned from Chile—Democratic Reps. Toby Moffett of Connecticut, Thomas Harkin of Iowa, and George Miller of California.

The trio walked into a tense situation that is typical of current U.S.-Chilean relations. They had been invited to visit the country by Chilean officials and were permitted to move about freely and talk to whomever they wished, insofar as they could tell. But the day after they left the country a news story from Santiago announced that any resident who had discussed the government unfavorably with outsiders would be guilty of a crime.

Stone Wall

Inquiries from the State Department and the congressmen produced a stone wall from Chile. The Chilean embassy here denied such a policy and accused the congressmen of making false charges, which didn't improve the diplomatic climate. The congressmen suspect the story, accurate or not, was designed to intimidate them and force them to soften the account of their visit, during which they talked to families of prisoners.

They intend to push for an aid cut-off anyway. They said they had evidence of "wide-spread detention of individuals without trials, tortures, killings of junta opponents and the disappearance of thousands of persons."

It is peculiar that the congressmen were allowed to enter Chile in the first place, since the regime recently refused to admit United Nations and Organization of American States human rights commissions seeking to investigate reports of torture and murder.

Economic assistance to Chile continues, including about $55 million in Food for Peace funds this year. But that too is out of concern for human rights, since it is hoped most of it will actually reach the people of that very poor country—whereas it is certain the weapons and planes will do them no good.

Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, who has deplored the excesses of the Chile regime, has an opportunity to snub or boost Chile in June. He is scheduled to attend a high-level Organization of American States meeting there which, if he goes, is certain to be interpreted as tolerance of the regime. A State Department spokesman waffled last week, saying, "Whether we attend an OAS meeting has nothing to do with the internal situation. As far as we are concerned, we in no way condone the denial of human rights in Chile, but I think it's two separate issues."

Congress, however, where Kissinger is in increasing disfavor, is not likely to view it as two separate issues at all.

Foreign Commentary

Three Birds, One Stone

CAIRO (UPI) — China's move in giving Egypt 30 warplane engines and other spare parts for its predominantly Soviet-supplied arsenal kills three birds with one stone for the Peking government.

According to an authoritative diplomatic assessment, the action also undercuts criticism that President Anwar Sadat has swerved to the West.

Sadat disclosed China's help, which he said was free of charge, in an interview with the Italian news agency ANSA. The Egyptian state-run Middle East news agency said the Chinese gift also included "several thousand types of spare parts for planes in addition to some other equipment."

For China, diplomats say, this achieves three major aims:

—It goes some way toward helping Egypt to overhaul its Soviet-made MIG warplanes and other weapons which, in Sadat's own words, risked becoming "scrap iron" in 12 to 18 months because of a Soviet ban on new arms and spare parts to this country. It was mainly for this reason that Sadat abrogated his friendship and cooperation treaty with Moscow earlier this month.

—The situation afforded

China, locked in a serious ideological conflict with the Soviets for years, a golden opportunity to take a swipe at Moscow on the particularly sensitive issue of arms deliveries. Peking has previously attacked the Soviet Union as an arms merchant and in making its gift to Egypt, according to Sadat, the Chinese government said "We are no arms merchants."

—The gesture improves China's image in third-world countries and, by the same token, undermines Soviet standing by indirectly pinpointing Soviet use of arms as an instrument of pressure.

For Egypt, China's move is a welcome contribution to Cairo's desperate efforts to overcome a military dilemma which Sadat is now trying to solve by visiting West Europe.

Egyptian officials say Yugoslavia also has pitched in with spare parts and other assistance agreed at a Belgrade visit by War Minister Gen. Mohamed Gammasy just before cancellation of the treaty with the Soviets.

Diplomats say the deals with China and Yugoslavia, both Communist nations, show that Egypt is not relying on the West only to bail it out of military shortages.

Sadat decided in the middle of 1974 to diversify his arms sources and since then has made several transactions with Western countries, notably France and Britain. He is also seeking to establish an ongoing arms supply relationship with the United States, starting with the proposed purchase of six C-130 transport planes.

This has given rise to charges by the Soviets and some extremist Arabs, including Libya, that Sadat has become totally Western oriented. His cancellation of the treaty with Moscow has added fuel to the charges.

In hindsight, Sadat's treaty abrogation was not a complete gamble, taken without advance preparation. The President said the arrangement with China was made six months ago. Gammasy's trip to Yugoslavia also predated the scrapping of the treaty.

Artists', Construction Workers' Ball Wild and Wooly

WOODSTOCK — The social event of the season, attended by a smashing crowd of more than 2,000, took place over the weekend at Deanie's Restaurant here. The Watkins Glen Grand Prix and the opening of the Metropolitan Opera were like nights spent in a Stewart's ice cream parlor compared to this gala event.

The occasion was the 36th Annual Artists "and Construction Workers" Ball, sponsored by painters and sculptors in the art colony and those residents of the town who earn their living as plumbers, electricians and home builders. The latter have in recent years, been salting away as much money in Swiss banks for cleaning septic tanks, wiring second homes for vacationers and building ski chalets as the town's internationally known artists have been sending to financial institutions in the Alps from commissions to paint portraits of Nelson Rockefeller and Barbra Streisand.

Admission was $3.75 per person and there was dancing to a six-piece band until 2 a.m. People brought their own booze, of which there was gallons.

Deanie's, of course, is nationally known. It says so right on the paper napkins. It is a large place and has a long bar, a lot of tables, and a big front porch, access to which is up several steps.

Usually at the Artists "and Construction Workers" Ball, a man who has been drinking falls down the steps and lands on his derriere like a bomb, disturbing the other celebrants, who must either carry him to his car or call the local ambulance squad to transport him to the hospital.

That did not happen this year, although, as the evening heightened, many people were falling head over heels trying to dance on the tables to the six-piece band.

The tone of the evening was set at 11 o'clock when a man named Chester came into the restaurant wearing pressed blue jeans and a Mexican shirt and carrying in an Adidas bag two quarts of homemade hard cider he said he intended to drink all by himself before the festivities ended three hours hence.

Chester is well-known around Woodstock as an old time beatnik poet who often reads his own verse in another bar up the street. Normally, local residents steer clear of him but, tonight, because homemade hard cider is almost a thing of the past, a nostalgic artist introduced himself to Chester in an effort to become friendly.

Everybody stopped drinking and dancing on the tables. Alfie was, as usual, making everybody uncomfortable. The plumbers and electricians wear khaki or denim work shirts and feel strongly that Mexican shirts like Chester's are not only ostentatious but actually un-American.

The first of eight acts was introduced at this point. When this happened many of the plumbers and electricians repaired to the parking lot since five of the acts were local rock bands and they don't think rock holds an electric guitar to country and western.

At one end of the bar, a local artist, who never misses a chance to sell a painting, set up his easel and began painting portraits. A member of the local country club, who had wandered across the road from the golf course, was in a corner demonstrating how Ben Hogan used to win tournaments.

"He had a lot of class," he kept saying. "He could beat that Chicano Trevino any time."

Chester began to roll up the sleeves of his Mexican shirt. "You wanna fight?" he challenged. And, without waiting for an answer, felled the golfer with one blow across the belt with a bottle of hard cider.

By now it was well past midnight and the entertainment was over. The plumbers and electricians who'd been listening to country and western from Wheeling, W.

Va., on their car radios, wandered back in. The noise level was now that of Niagara after the spring floods. The Artists and Construction Workers Ball was turning into a complete success.

You knew it was a success when Chester fell off his chair, reciting a Jack Kerouac poem on the way down. He had been drinking the remaining bottle of hard cider and he went down under he table like a plane shot from the sky in a World War I dogfight.

The wife of a local construction worker stood in the show signs of renewed life. "Where'd you get that shirt?" he sneered. "Off' Castro's Commie back, I bet!"

Chester lashed out with the last, remaining, empty, hard cider bottle. He missed by a mile and the roofer grabbed the Mexican shirt by its embroidery and shook hard. It was stars over Tijuana for Chester.

People were stomping all over he tables by now and bumpin into the artist at the easel and tripping over Chester's feet. Anybody who says Woodstock balls are not great should be exiled to High Falls.

Bicentennial Prints Offered

KINGSTON — James F. Dwyer, President of the Rondout National Bank announced today that the bank is offering sets of bicentennial prints of early-day Ulster County to its patrons. The collector prints, which were done by the well-known Bloomington artist, A.E. Ruffing, depict scenes of The Spy House in Old Hurley, The Senate House, The Court House, and the VanSteenbergh House all in Kingston.

Winner of numerous awards, A.E. Ruffing is nationally known for her watercolors and lithographs depicting the passing scene of rural America and is represented in fine collections and galleries throughout the country.

She was commissioned this year by the Boy Scouts of America to create lithographs in celebration of its founding, the originals of which are now part of the permanent collection of the National Boy Scout Museum. Her American pen and ink drawings were reproduced for the National Leukemia Association, and she has presented several benefit shows of her original works for hospitals and other worthy organizations.

Flower Show Set

SAUGERTIES — Plans for the 52nd annual flower show on June 9 and a conservation report on diverting some chemical fertilizers from golf courses and lawns to vital food production were part of the agenda for a Society of Little Gardens meeting here recently.

In the interest of the public, Mrs. William Waldele discussed horticulture as "the backbone of all flower shows" and emphasized the importance of reading flower show schedules with regard to entries.

April Showers

Irene Lavery (l) Mary Ann Van Wagenen and Florence Boice work on decorations for the upcoming dance given annually by St. Peter's Couples Club. This year's theme is "April Showers" and the event is scheduled for Saturday, April 10 in St. Peter's school hall, Adams Street, Kingston. Music for dancing will be provided by Charlie Lee and his band from 9 p.m. to 2 a.m. Reservations should be made with Florence Boice of 24 Presidents Place, Kingston.

A Real Clean House

KINGSTON — Several months back a well-known official at IBM was transferred and his rambling ranch was put up for sale. IBM handled all the transactions.

The home was vacant throughout the winter. However, IBM saw to it that the house was heated sufficiently to avoid damage to pipes and plumbing. And, in order that the residence would make a favorable impression on potential buyers, an elderly woman was hired to clean up the place occasionally and keep it presentable.

Finally, after all this time, an out-of-town family looked, liked and latched on to the place lock, stock and barrel. The new owner was amazed at the cleanliness of the house. After all, it had been empty for a year or more. Then, he was told about the cleaning woman who came in regularly to take care of such details. He smiled and said: "I don't think I'll let on that it's sold."

Children And Ads

KINGSTON — Phyllis W. Barlow, extension home economist for the Ulster County Cooperative Extension Association, 74 John Street, has announced a scheduled workshop on "Children and Advertising."

There will be three sessions on Thursday, April 1, 10 a.m. to 12:15 p.m. and 8:10 p.m.

Admission is free but those planning to attend should register for seating arrangements by contacting the Home Extension office.

Mrs. Barlow, who says a child's eager mind is a beauty not to be manipulated for excess profit, urges parents unfamiliar with advertising children hear and read to check magazines and comics printed for teens as well as boxtop offers. She also urges parents to monitor early morning late afternoon and Saturday morning television programs.

The quality of ads will be discussed, how to complain and how to guide children in their beliefs about ads.

Sorosis Art Contest

ULSTER — Sorosis Club of Kingston recently held an Art Contest for high school pupils at the Bonanza Branch of the Heritage Bank. Thirty-four pictures were entered in the contest by the Kingston High School, John Coleman School and the Ulster Academy Art students.

Judging the pictures were three eminent artists of the area: Ms. Vivian Fliegel, of Highland, Martin Carey of Willow and Saul Krotky of Highland. Ms. Fliegel won a CAPS grant in Print making in 1975 and the John Taylor Arms Memorial Prize from the National Academy of Design in 1974. She has had a one woman show in New Jersey and has exhibited widely in shows throughout the Eastern States.

Carey is at present teaching at the Arts Community in New Paltz.

He has had one man shows in New York City, Boston and in Worcester and has taken part in group shows in New York City, Dallas and Chicago. He holds awards from the Ford Foundation, Ball State College, the Berkshire Museum and others.

Krotky also teaches at the Arts Community in New Paltz. His pictures have been widely exhibited at the National Academy, the National Arts Club, the Allied Artists and the Berkshire Museum.

Winners of the high school students contest were: First Prize won by Scott Petito of 21 Emerson Street, Kingston, a pupil at the Coleman High School. Second Prize won by Blair Caple of the Kingston High School who lives at 15 Overlook Drive, Kingston. Dave Jones of Mill Rd., Rhinebeck, a Coleman High School student won Third Prize.

Honorable Mention Awards were presented to Ulster Academy student Gregory Dinger of Manor Drive, Woodstock. Sean Troy, Ulster Academy student who resides on Lucas Avenue Extension, Kingston and to Melanie Rau of Spring Lake Trailer Park, a Kingston High School student.

These six winning entries were taken by Sorosis to a contest of District Clubs of the Federated Women's Clubs in Latham on March 24. Winners of the District Contest will be taken to a State Competition in May.

Sorosis has promoted these Art Contests for a number of years in the Kingston area and the students of the Art Classes of the schools have repeatedly won high honors in competition with the best in the State.

Jaunting Along on Hikes by U

STONE RIDGE—A series of four hikes to the Catskills under the leadership of Bob Steuding is being sponsored this spring by Ulster County Community College.

There will be an April 24 jaunt to North Lake and South Mountain, a trip to Artists' Rock and North Point May 8, a journey May 22 to Devil's Path Hunter Mountain, and a hike June 5 to Wittenberg.

Steuding, an Associate Professor of English at UCC, is known locally as a poet, hiker and author. He has written a series of poems inspired by the Catskill locale dealing with man's relationship to the land.

Those going on the North Lake and South Mountain hike will see the locale of three of the classic mountain houses of the 19th century and the real setting for the Rip Van Winkle legend. They will visit the favored haunts of John Bartram, one of America's first naturalists and the place from which James Fenimore Cooper's Leatherstocking tales had a setting.

The Artists' Rock North Point hike will enable participants to look back on some of the physical settings used by the Hudson River school of painters. Other spots visited will be the natural rock shelters and waterfalls at Mary's Glen, Sunset Rock, Newman's Ledge, Rip's Rock and Sleepy Hollow Notch.

The Devil's Path-Hunter Mountain hike will follow a different trail than previous Hunter Mountain hikes sponsored by the college. Hikers

The Wittenberg Hike, one of

Artists', Construction Workers' Ball Wild and Wooly

WOODSTOCK — The social event of the season, attended by a smashing crowd of more than 2,000, took place over the weekend at Deanie's Restaurant here. The Watkins Glen Grand Prix and the opening of the Metropolitan Opera were like nights spent in a Stewart's ice cream parlor compared to this gala event.

The occasion was the 36th Annual Artists "and Construction Workers" Ball, sponsored by painters and sculptors in the art colony and those residents of the town who earn their living as plumbers, electricians and home builders. The latter have in recent years, been salting away as much money in Swiss banks for cleaning septic tanks, wiring second homes for vacationers and building ski chalets as the town's internationally known artists have been sending to financial institutions in the Alps from commissions to paint portraits of Nelson Rockefeller and Barbra Streisand.

Admission was $3.75 per person and there was dancing to a six-piece band until 2 a.m. People brought their own booze, of which there was gallons.

Deanie's, of course, is nationally known. It says so right on the paper napkins. It is a large place and has a long bar, a lot of tables, and a big front porch, access to which is up several steps.

Usually at the Artists "and Construction Workers" Ball, a man who has been drinking falls down the steps and lands on his derriere like a bomb, disturbing the other celebrants, who must either carry him to his car or call the local ambulance squad to transport him to the hospital.

That did not happen this year, although, as the evening heightened, many people were falling head over heels trying to dance on the tables to the six-piece band.

The tone of the evening was set at 11 o'clock when a man named Chester came into the restaurant wearing pressed blue jeans and a Mexican shirt and carrying in an Adidas bag two quarts of homemade hard cider he said he intended to drink all by himself before the festivities ended three hours hence.

Chester is well-known around Woodstock as an old time beatnik poet who often reads his own verse in another bar up the street. Normally, local residents steer clear of him but, tonight, because homemade hard cider is almost a thing of the past, a pasteurized, bottled concoction himself is also a man eager to become merry.

Chester, slumped over his chest, "I have a story to tell," "There have been a dozen artists who have died."

Everybody stopped drinking and dancing on the tables. Alie was the first to make extremely noisy noise. The plumbers and electricians wear hard hats and safety glasses and most people had their eyes on the floor.

Van, on their car radios, wandered back in. The noise level was now that of Niagara after the spring floods. The Artists and Construction Workers Ball was turning into a complete stress.

The know it was a success when Chester fell off his chair, reclining a dead Korone poem on the way down. He had been drinking the remaining bottle of hard cider and he went down under the table like a plane shot from the sky in a flash. Woodstock night.

People who had consumed too much alcohol in the show signs of renewal. "We're not getting that party," he sneered. "Oh, Chester's coming back, I bet!"

Chester faded out with the last remaining empty hard cider bottle. He missed by a mile and the reader guessed the Mexican shirt by its embroidery and slack hard hat stars over his face for Chester.

People were stamping all over the tables by now and bumping into the artist at the end and tripping over Chester's feet. Nobody who says Woodstock could not not great should be excited to High Falls.

Bicentennial Prints Offered

KINGSTON — James F. Dwyer, President of the Rondout National Bank announced today that the bank is offering sets of bicentennial prints of early-day Ulster County to its patrons. The collector prints, which were done by the well-known Bloomington artist, A.E. Ruffing, depict scenes of The Spy House in Old Hurley, The Senate House, The Court House, and the VanSteenbergh House all in Kingston.

Winner of numerous awards, A.E. Ruffing is nationally known for her watercolors and lithographs depicting the passing scene of rural America and is represented in fine collections and galleries throughout the country.

She was commissioned this year by the Boy Scouts of America to create lithographs in celebration of its founding, the originals of which are now part of the permanent collection of the National Boy Scout Museum. Her American pen and ink drawings were reproduced for the National Leukemia Association, and she has presented several benefit shows of her original works for hospitals and other worthy organizations.

Flower Show Set

SAUGERTIES — Plans for the 52nd annual flower show on June 9 and a conservation report on diverting some chemical fertilizers from golf courses and lawns to vital food production were part of the agenda for a Society of Little Gardens meeting here recently.

In the interest of the public, Mrs. William Waldele discussed horticulture as "the backbone of all flower shows" and emphasized the importance of reading flower show schedules with regard to entries.

Life

Woodstock night was a wild and wooly affair. The noise level was now that of Niagara after the spring floods. The Artists and Construction Workers Ball was turning into a complete stress.

This all proved that art and culture can mix with so-called "low" culture and weather stripping. Everybody got out together in a very democratic way and there was a lot of action.

People from the Artists and Construction Workers Ball go to have a champagne and set up in home of Henry Wade, who spent time in the White House. The night of the ball was a success. The night of the ball was a success. The night of the ball was a success.

The night of the ball was a success. The night of the ball was a success. The night of the ball was a success. The night of the ball was a success. The night of the ball was a success.

A Real Clean House

KINGSTON — Several months back a well-known official at IBM was transferred and his rambling ranch was put up for sale. IBM handled all the transactions.

The home was vacant throughout the winter. However, IBM saw to it that the house was heated sufficiently to avoid damage to pipes and plumbing. And, in order that the residence would make a favorable impression on potential buyers, an elderly woman was hired to clean up the place occasionally and keep it presentable.

Finally, after all this time, an out-of-town family looked, liked and latched on to the place lock, stock and barrel. The new owner was amazed at the cleanliness of the house. After all, it had been empty for a year or more. Then, he was told about the cleaning woman who came in regularly to take care of such details. He smiled and said: "I don't think I'll let on that it's sold."

On Conductors and Musical Directors . . .

By O. Lincoln Igou
KINGSTON — The search for a new conductor for the Hudson Valley Philharmonic Orchestra has concluded with the recent appointment of Imre Pallo. Leopold Stokowski protested years ago that he was not a ticket-collecting conductor, but a director, a leader. Curiously, the most recent orchestra program here lists an Acting Music Director but an Associate Conductor. Perhaps subtle distinctions or implications are concealed therein, or it may have been little more than a careless bit of editing. Yet, on the opposite page appears a heading, "The Season's Six Conductors," underneath which are discussed backgrounds of the various candidates, with references almost exclusively to the person's past "conducting" experience.

As a matter of fact, the broader title of Music Director is certainly the proper appellation for the position which the Philharmonic is seeking to fill. He (No women were included!) must be much more than one who accepts the polite or even enthusiastic plaudits of the audience at the end of each number. He must command the respect and admiration of many people for a variety of reasons.

A Product of Interaction

Since the quality of concert performance is a product of the interaction between members of the orchestra and the person standing in front of them, the player's individual and composite evaluation of the director must be regarded as one of prime consideration. True, every member of the orchestra is being paid for a job, a service, which he is expected to provide. Nevertheless, the operation of the principle of satisfaction as a motivating force for producing one's best work also must be recognized here and, if unsuccessful, the immediate result will be an inferior performance. Eventually, the departure of key musicians for happier fields will contribute to the deterioration of the Philharmonic or of any other comparable group.

What, then, are the qualities which the players have a right to, and do expect in their leader? Obviously he must be well-grounded not only in the stylistic traditions of various music periods but particularly of those works which he will program. But this is only the beginning. He must also have studied thoroughly the score of each work about to be rehearsed and performed, developing his own concept of what the composer was trying to say, and deciding how best to marshal the orchestra's resources to convey that message.

Should he double the woodwinds to balance the large body of strings in the modern orchestra? Should he rewrite brass lines to include seemingly more logical notes which were unavailable to Haydn, Mozart, and even Beethoven, or should he conclude that the composer compensated in other ways at the time for these mechanically-imposed voids? How does he want to shape the musical lines in the strings by starting this phrase with an up-bow or down-bow; and exactly where does the bow now most effectively change direction again?

When, if ever, is the overall effect of a major work tightened by ignoring the composer's instructions to repeat the exposition, or some other section? In order to secure the proper dynamic balance, how should he supplement indications omitted by the composer; or should he even revise pianos and fortes already there? And what of articulation: attacks, slurs, staccatos, and the like? Or how "happy," how fast is this particular allegro? How much modification does this ritardando call for, and starting exactly where? How much louder should the music become at this crescendo, especially in relationship to other crescendos which appear earlier, or those which will follow? Of critical importance: where's the peak, the climax of the movement, or of the entire work? Truly, the director's lot is not a happy one!

Answers to most of the questions above are also important to those in the audience, but they are less aware of individual problems, because they are not or cannot be at rehearsals, usually do not have access to musical scores, and must rely on a more general and somewhat less calculated response to a performance.

The orchestra musicians, however, have yet other criteria to which their reader must measure up. He must have a clear and precise beat, yet one which conveys the mood or spirit of the moment. With his hands, his yes, his total posture, he must provide important cues, regulate tempo, dynamics, and matters of broader musical import, even (especially) in rehearsals. When less than ten hours are available to prepare a Hudson Valley Philharmonic concert, one needs an experienced and effective rehearsal-master, one who can make the more minor adjustments both vocally and by utilizing that broad range of gestures available to the director, without exhausting both the orchestra and himself by stopping and starting every few measures throughout a rehearsal.

Leadership Not Automatic

Orchestral leadership is not an automatic, concomitant aspect of musicianship to be regarded as a basic possession of every fine singer, pianist, or violinist. It requires differing, specific skills and training, even as those of an electrician, a carpenter, and a plumber vary, although all of them flourish within the building trade. To go a step further, a quite different set of problems faces the one directing choral groups, and still other techniques are needed for the successful opera leader. They may overlap as do those of the violinist and the violist, or the clarinetist and the saxophone player; nevertheless, one does not immediately and casually move from the piano to the orchestra to the opera pit.

The director may be a special kind of soloist, but not in the sense of one playing a Brahms sonata. The success of the director's performance, in addition to his mastery of all the items listed earlier, demands that he be no less than a triple-threat genius. He (she) must be able to work persuasively with people: the musicians, the audience, and the board of directors. He must command the respect of his players, yet not be inaccessibly aloof, striving for perfection yet sympathetically sensitive to human imperfections, including his own.

He must establish rapport with his audience in many ways: by the obvious clarity of his performances, and by the variety of composers and musical idioms built into his programs, so as to include modern, contemporary works as well as Gershwin, Strauss, or even good musical show elections, together with the standard symphonic repertoire and representative American composers. He must even present a picture of an upright citizen free from all hints of behaviour or mannerisms which might arouse any suspicion whatsoever, either rightly or falsely. Yet, despite all this, he must not be a colorless figure.

Convincing Relationship Necessary

Finally, the Musical Director of the Hudson Valley Philharmonic Orchestra, and of practically all other professional orchestras large or small, must be able to establish a convincing, many-faceted relationship with the board of directors and all of those others who work for and provide financial and moral support so vitally needed by the orchestra if it is to survive. He must be not only the means of a successful liaison between his musicians and the board, but also a lion of the first order in socializing with and stimulating interest in the groups and individuals who are in a position to contribute to the support of the orchestra, either financially or through many other time-consuming services. With all these, he should be prepared to defend, hopefully through a soft-sell, a balanced musical diet which includes opportunities for talented, young unknowns to perform, as well as famous virtuosi.

Obviously he must be a twentieth-century "Renaissance gentleman." But is there any such creature alive today, and specially one who is available? "Yes, and more than one who is willing and able," said one member of the orchestra, who continued: "For this salary we all have a right to expect a really top-quality director." In a partial survey of orchestra musicians, most pointed out the difficulties in making accurate, fair, and thorough evaluations of candidates on the basis of a single concert. It was also recommended that a one- or two-year short-term contract be signed, rather than awarding an automatically-tenured appointment. It sounded like an excellent idea.

In any case, maestro Pallo, the new Music Director, has several things going for him. He has gained the approval and confidence of a committee made up of representatives of the orchestra's Central Board, management, and members of the orchestra. Presumably and almost certainly this group of ten also must have reflected a substantial positive inclination toward Mr. Pallo in polls recently taken of audiences, Philharmonic Society members, and orchestra musicians. Further, as Director of the Hudson Valley Philharmonic Orchestra, and of practically all other professional orchestras large or small, must be able to establish a convincing, many-faceted relationship with the board of directors and all of those others who work for and provide financial and moral support so vitally needed by the orchestra if it is to survive. He must be not only the means of a successful liaison between his musicians and the board, but also a lion of the first order in socializing with and stimulating interest in the groups and individuals who are in a position to contribute to the support of the orchestra, either financially or through many other time-consuming services. With all these, he should be prepared to defend, hopefully through a soft-sell, a balanced musical diet which includes opportunities for talented, young unknowns to perform, as well as famous virtuosi.

Bennett, Tech Joining

MILLBROOK — A unique cooperative, educational venture between Bennett College and New York Institute of Technology that will unlock academic potential within the two institutions of higher learning, has been approved by the Regents of the University of the State of New York. The joint announcement was issued March 26 by the presidents of the involved colleges — Dr. J. William Nyström of Bennett College and Dr. Alexander Schure of New York Institute of Technology.

Collegiate education is in an era necessitating consolidation and refinement of activities and student services that will improve and strengthen existing institutions and their instructional programs. The affiliation between Bennett College and New York Institute of Technology exemplifies the kind of institutional cooperation beneficial to institutions and students alike.

Modern facilities provide spacious living accommodations, studios, labs, and more, in combination with specialized professional career preparation.

Approved NYIT curricula on the baccalaureate level have been integrated with Bennett programs. Administrative, faculty and staff meetings have taken place at both colleges in order to dovetail and finalize plans. No loss of autonomy is involved for either institution. The affiliation will serve to enable students to complete baccalaureate degree programs offered by NYIT that complement and coincide with Bennett's associate degree specialties. Students will be expected to pursue the NYIT degrees at Bennett's campus in Millbrook. Tech's low tuition rates will apply to all who study at Bennett for baccalaureate degrees.

The traditional Bennett programs that lead to the associate degree will, of course, continue. Current developments will not replace existing programs at the two-year college — rather, additional courses of study and new educational opportunities will be possible for Bennett graduates as well as for qualified graduates of other two-year colleges.

NYIT Institute of Technology is a fully accredited, independent coeducational institution offering career oriented education. Its programs are available in conventional and accelerated day, evening and weekend schedules. At present, NYIT educates some 19,000 students of all ages and backgrounds at three major campus locations.

Dear Abby

Bulldog Sings to Owner

DEAR ABBY I am a happily married woman I've had a very close relationship with a man who is also happy with his wife. We are both in the same type of business and we see each other frequently to discuss business matters or just to have a friendly get together. We have been to bed together during business trips but neither of us thinks of it as any great love affair. We are just friends who enjoy all sides of our relationship.

About a year ago his wife found out about us and got all uptight (I don't blame her). After that, we stopped seeing each other socially but when we meet on business the close romantic feeling is still there.

Now I've heard that this man's wife has a terminal illness and hasn't much longer to live.

When she dies should I attend the funeral? If my husband were to die I'd want this friend of mine to attend the funeral but I don't know if he would feel the same way.

Should I ask him? That seems so crass. Please advise me. OLD FRIEND

DEAR FRIFND Don't ask him. And don't attend the funeral. I think he'll probably appreciate your absence.

DEAR ABBY I am a widow in my mid 30s and I live in an exclusive high rise apartment. Last month a bachelor moved into the apartment next to mine. This man has an electric organ, that I can hear him playing nearly every evening. I don't mind that but he also has a Boston bulldog that "sings" while he plays the organ. The dog's "singing" consists of a howling sound, but he very often hits the right note, begins at the beginning of every song and finishes at the end. (Sometimes the man "harmonizes" with the dog.)

The man is very attractive, and appears to be in his 60s. I understand he is a retired physician.

I suppose he is lonely, but I'm sure he could do much better than a singing dog for company. How do I meet him?

—THE LADY NEXT DOOR

DEAR LADY Invite him over for a 1-bone steak dinner and tell him you'll save the bone for his dog.

DEAR ABBY My husband and I are in the process of seeking an inexpensive way to get a divorce. We are already living apart and are in total agreement on everything, including the custody of our child and the visitation rights. All we have to do is get it all down in writing and make it legal.

We inquired at the Legal Aid Society but were told that we don't qualify for low cost legal aid because we are both gainfully employed.

The other alternative is a "divorce kit," which is a kind of "do it yourself" divorce, costing $95 for papers plus a $3 fee for filing.

As we see it, the $3 fee is the only necessary action to be taken by us. Isn't it possible to write up our own legal papers and have them notarized?

Why do we have to go through with the expense of having a lawyer write up the papers when we are in complete agreement on all the terms? —FRIENDLY PARTING

DEAR FRIENDLY Regardless of how "friendly" and "in agreement" you two may be, I would still recommend legal counsel. Some of those "do-it-yourself" divorces are more expensive in the long run than the regular kind are.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

The Necklace with a Legend

While the Sand Dollar is one of the most widely known and popular of all shells, few people are aware of the pretty little legend attached to it.

Legend has it that these strange shells tell the story of Christ's suffering and his glory.

The five holes represent the five wounds of Christ. On the front the Easter Lily—its center, a five pointed star representing the Star of Bethlehem which led the shepherds from star. On the back the outline of the Christmas Poinsettia reminds us of His birthday. When the shell is broken open five Doves of Peace and Good Will appear. Because of this religious legend, this fascinating creature of the sea is often referred to as the Holy Ghost shell.

A beautiful story beautifully told in sterling silver.

'Media Centers,' Not 'Libraries'

By UPI

So what's a Victorian bathtub lined in fur doing in a grade school media center? Media center is the "now" name for what used to be the school library. There are 51,000 nationwide. The conversion to media centers makes the libraries no place to say "shhh" anymore.

The fur-lined bathtub on fancy iron feet in the Media Center at West Central Elementary School in Francisville, Ind., is a reading place.

The little students climb in and curl up with a good book. Other media centers have bean bag chairs, floor cushions and rocking chairs.

The American Library Association says the contemporary school media center does a good deal more than make books available and encourage reading, although these still are important library objectives.

There also is emphasis on visual materials, including tapes on plays, filmstrips, records, slides and transparencies. These usually can be taken home, along with the equipment to see and hear them.

Promoting creativity also is a function of the media center.

Children in Brookline, Mass., for example, write and illustrate books.

A lot of kids across the country are writing their own books of fiction and non-fiction—as part of the media center program.

In Knox County, Tennessee, boys and girls are introduced to literature by hand puppets they make. The puppets and a make-shift stage are the media center's repertory theatre. Old and new stories are dramatized.

In Fort Wayne, Ind., students make kits, games and puzzles in the media center. These are catalogued with the author's name. Librarians lend them out.

A film about Paul Revere's ride was made by fifth graders in a Burlingame, Calif., media center.

When students in Silverton, Ore., discovered there was no written history of their town, they "wrote" one.

Armed with tape recorders from the media center, boys and girls interviewed senior citizens. They also took pictures, then turned out a slide-sound show on Silverton's history.

Other examples on happenings in school media centers—in Rochester, N.Y. Librarians borrow rabbits, sheep and chickens from a nearby farm and transport them to the media center for children to observe. Children by the way, serve on library committees in Rochester and may suggest any titles and materials they wish to be added.

Several Arizona schools have artists in residence at their media centers. Children see a lesson in art that no book can convey. They watch the artist create his sculpture, painting or watercolor from scratch.

In Richardson, Tex., a suburb of Dallas, the media center sponsors an Art Forum each week. Students hear an opera singer, meet an author or rap with an artist.

What's going on at the media center in your neighborhood school?

Chromium Supply Now in Jeopardy

NEW YORK (UPI) — The growing African nationalist warlike warfare along the 1,000-mile border between Rhodesia and Mozambique poses a long-term threat to the world's supply of chromium.

Stainless steel is 11 per cent chromium and there is no known substitute for the chromium. That makes it the single most important strategic metal to modern civilization. Rhodesia has 67 per cent of the world's strategic reserves of metallurgical chromium.

Although stainless steel was not developed until early in this century—in England—the modern world could not do without it.

Without stainless steel, there could be no jet airplanes, no space-ships and missiles, no nuclear power plants and no efficient oil refineries. Conventional power generation would be much more difficult and most modern, sophisticated medical and surgical equipment, and chemical and food processing equipment would be impossible to produce, says R.E. "Andy" Andrews, a vice president of Allegheny-Union Steel Co., Pittsburgh, who also is chairman of the critical metals committee of the American Iron & Steel Institute.

Andrews said the United States is largely dependent on Rhodesian and South African chromium. Chromium also is bought from the Soviet Union but much of Russia's large chromium deposits are not believed to be of metallurgical grade. Turkey and the Philippines also produce some chromium. Andrews said the only U.S. deposit in Montana is not economical to mine now and, even if it were, would last only about five years.

Jacquelyn Bivins, an editor at the daily newspaper, American Metal Market, who studies strategic metals, and Andrews both said the United States does not have a short-term chromium problem.

Present inventories and stockpiles are very high as a result of the recession and, in a pinch, the U. S. possibly could get along without Rhodesian chromium for a full year.

"But if a chromium crisis had developed in 1974, we would have been in real trouble," Miss Bivins said.

The present inventory is so good President Ford wants to put quotas on imports of stainless steel, but not on chromium. The president's proposal was bitterly assailed by Editor Robert M. Bleiberg of the financial weekly, Barron's, who said it could cost the American people $250 million to $500 million a year in higher prices and lost wages.

The chromium problem is not new. It has been brewing ever since the early 1960s when the white ruling class in Rhodesia, led by Premier Ian Smith, defied the British government's effort to create an independent state based on universal suffrage.

Smith set up a regime under which 275,000 whites rule some 5.5 million blacks. The United Nations subsequently voted economic sanctions against the Smith regime. The United States voted for these sanctions, which obligated Washington to boycott Rhodesia and refuse to buy her chromium, nickel or copper.

The boycott resulted in the closing of three large ferro-chrome processing plants in the United States and was such a thorn in the side of U. S. industry that Congress eventually passed a law known as the Byrd Amendment, which allowed purchase of Rhodesian chromium to be resumed.

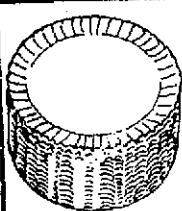

That aroused great resentment among the strongly nationalistic, newly independent African states. But so long as Portugal retained control of Mozambique on the Indian Ocean and Angola on Africa's Atlantic coast, Rhodesia was able to export freely. Even Zambia, lying between Rhodesia and Angola, allowed the freight trains to cross her territory between Rhodesia and the Atlantic coast although the Rhodesian-Zambian frontier was politically closed.

But now the Portuguese are gone both from Mozambique and Angola and suddenly the guerrilla warfare, which has been raging on the northern end of the Rhodesian-Mozambique frontier since 1972, has spread over the whole border.

The number of black guerrillas is reported have increased from 2,000 to 10,000 and they are said to be armed with the latest Soviet and Czechoslovak weapons although no tanks or warplanes have been spotted.

The Outdoorsman

The archery committee of the Federated Sportsmen's Clubs of Ulster County wants no part of any mandatory qualifying course or test for archers. Joe Juliano, chairman of the Federation's archery committee, made that clear at the March meeting in Wallkill.

Juliano quickly emphasized that he favors continuation of the present hunter safety program for all hunters that has been in effect for many years.

"If such a test were mandatory, it would soon be instituted against pistol and rifle shooters as well," said Juliano in his monthly report to the Federation.

Juliano said the archers would favor any regulation which would require: (1) Bows with minimum weight of 39 pounds at 28 inches; (2) some standard of sharpness for broadheads and (3) broadheads with minimum wind plane at general shooting distances. Such regulations would improve the hunting equipment and conditions without hunter harassment.

In his report on the current status of varying hares, Federation president Fred Faerber said the Department of Environmental Conservation has given Ulster County permission to import hares from out of state.

Faerber has ordered hares based on club participation when the program operated in the past. Cragmoor, Highlands, Marlborough, The Vly and Walker Valley will receive them when they arrive.

Faerber also announced that the Federation has put in an order for 1500 rainbow trout from 9 to 12 inches long to continue the county wide stocking program started in 1975.

Another order for 500 hybrid brook trout was made for stocking in the Esopus where rainbows cannot be stocked. The stocking date requested was May 1 and Faerber will report on the actual date at the April meeting.

Nineteen stops were requested, the same as last year. Other stocking dates for Ulster County streams already have been announced with more than 20,000 browns and brooks scheduled to be stocked.

In his waterfowl report, Skip Lyons read a letter from Matt McHugh Congressman for part of Ulster County, dealing with the zoning proposal. It is now in the hands of the politicians, Lyons said, and the only way to win the battle is bombard your Congressman with letters.

Lyons also reported on some correspondence with the postal authorities about the lack of duck stamps in the Cottekill post office. Some people assumed that such a small post office would have no call for duck stamps, but president Faerber patronizes the Cottekill PO because of its nice wide door and Fred likes duck stamps.

The fisher, an animal still considered rare or endangered in many parts of its range, has shown a remarkable comeback in New York State in response to protection and management. And not all conservationists are as happy about it as some of the DEC brass.

(Webster defines the fisher as a large, dark brown somewhat vulpine arboreal carnivorous mammal) related to the marten and weasels, native to the forested half of North America and now extinct over much of its former range).

During the 1920's fishers were in high demand and their scarcity ran the price of a good pelt as high as $345, says Paul Kelsey, DEC Regional Conservation Educator. This meant that it was worthwhile for a trapper to get on a fisher track and follow it for several days, if necessary.

The females had much more valuable hides, so trappers would selectively seek out the smaller tracks. This selective pressure on the already limited numbers brought them to the verge of extinction.

Closed seasons were legislated in 1936 and, combined with the natural recovery of the forest habitat, which followed the era of heavy cutting and burning of the extensive Adirondack forests, resulted in a remarkable recovery of the fisher.

Though the fisher themselves may not be seen often some evidence of their presence, such as the reduced porcupine population is very obvious to those who can recall the before and after.

"As a boy in the mid-30's, it was the exception when our canoe camp was not invaded by two or three porkies," Kelsey recalls. "My own boys' 'night raiders' have been limited to bears and raccoons. I refer porkies to bear."

Because of their ability to control porcupines, several states which were less fortunate than New York in saving their original fisher, have carried out fisher re-introduction programs to help save timber from porcupine destruction, a prime example of biological control of destructive wildlife.

Fisher have filled their appropriate habitat in the Adirondacks and are now beginning to range beyond. A few reliable reports of their having been seen in the northern Catskills have come in to DEC. The Department is planning to help them jump the gap by live-trapping a few and transferring them to suitable habitat in the Catskill Mountains, including Ulster County.

Though a predator, it is not anticipated that they will have any measurable effect on the hunting of small game. On the favorable side of the ledger, says Kelsey it will add a valuable furbearer for the trappers and restore an extremely interesting animal to the Catskill ecosystem for those who look at an area as a bio-community, not just a place to hunt for one or two of their favorite species of game.

So, the fisher is back in the Catskills, for better or for worse, depending upon your viewpoint.

Fallsburgh Upsets OCS

Triple Tie in UCAL

BOICEVILLE—The Ulster County Athletic League's girls volleyball division has a three-way tie for first place on the eve of today's opening round of the Section 9 Tournament at Sullivan County Community College at Loch Sheldrake.

It all came about when Fallsburgh High stunned league leading Onteora High Tuesday, with a comeback 7-15, 15-10 and 15-8 victory.

The loss dropped Onteora into a three-way tie for first place in the final standings with Red Hook and Marlboro. Fallsburgh, in doing what Coach Esther Grossman said was "something really phenomenal" got a piece of fourth place with New Paltz.

The Fallsburgh victory forces a playoff between New Paltz and Fallsburgh before the start of the Section 9 Tournament play to determine the fourth representative of the UCAL.

The four UCAL representatives will be pitted against the top four finishers in the Western Sullivan League. The four survivors will join Wednesday's first-round winners—Port Jervis, James I. O'Neill, Clarkstown North and Clarkstown South—in the quarterfinals Saturday at New Paltz High School.

In first round action Wednesday, Port Jervis rallied from a 7-15 first game loss to defeat Pearl River 15-12 and 15-6 at Orange County Community College. Port, on the verge of extinction, reeled off 13 straight points after falling behind 2-12 in the second game.

In other matches at OCC, Orange County champions James I. O'Neill defeated Tappan 15-11, 11-15 and 15-13, Rockland County champion Clarkstown South won over Monticello 15-12, 6-15 and 15-4 and Clarkstown North eliminated Newburgh Academy, 15-8 and 15-10.

Busby Disabled

FORT MYERS, Fla. (UPI) — The Kansas City Royals' Wednesday put ace pitcher Steve Busby on the 21-day disabled list, meaning he will miss the first week of the season to catch up in his conditioning program.

The 26-year-old right-hander, who won 22 games in 1974 and was 15-12 last year, was placed on the disabled list effective March 25. He will be eligible to return to active status April 15 during the club's first home stand against California and Cleveland.

Hurley Tryouts

Hurley Little League will conduct tryouts for the 1976 season at the West Hurley Little League field. Tryouts for nine and 12-year-olds will be held Saturday, April 3 at 1 p.m. and 10 and 11-year-olds Sunday, April 4 at the same time.

April Fool!

Trout Have Last Laugh

PHOENICIA—April Fool! The fishermen's luck was likely to be all bad today, as an overnight downpour turned Wednesday's clear, flowing streams into muddied torrents and threatened to wreck what was expected to be one of the finest New York State trout openings in years.

Three traditional area checking points reported a mixed bag of reaction.

"We haven't seen any fish yet (mid-morning)," said Mike Spada of Spada's Sports Shop, a popular hangout for Kingston area anglers. "We were extremely busy Wednesday, but today's early morning traffic was less than half of normal on opening day."

Folkert's, the Phoenicia checkpoint, reported "a few fishermen out, but we haven't seen any fish and the boys are getting wet."

The only optimistic note came from Carroll's Bait Box on Route 28, where a few catches were reported at the dividing weir mostly rainbows, ranging in size from 17 to 18 inches.

The mainstream is running high, wide and muddy," said a Carroll spokesman. "Conditions could get better later in the day."

For the most part, however, opening day 1976 appears to be literally a washout. The hard core group of anglers who will brave any kind of weather on opening day were out but in drastically reduced numbers.

But 24 hours can make a big difference in a fisherman's life and Friday could come up all roses—and trout.

Hines Raps 667 Series

KINGSTON—Tom Hines needed 213 for a 700 set in the Independent Tavern, settled for 180 and league leading 667. Bud Lowe and Bill Glaser each 600s.

Jerry Jones posted a new high single mark (268) and 232 for 657 in the Monday Nite Mixer. A middle 157 ruined his shot at a 700 series. Norm Good stacked 225-620.

Les Aller led the Sunday Nite Mixer with 200, 222-611 and Rich Brocco shot 228-600 to pace the Sunday Mixed Four. Renee Larson set new women's series high with 519.

Ron Brandt posted 210-601 and Lucille Steen had 504 in the Friday Nite Mixer. Peggy Barents' 528 led the Starlighters.

Ernie Cozza powered 236-606 to lead the City Minor. Gerrie Blake's 504 led the Women's Classic B and Jo Peruso topped the Monday Matinee with 534. Judy Parnett had 502. Barbara Steiner, a 122 average bowler, rolled a 199 single.

Ted Benson of the Baptist No. 2 team in the Men's Federation Church League converted the 4-6-7-10 (double pinnoch) split for which he will receive an American Bowling Congress patch.

Borg Winner Over Stone

SAO PAULO, Brazil (UPI) — Bjorn Borg, Sweden's 19-year-old superstar, had to mount a desperate rally to beat Australian Allan Stone, 5-7, 6-4, 6-3, and move to the quarterfinals of the World Championship Tennis tournament Wednesday.

After winning the first set and taking a 4-0 lead in the second, it appeared that Stone would score a major upset over Borg, one of the tournament favorites. Borg, however, kept himself in the match, breaking Stone's service in the fifth game of the second set and winning six straight games to take the set, 6-4.

With the third set tied 3-3, Borg finally broke the tired Stone's service on the seventh advantage point before a silent house in the tournament's most dramatic game to date. Borg easily won the next two games and the match.

Flag Dedicated To Chambers

The late Adelbert Henry Chambers was honored recently with a flag raising ceremony at the Town of Ulster Library. A native of Kingston who operated the Stuyvesant Motor Cadillac and Oldsmobile Agency for 40 years, Chambers donated the land upon which the library and Chambers Elementary School are built. The flag, flown over the national Capitol, was presented by Rep. Hamilton Fish Jr. (c), R-25th Dist., with Mrs. Harold Keator (l), Mr. Chambers' daughter, and Miss Anna McGrath, his granddaughter.

Freedom Keeps Dental Costs Down

NEW YORK (UPI) — Those Americans who are fond of praising the virtues of free enterprise might take considerable comfort from the comparative cost performances of medicine and dentistry.

The nation's overall national health bill soared 13.9 per cent to $118.5 billion in 1975, with $7.5 billion going for dental care.

The dental costs, however, amounted to only 6.3 per cent of the total national cost of health care compared with 6.5 per cent in 1974, 9.1 per cent in 1971 and 10.1 per cent in 1960. Dr. Robert B. Shira, president of the American Dental Association, says the big reason dental care cost has not gone up as much as general health care is that dentistry still is a private enterprise profession drawing only 5.5 per cent of its income from tax funds.

On the other hand, medical bills and other general health costs increasingly are paid for out of Medicare, Medicaid, public welfare and other tax sources. Shira said governmental agencies, federal and local, pay 40 per cent of the general health bill.

The cost of dental care not only has fallen as a percentage of the total national health bill, but dental fees and costs have not risen quite as fast as other consumer services and products. Shira said. He said the 1975 dental price index was 146.8 as compared with an overall federal consumer price index of 147.7 for all goods and services that year.

"The dentist has increased his productivity significantly in the past few years," Shira said. "This has been accomplished partly by improved technology. The invention of the new high speed drill, developed by the ADA and offered free to all dentists, enabled dentists to handle many more patients. University of Michigan economist Paul Feldstein calculated the development of this machine had the same effect as adding 1,714 full time dentists to the profession."

Good assistants, however, had done much more to increase the dentist's productivity. The old time dentist had only an office nurse. The dental hygienist was the first really trained assistant. Now there is a large corps of assistants who can take over so much of the dentist's routine work that a dentist and two such assistants can treat as many patients as two full time graduate dentists. A dentist with five such assistants can do the work of three and a half full time graduate dentists.

And now, 94 per cent of all practicing dentists employ such assistants.

The percentage of dentists engaged in private practice is high — 96,000 out of 106,000 currently active, Shira said.

HONG KONG (UPI) — Tran Van Don has probably forsaken forever the military and political intrigue some deemed as malodorous as the Vietnamese-style fish sauce he now seeks to import to the United States.

For nine hectic days last April the retired lieutenant general was the deputy prime minister and minister of defense of the doomed Republic of Vietnam.

Don, who helped topple the Diem government in a 1963 coup and once commanded South Vietnam's Air Force, now works for a firm which exports Oriental food to groceries and restaurants in North America.

Don, 58, who now lives in Falls Church, Va., has ready answers for those who ask him why the war was lost.

"We never made real war,"

he said in an interview during a recent visit to Hong Kong.

He said 200,000 South Vietnamese soldiers, using U.S. naval transport and American air cover, should have been unleashed in an invasion on North Vietnam in the vicinity of the city of Vinh, north of the 17th Parallel.

He said President Nguyen Van Thieu once told him that such an invasion was discussed in 1972 by Thieu and Secretary of State Henry Kissinger.

Don said he did not believe the discussion was "very serious" and, in any case, it already was too late for an invasion because a tentative peace agreement had been reached in Paris.

Don said the other main factor in the fall of South Vietnam was that "we didn't make a political struggle. We didn't have a new social order so it was difficult to get support from the people for the war."

There was also a lack of coordination between American and Vietnamese forces, Don said.

"There was no joint command for any operation," he said. "That was a big mistake."

Don fled Saigon by helicopter the day before his government surrendered unconditionally. He said he had learned the North Vietnamese considered him a "war criminal" because of the use by the South Vietnamese Air Force of the hated Cluster Bomb Units.

Don refrains from blaming individual leaders—either Vietnamese or American—for the Communist victory.

"I blame destiny," he said. "If I blame Thieu, I have to blame many people, including myself."

He was mildly critical of what he described as the panicky American evacuation in the final days of the war, contending that many Vietnamese were abandoned in the confusion who should have been taken out.

"You Americans are very well organized if you can push buttons," he said. "You can even send people to the moon. But when the buttons break you don't know what to do."

He grinned when he said it and later elaborated: "Americans are so beautiful and at the same time so innocent. They didn't understand the revolutionary war made by Hanoi."

Don acknowledged that the "bloodbath" some American officials predicted would follow a Communist takeover has not occurred, but he added "it still could happen."

He said he hopes the new government will have a policy of reconciliation but he does not believe refugees who want to return to Vietnam will be permitted to do so soon.

Don's wife, two sons and a daughter left Vietnam long before the takeover. He said he managed to get out some savings "but now I must work to support my family."

Don indicated he did not regret ordering South Vietnamese soldiers to fight to the end. He said as defense minister it was his duty to urge that positions be held as long as possible in the hope that a negotiated settlement might produce a coalition government. He said when failure was obvious he boarded what he believes was the last available helicopter out of Saigon.

Certified at Northern Dutchess

Five members of the pathology department at Northern Dutchess Hospital Ruth Henderson(L), Blanche Back, Frances Bradley, Pia Alexander and Joanne Komenda (seated)—have passed qualifying medicare tests administered by the Department of Health Education and Welfare. Mrs. Hendershot was also notified of her passing an examination for designation as a cytologist. Dr. Megdalia Arnan is director of pathology at the hospital.

Shots for Swine Flu Will Mostly Be Free

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Most Americans will get their flu vaccine shots free of charge next fall, according to health experts.

Administration witnesses told Congress Tuesday no one will be denied the swine influenza shots because of an inability to pay. Most persons will be able to get shots free at clinics, they said, and those going to private physicians probably will incur only slight costs.

A House appropriations subcommittee unanimously approved the $135 million immunization program — the first congressional hurdle since it was proposed by President Ford.

In Ottawa, the Canadian government announced it will vaccinate 10 million persons against swine flu next fall. The vaccinations will be made to high risk groups such as the aged, diabetics and heart patients.

The U.S. immunization program will be aimed at nearly everyone. Health officials said only a few persons — those allergic to eggs, for example — won't be asked to take the vaccine. The government's Advisory Committee on Immunization Practices will decide which groups to exempt. Alongside mass production of swine virus vaccine, a smaller production of A-Victoria vaccine will be continued.

Hotline Dropped

RHINEBECK — Members of Rhinebeck Chapter 2381, American Association of Retired Persons, learned recently that the AARP hospital emergency hotline has been temporarily discontinued for lack of demand.

Mrs. Mary Hayden, RN, of Red Hook, told AARP members at their recent monthly meeting that only three calls had been received in two months on the hotline, staffed seven days a week from 9 a.m. to noon.

Mrs. Penny Plass RN, director of social services at Northern Dutchess Hospital, said that the hotline could become an important part of hospital service, especially for older persons, once it becomes established.

Frederick Connell, chapter president, announced that Charter No. 2381 has been awarded to the chapter by the national organization and that formal installation ceremonies will be held later.

Mrs. Plass said that speakers and workshops have been planned at Northern Dutchess Hospital May 11, during observance of the "Healthy Birthday America" theme for the 1976 Hospital Week.

James Kelly, membership chairman, reported that 37 persons had joined prior to the business meeting. Membership will be closed at 400 at this month's meeting, with future applicants going onto a waiting list.

A Heyday for Indoor Gardeners

STONE RIDGE — With the culture of house plants one of the increasingly popular activities during this Bicentennial year, indoor gardeners should find much of interest at the Third Annual Horticultural Heyday celebration, slated for Saturday, April 10, at the Stone Ridge campus of Ulster County Community College.

An entire series of illustrated lectures and demonstrations dedicated to indoor gardening will be presented.

For those who have not discovered their green thumb, Heyday will offer "House Plant Selection and Care" by Dr. George Goddard, a foliage and houseplant authority from the University of Massachusetts. Dr. Goddard is prominently represented in the Time-Life Encyclopedia of Gardening and is the inventor of the selection and care "wheel" designed to help the knowledgeable as well as the novice with house plant problems.

From Rutgers University will come Jack Sacalis who will present demonstrations on house plant propagation. If you've ever failed to root any house plant, Sacalis will have the reason for you. He'll show you how to select cutting, tell you when to take them, and display the material and techniques to do the job.

Dr. James Boodley, professor and chairman of the Department of Floriculture and Ornamental Horticulture at Cornell, inventor of the original artificial soil mixes now being utilized around the world, will deliver illustrated lectures on the techniques of growing plants under light.

Because there are as many indoor gardening preferences as there are indoor gardeners, Heyday will offer a multifaceted program catering to the tastes and interest of many.

Experts from the New York and Brooklyn Botanical Gardens will be on hand to offer special demonstrations and instruction in the selection of materials and techniques for building terrariums. The same institutions will present illustrated lectures about the ancient oriental art of Bonsai.

Raymond T. Fox, a professor of Floricultural at Cornell and a man distinguished in the field of floral arranging will share his secrets with those who are eager to learn to display cut flowers to their greatest advantage.

There will be special lectures to those who are hung-up on hanging plants. And those who have problems with house plants are encouraged to start making up lists of symptoms for diagnosis by some of the worlds most prominent authorities. In addition to the lectures, the very popular resource center will provide an informal meeting place where lecturers and guests gather to discuss specific problems and areas of common concern. Students from the college's own Landscaping Club will be offering healthy house plants that were propagated in the college greenhouse especially for Heyday guests.

Hormone Usage For Depression

NEW YORK (UPI) — Some depressive ailments stem from short-circuits in the brain's biochemistry and a psychiatric researcher says sex hormones probably can be used to treat such illness.

Dr. Turan Itil, research professor of psychiatry at New York Medical College, bases the point on initial controlled clinical trials showing such hormones effective in the treatment of some depressive states.

The trials involved two hormones. One was mesterolone, a male sex hormone similar to androgen. The other was cyproterone acetate, an antimalone hormone most often used to treat sexual hyperactivity in males.

He said the tests showed the hormones were effective in the treatment of some depressive patients and did not have the well-known side effects — dry mouth, sedation, and blurred vision — of the tricyclic antidepressant drugs currently in use.

Itil said due to the good results, he is expanding the clinical testing program.

It has been estimated that one out of every 10 adults is affected by some degree of depression. It is by far the most common psychological disorder and one of the most common of all physical illnesses.

"For a number of years, there has been a search for less toxic psychoactive drugs to treat the ailment," Itil said. "Recent reports concerning the untreatable, irreversible neurological damage caused in patients who have been treated with major tranquilizers for long periods of time cannot be ignored.

"Physiological substances such as hormones have none of these toxic effects," he said.

In Itil's pilot studies, a group of severely depressed young and middle-aged men were given mesterolone for up to four weeks. They showed improvement in mood, alertness, memory, concentration, and psycho-motor performance.

Cyproterone acetate was used to treat female patients suffering from severe premenstrual tension, depression and irritability. Daily dosages of the hormone were administered beginning seven days before onset of the period.

Eighty per cent of the women, according to Itil, showed marked improvement.

Research on the effect of sex hormones on depression was abandoned when the new fastacting and effective psychoactive drugs became available on a large scale in the 1950s.

Itil believes that was premature.

"Sex hormones are the body's own natural substances," he said. "If we can discover a natural substance that can actually cure depression, we can also discover the cause of depression."

Crank It Up for Any Problem

MOUTH OF SENECA, W.Va. (UPI) — When a fire breaks out in this pastoral valley, no one bothers to call the fire department.

Folks crank up the telephone and call switchboard operator Gladys Richards instead.

She is ready to handle all emergencies — fires, impassable roads, the death of a neighbor's relative.

"They just say, 'we've got a fire' and I do the rest," says Mrs. Richards. "When someone dies, it's my responsibility to find out when and where the funeral is and inform everyone."

That's how citizens here — 260 by last count — have been handling crises since 1902, when they formed the North Fork Mutual Telephone Co.

Everyone shares party lines — 20 families to a line — and Mrs. Richards is the phone company's only employee.

Now, some are suggesting a drastic change: dial telephones.

"I don't know how much longer we can hold out," sighs

Mrs. Bessie Kisamore. She and her neighbors have battled the Public Service Commission for four years to keep dial service from replacing the old-fashioned system.

If it does, Mrs. Richards will lose her job.

Mrs. Richards says residents who have resided in cities are the only ones who want the change.

"The people who have lived in this valley all their lives couldn't get by without the crank system. But someone's always trying to ram city things down our throats," she said.

Telephone customers here pay only an annual tax of 75 cents, plus charges for long distance calls. There is no monthly fee.

The anti-dial faction suffered a setback two years ago when the Rural Electrification

Administration approved a $1.15 million loan to a Spruce Knob group who wanted to bring dial service throughout the county.

"Most of the people up here are farmers or senior citizens," said Mary Alt, whose mother ran the switchboard before Mrs. Richards.

"By the time they pay their grocery, gas and electric bills, they can't afford $1.50 a year for dial phones."

Ancient Chinese Laws Unearthed

HONG KONG (UPI) — China's earliest laws discovered so far were found on bamboo slips in a recently excavated tomb, the New China News Agency announced recently.

Some 1,000 bamboo slips, most with laws and documents dating back 2,200 years, were found in one of 12 tombs excavated in Yunmeng County in Central China, NCNA said. The tombs were discovered by peasants digging a drainage canal. The official news agency said.

"The three laws of the Chin Dynasty unearthed are China's earliest laws and acts so far discovered and the bamboo slips, well-preserved and with legible characters, are the first discovered of the Chin Dynasty (221 B.C. to 207 B.C.).

The finds date from the late years of the warring states period (475 B.C. - 221 B.C.) and "provide important historical evidence of the how the Chin Dynasty followed the legalist line and imposed the dictatorship of the landlord class over the slave-owning class," NCNA said.

Preliminary studies show the bamboo slips include a document of a governor in 227 B.C., laws, acts, judicial cases, a book on the "ways of officials," and a chronicle of major events from 306 B.C.

Also included are specific cases showing how court trials were conducted.

"The records of laws and acts of the chin Dynasty and of earlier periods had been lost for centuries," NCNA said. Chun Shih Huang was the founder of the dynasty.

Among the new finds are acts on farmland, currency, appointment of officials, self-exiled chin subjects and dismissal of officials.

Money Experts Hail Return of $2 Bill

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Financial experts all over the world are heralding the return of America's two dollar bill. For the first time in ten years, the $2 is again being issued by the U.S. Treasury. The bills will be available at banks all over Ulster County and the rest of the United States on April 13.

The April 13th issuance date coincides with the birthday of Thomas Jefferson, whose picture appears on the bill. The bill became prominent during Federalist times when one day Aaron Burr asked Jefferson if he had change for a $10 and Jefferson replied, "How about five two's?"

Completing the Bicentennial design on the reverse side is a vignette based on the signing of the Declaration of Independence by artist John Trumbull.

Initially, the Treasury is making 225,000,000 of the new notes available. The Treasury estimates the new $2 bills will also result in a savings of $4-7 million per year in printing of $1 bills. An average of 1.6 billion $1 bills are printed per year, accounting for 55-60 per cent of the total volume of the currency printed. The new $2 bill is expected to replace about one-half of the $1s in circulation during the next several years.

One comment heard concerning the reissuance of the $2 bill was: "Now the $2 window at the rack will have some meaning."

The American Bankers Association, in making the announcement, would neither confirm or deny reports that a $3 bill was in the making. Reports have it that the $3 bill would have a picture of Billie Sol Estes on one side and and P.T. Barnum on the other.

Up With People Needs Some People

KINGSTON — Kingston Trust Company, which will sponsor a local appearance by the world famous "Up With People" ensemble on June 15, is seeking area families who would like to serve as hosts for the young members of the troupe.

Those interested in welcoming one or more of the 50 cast members as house guests for the two nights they will be in town are asked to call the "Up With People" coordinator at Kingston Trust.

"Up With People" will give two performances at the Community Theater on Broadway. The public performance is scheduled for 8 p.m. An afternoon assembly for youth organizations serving the disadvantaged is also planned.

Wynnton School, built in 1843, is the oldest school in Georgia still in use.

Manufacturers in Pennsylvania have two day shipping access to 23 states, 60 per cent of the nation's population, with $533 million in disposable income.

"Up With People" musical productions have been seen throughout the United States and in 32 countries around the world. The settings for their performances have included The White House; Carnegie Hall and Lincoln Center in New York; The Los Angeles Music Center; Olympia Theater, Paris and Royal Albert Hall, London. They were most recently seen here providing the half-time entertainment for the Super Bowl.

Officials at Kingston Trust see the appearance of "Up With People" as a culmination of The Bank's Bicentennial program, which provided financial aid to a number of groups in Kingston and throughout Ulster County.

Tickets will be available starting May 24 at all Kingston Trust branches and at the Community Theater on the night of the performance.

Phone Budget Petition Drive Underway

PHOENICIA — Irate Consumers of Ulster County Inc. met with residents of Spillway Road and Route 28A recently, kicking off a petition drive aimed at reducing the $9.75 a month "basic budget" service by the telephone company in that area which many residents consider excessive and restrictive.

The basic service, according to the consumer group, covers only in-coming calls. All others, they say, some in the town of Shandaken itself, are toll calls. Basic budget rates as low as $4 in some other areas were noted.

Plans call for the circulation of a questionnaire to gather information concerning telephone rates in the area.

Assemblyman Maurice D. Hinchey, D-101st Dist., has been working on that problem since last year. He reports he's been in contact with Gov.

Carey who Hinchey says is in substantial agreement with him that toll free areas in Ulster County should be extended.

"It is up to the Public Service Commission to demonstrate that it can act in the public interest and they have an excellent opportunity to do so in this case," Hinchey said. "If the Public Service Commission moves in the right direction they should be encouraged. If they don't I will be back in touch with the governor."

The telephone company has offered to study the rate structure. The PSC is currently studying the phone company's rural rate structure.

Listen Veteran . .

KINGSTON — GI benefit assistance to a veteran's family does not necessarily cease upon the veteran's death.

Depending upon whether or not the veteran's death is attributable to a service-connected disability, a variety of benefits are available to the eligible widow, children, and in some cases, dependent parents.

Immediate benefits include a burial flag, reimbursement for burial expenses and GI insurance proceeds if a policy is in force. Death resulting from a service-connected disability would entitle the widow and minor children to dependency and indemnity compensation. In some instances, the veteran's dependent parents may be eligible. If death resulted from a non-service-connected disability then the widow and children may be eligible for pension payments, depending upon their income. Widows and children of veterans who die from service-incurred disabilities become eligible for up to 36 months of higher education assistance. And, if the widow does not remarry, she may be eligible for a GI home loan.

Depending upon the nature of the benefit, one or more of the following records should be brought along when applying the veteran's discharge papers or military service number, branch of service, and dates of service; the veteran's birth, marriage, and death certificates, and children's birth certificates. Assistance in applying may be obtained from Don Moore at the local office of the NYS Division of Veterans' Affairs located at 300 Flatbush Avenue, UPO Box 527, Kingston, Office Hours Monday through Friday 9 to 5, tel. 331-9300 Ext. 287.

Confining Time for Smokers

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Utah sent its smokers back behind the woodshed today. A tough new anti-smoking law designed to protect the health and sensibilities of non-smokers went into effect — requiring restaurant owners and other businesses to banish smokers to special areas away from the general public. The "Utah Indoor Clean Air Act" was passed earlier this year by the state legislature, which is dominated by Mormon Church members who are forbidden the use of tobacco, alcohol and coffee. Smokers who leave their confines face a $299 fine. Proprietors who refuse to plaster their businesses with "no smoking" signs or to segregating smokers face both the fine and a 90-day jail sentence. But state and local health officials, who must enforce the law, say they will bring no charges for the first few weeks. "No citations will be issued until people have had a time to become familiar with the law," said Dr. Harry Gibbons, director of the Salt Lake City-County Health Department, which must oversee the law in Utah's largest metropolitan area. "We are not going to clobber anybody right away," he said. "It has to be a cooperative thing. I see no way to enforce this law unless people help us."

Utah has always had laws against smoking in public — laws that were seldom enforced because police departments figured they had better things to do. But the legislature voted to make smoking a public health issue, transferring enforcement power to state and local health inspectors. The law requires businessmen to either ban smoking outright in their establishments, or to set up special "designated smoking areas."

Though the rules are aimed primarily at restaurants, the legislature also extended them to cover "offices, shops, warehouses, factories, mines and similar places of employment not usually frequented by the general public."

Wanted

Joseph Maurice McDonald, wanted on a Federal warrant for interstate transportation of stolen property and conspiracy, issued on October 6, 1975, at Los Angeles, Calif., has been added to the FBI's list of "Ten Most Wanted Fugitives." McDonald has been indicted on charges connected with interstate transportation of a large amount of extremely valuable collector's stamps which were stolen during an armed robbery of a Boston, Mass., business on March 17, 1971. (UPI)

The Death Penalty . . . Arguments Completed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The lawyers seemed to be talking to four Supreme Court justices. At any rate, only four justices seemed to be questioning the lawyers.

Despite the enormity of the subject, the other five had few questions of the 10 attorneys who argued for two days on whether the death penalty should be outlawed in the United States.

The arguments are completed and the justices are pondering their opinions — expected to be handed down before the term ends in June.

During the six hours of arguments in two days, Justice William Brennan Jr. didn't “speak once. But he said flatly the last time capital punishment was before the court, in 1972, the death penalty does not “comport with human dignity” and should be held unconstitutional under all circumstances.

Justice William Rehnquist was almost totally silent, too. He was at the opposite pole in 1972. He said the court was wrong then in striking down state capital punishment laws — a proper matter, he said, for state legislatures.

Those with questions were Chief Justice Warren Burger and Justices Potter Stewart, Lewis Powell Jr. and John Paul Stevens.

Ultraviolet Light New Cancer Worry

ST. PETERSBURG BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — Experiments with mice suggest the ultraviolet part of sunlight might suppress body defenses against cancer — an idea which could have far-reaching implications in assessing the impact of manmade atmospheric changes.

A research report was released today by Dr. Margaret Kripke of the Frederick, Md., Cancer Research Center. She said the results were unexpected and unexplained.

Scientists knew too much ultraviolet radiation can cause skin cancer in animals and humans. But she told an American Cancer Society seminar that not only does chronic treatment of mice with ultraviolet light induce skin cancer, it also appears to suppress a body defense mechanism that otherwise would eliminate these tumors when transplanted to other genetically related mice.

munobiology at the government center, said she and her colleagues are a long way from understanding what is happening.

“We do know, however, that UV light itself is responsible for this situation,” she said.

Most of the ultraviolet radiation from the sun is screened from earth's surface by a layer of ozone in the upper atmosphere. Concern has been raised recently that exhaust from supersonic jet transports and fluorocarbon gases used in some aerosol sprays might erode the ozone layer and increase the amount of ultraviolet radiation reaching earth.

More Time in Orange

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — Orange County residents will have until April 9 to renew their drivers licenses that expire March 31, according to State Motor Vehicles Commissioner James P. Melton.

Melton Monday cited a work slowdown by county workers, some of whom are members of the Civil Service Employees Association that has on strike since March 17.

A statement from Melton's office said "a work slowdown" and "absenteeism" by county employees "at the county clerks' four motor vehicle issuing offices" had caused serious delays.

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) —
 Seven bankrupt railroads including the giant Penn Central faded into history today, absorbed by a government-planned corporation charged with creating one profitable system.

P-C Part of History
 At 12:01 a.m. EST, the hundreds of freight trains moving throughout the East and Midwest on the bankrupt lines became ConRail freights, no longer the property of Penn Central, Erie Lackawanna, Jersey Central, Reading, Lehigh Valley, Lehigh & Hudson River or Ann Arbor, whose names now exist only in court suits and history books.

Some 2,034 miles of active railroad was abandoned at midnight. Most of it lightly used branch line, it also included the Erie Lackawanna main line from Mansfield, Ohio, to Chicago, which paralleled the Penn Central.

Several shops also were closed, including the EL shops at Marion, Ohio, and the LV shops at Sayre, Pa., as Con-Rail consolidated repair work in Altoona, Pa.

Orange Woman Bludgeoned
 HIGHLAND FALLS, N.Y. (UPI) — Local and state police continued a search today for the person who bludgeoned a woman to death Wednesday night and beat up her three children and elderly mother, leaving one child near death.

Police said Lily Peoples, 24, of Highland Falls, died of a severe beating with a blunt instrument. Her injured children were identified as: Cassandra, 6; Stephen, 8; and Wilma Jean, 11. Also harmed was the dead woman's mother, Jewel, who lived with the family.

They were all taken to Cornwall hospital, where their condition was unknown early today. Because of her critical condition, Cassandra was moved to Vassar Hospital in Poughkeepsie. Troopers said they were seeking William Kemp, 36, for questioning. Early reports indicated there were witnesses to the incident, which took place around 8:30 p.m., and which apparently stemmed from an argument. The Peoples woman lived at 14 Snyder Ave.

Discouraging Words for '76 College Seniors and Job Hopes

WASHINGTON, D.C. — This year's college seniors are having a harder time lining up jobs than last year's, the College Placement Council has reported to no one's great surprise.

And what happened to the Class of '76? We asked the director of the largest college placement office in the area at SUNY, New Paltz, Mary Louise Farley.

"The Class of '76 has largely disappeared," she said. "We've had the poorest response to our job questionnaire we've ever had. We really don't have enough feedback to know what's happened to them."

Her personal opinion is that many may have set the questionnaire aside until they had a job more of their choice to report. "We all have our personal pride," she commented.

Another gauge usually used by "career development" offices (as they are now called) to measure employment is to study the recruiters from industry, educational and other institutions and their job offers.

This gauge is now practically worthless, noted Ms. Farley, as there are practically no recruiters on campus anymore. "It's unbelievable how fast it has decreased," she exclaimed, adding that "they don't need to come to campus" and most corporations now prefer to use agencies to screen job applicants.

Some statistics from the College Placement Council: employer job offers to students at 159 colleges are 16 per cent lower this year than last for bachelor degree candidates. Offers are down 25 per cent to master's degree candidates, and down 32 per cent for doctoral candidates. And "just about everyone agreed that 1974-75 was a tough year," said a council spokesman.

One bright spot was seen to be that undergraduate women are getting 27 per cent more job offers than a year ago, and offers were up 36 per cent at the master's level. Job offers to men declined 20 per cent for undergraduates and 13 per cent for master's candidates.

Offers to students in the humanities and social sciences declined by 26 per cent, the greatest drop, followed by those of students in engineering, science and business fields.

Despite some pressure to reorient liberal arts education to make it more specifically job oriented, Ms. Farley remains adamant in her defense of the liberal arts as developing a basis that will give a student options later in his or her life.

She did emphasize that students must learn to "investigate early" in the job market, or they will be greatly disappointed. Many come into the Career Development Office naive about job seeking and expect to see a choice of jobs laid out before them in five minutes.

There is a trend among young people to try to integrate their job into their life in a more meaningful way than has been done on a large scale in the past. Ms. Farley cited a survey she had read that determined a high percentage of people nationally are very unhappy with their jobs. "Young people are feeling more able to admit their life style," she commented.

Thus, at New Paltz, her office conducts "life planning seminars" on a semi-regular basis where students come in groups of seven or eight and try to nail down some of their values, decide what's important to them, and then begin planning to achieve it.

Ms. Farley believes that students should go after what they really desire, choose a location they want to live in, and be willing to "go without certain amenities" in order to satisfy themselves with their work, if necessary. There is very little hope for someone who walks into the office and asks for rewarding work in the Hudson Valley, she added.

At SUNY, New Paltz the problem is currently compounded by the large number of staff members who have been thrown out of work due to state budget cuts, she pointed out, referring to "a man in his 30s with two children" waiting outside who has been faced with an even more complex dilemma than those undergraduate students he must compete with for work.

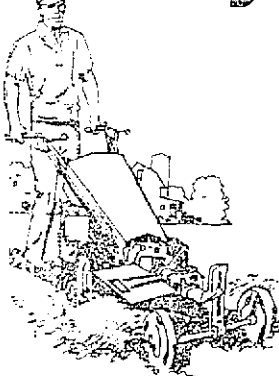

"This is a terribly discouraging business these days," said Ms. Farley.

Head Bird Disputes DEC on Goose Watching

KINGSTON — The ever-informative Department of Environmental Conservation has just put out the word that this is the season for goose watching.

The DEC means watching

the kind that go "honk," not the kind that result in a "whoosh."

Goose watching seems like an interesting enough sport for the humans who indulge in it, but the Freeman wondered how the watchees feel about the game.

In keeping with this newspaper's long-standing principle of getting our information from the best available sources, the Freeman interviewed the head goose, Pegasus Thunderbeak, in the middle (actually a little more towards the end) of his annual flight back from the Chesapeake Bay, his winter waddling grounds.

We flagged down Thunderbeak from the Kingston-Rhinecliff Bridge, as he was proudly winging his way along at the head of a V-shaped phalanx of his kind, which in keeping with this newspaper's long-standing principle of printing the truth even if it hurts, must be said to have been in not very good order.

Actually, we flagged Thunderbeak up; he was leading his group under the bridge, claiming to be avoiding DEC radar.

Asked about his feelings on the goose watching game,

Thunderbeak got right to the point. "People should mind their own damn business," he hunked.

"How would you like it," he honked rhetorically. "If every time you and the little woman and a group of your friends came back from Florida, the Interstate was lined with geese, all of them with field glasses, and telescopes, and radar and a lot of other mechanical stuff."

In keeping with this newspaper's long-standing

principle of asking every relevant question, no matter how tough, we asked Thunderbeak to give his opinion of the DEC's statement that geese actually help the fields of winter wheat they forage in by clipping off the tops of the wheat and encouraging fuller growth, and contributing "ample high nitrogen fertilizer."

He honked that it was "a matter to delicate to comment on," and flew off.

Just before he left, he honked that he had changed his mind about using the Hudson as a flyway, and was going to use the Rondout all the way up to Peekamoose Mountain before bearing north again, claiming that state budget cuts had thinned out the DEC radar on that route.

He and the V headed west.

Schermerhorn: Death for Murderers

ALBANY — Noting "a life is a life: murder is murder, no matter by whose hand the blow is cast nor on whom the blow falls," State Senator Richard E. Schermerhorn, R-Cornwall, has announced he has introduced in the State Senate a bill that would mandate the death penalty for all convicted murderers.

Schermerhorn explained that under current law there are two classifications of murder. The Cornwall lawmaker said, "Murder-one is when a person is convicted of killings a police officer or an employee of a state correctional institution. This carries a mandatory death sentence." Schermerhorn continued, "Murder-two deals with the murder of anyone else. A prison term ranging from 15 to 25 years and possibly life imprisonment would be imposed."

"The result of the current law," Schermerhorn said, "is if a police officer is murdered in the line of duty, the defendant shall be sentenced to death. If a housewife is murdered, the defendant's sentence may range from 15 years to life in prison."

Schermerhorn's bill, therefore, will mandate the court to impose the death penalty to defendants who are convicted of murdering another human being.
